Canada Pushes Its Case

WASHINGTON (CP) — A group of high-level Canadian government officials flew into Washington today for a second meeting with United States representatives about new American import duties.

A U.S. treasury spokesman described the session as a "follow-up meeting by a working group" after last Thursday's conference involving cabinet ministers from the two governments.

Besides import duties, the spokesman said the two sides were expected to discuss the "over-all picture of the monetary situation" in the world following Washington's decision to free the U.S. dollar from its gold peg, in effect seeking devaluation of the dollar.

Canada is asking for a total exemption of Canadian goods from the new duty, which can add up to 10 per cent to the cost of imports into the U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally promised only to consider the request.

Ottawa has estimated that one-quarter of Canada's nearly 13 billion in exports to the U.S. could be affected.

WON'T MAKE STATEMENT

Both Canadian and U.S. spokesmen here said there were no plans to issue a statement following the meeting.

Arriving aboard a Canadian government plane for the session were Deputy Finance Minister S. S. Reisman, Deputy Trade Minister J. H. Warren and A. E. Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs who was Canadian ambassador here for 3½ years until January, 1970.

In Geneva the council of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade agreed early today to set up a working group to examine the supplementary 10-per-cent import tax announced by President Nixon Aug. 15.

The agreement followed 16 hours of deadlocked debate.

The group, appointed by the 55-nation council, also will examine the legality of the import levy under GATT's fair-trading rules, and will study the U.S. balance-of-payments situation and exchange views on other measures of a non-monetary nature announced by Nixon.

A GATT spokesman said this formula, insisted on by the U.S. delegation, left open the question whether the group would examine effects on international trade displayed by the job development tax credit plan and tax incentives for U.S. exporters which the administration plans presenting to Congress.

The group, formed by the council despite strong protests by developing countries that their interests were being overlooked, will start work Sept. 6 and report back to the council by Sept. 20. The group, chaired by the Finnish representative to GATT, Klaus Sahlgren, will consist of between 22 and 24 members.

Canada, which is seeking exemption from the import tax, will be a member of the group.

FIERCE-LOOKING SHARK was caught in Georgia Strait and Victor David, 65, of Vancouver, who made the catch using horsemeat as bait, says there are plenty more, up to 26 feet long, off the east side of Mayne Island. The shark died after capture. David plans to make another expedition to catch two live ones for the Vancouver Public Aquarium. (CP Wirephoto)

SHARKS IN GEORGIA STRAIT

VANCOUVER (CP)—There are sharks in Georgia Strait, says Victor David, who caught two last week and plans to catch another to present to the Vancouver Public Aquarium.

"Nobody ever sees them or knows they're there, because they're bottom feeders and never come up to the surface."

Mr. David, 65, is a retired sign maker who worked as a cook aboard a commercial shark-catching boat at the age of 12. Last week marked his first time back at that job in 53 years, but he says he still remembers all the places.

"There's a trench about three miles off the east side (of Mayne Island) which is about 600 feet deep and the sharks there run to about 26 feet long."

He says aquarium facilities can only handle sharks to about eight feet in length, so he and his crew fished a bank along the side of a trench about 350 feet below the surface "where the little sharks are."

To catch the sharks, Mr. David used half-inch manilla rope attached to a winch with a gangen, or leader, of 3/16-inch chain for the last few feet. On the chain were a dozen hooks baited with horsemeat.

* * *

The men caught two sharks, "one about 10 feet, the other about 8½ feet, but the big one got away just as we were getting it into the boat."

The second shark was transferred to a tank on the boat, but died several hours later with burst blood vessels.

"It's the same as with scuba divers," Mr. Davis said. "You can't bring them up too fast from such a high pressure down there."

He plans to make another expedition in about three weeks with a larger boat and better equipment and he says he will bring back a shark alive "for sure."

Wage, Price Freeze Here Not Planned . . . Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — A prices and wages freeze is said not to be an immediate prospect for Canada, but the prices and incomes commission has been reported to be drafting standby plans.

These were intended originally to be put on the shelf for use if another rapid inflation struck Canada. Now they may be held in reserve for mid-November.

The 90-day U.S. wage and price freeze is to expire, technically, on Nov. 12, but the Nixon administration is to produce some machinery to moderate price and wage increases after that date. Some authorities here believe it is important that Canadian costs be kept down, to avoid Canada becoming overpriced in an already highly competitive situation.

The departments of industry, trade and commerce and of regional economic expansion have had an on-going program of studying Canadian industry and regional needs for industrial expansion.

These plans now are being restudied in the light of what a more competitive build-up of American industry might do to Canada. One of the objects of President Nixon's new economic policy is to spark renewed industrial growth and competitiveness in foreign markets.

There are no plans now for a fall budget in the Commons. A finance department spokesman said it is not, of course, possible at this stage to say there will be no budget before Christmas, "but we are not proceeding on the lines of needing a budget."

A budget would be required if there was to be a general revision of the government's taxing and spending forecasts with tax rate changes.

WOMEN'S LIBBERS STOP WALL STREET

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women's liberationists, saying there has not been enough done since they called a national strike a year ago, marched up Fifth Avenue today in a protest against male supremacy.

No strike was called this year, although a day of protests, meetings and demonstrations were planned in New York with smaller gatherings scheduled around the country. See also Page 28.

Eight of the marchers went into the New York Stock Exchange with a banner reading "De-sexagrate Wall Street." The distraction halted the market briefly. No arrests were made.

Stop Pipeline, Nixon Urged

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon was asked by a group of United States congressmen today to intervene personally and stop construction of the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline until a full economic and ecological study has been made of a possible alternative line through Canada to the U.S. Middle West.

They argued that a cross-Canada line would be of more benefit to the whole of the United States.

Seventeen members of the House of Representatives, led by pipeline foe Les Aspin, as well as a fellow Wisconsin Democrat, Senator William Proxmire, signed the letter.

Although Aspin and other opponents have attacked the Alaska project mainly on grounds of conservation in the past, the current opposition came largely on economic grounds. They contended that a Canadian pipeline would help reduce the current wide disparities in oil prices between the West Coast and the higher-cost areas of the U.S. Middle West and East Coast.

An interior department decision on the $3 billion pipeline proposal is expected shortly. Secretary Morton has already indicated he will approve the project, although the terms of the permit are in question.

Mariner Corrects Fuel Leak

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Mariner 9 spacecraft en route to an orbital rendezvous with Mars, has corrected by itself a fuel leak that would have shortened its year-long scientific mission by three months, say scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Mariner 9 was launched May 30 from Cape Kennedy, programmed to reach Mars orbit by Nov. 13.

In June instruments showed excessive nitrogen use. A component involved in the over-use however, has "broken in" with age and "the excessive gas consumption has stabilized itself," a spokesman said. Enough nitrogen remains for a full year, he said.

Mariner 9 will map the red planet with television cameras and perform other scientific tests for a year from orbital altitudes as low as 750 miles. It is expected to remain in orbit for about 50 years before crashing onto the planet's surface.

WHY THEY FAIL

Each year thousands of children fail to make progress in school when there appears to be no visible reason why they should not be doing well. Today the Times presents the first of six articles on the problem of underachievement and what parents can do about it. See Page 27.

EX-TORY LEADS MOVE

Separatists Eye Ottawa Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen well-known Quebecers, including members of the separatist Parti Quebecois, met secretly recently to discuss the possibility of a Quebec party working on the federal level.

The meeting was called by Fernand Alie, former chairman of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, and was jointly chaired by Guy Bertrand of Quebec City, former Parti Quebecois candidate in the provincial riding of Dorchester, near Quebec City.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, both Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Alie acknowledged the meeting and said another will be held at the Alie Institute in downtown Montreal, site of the first meeting. The second meeting was set for Sept. 2.

Other prominent Quebec persons attending the first meeting included Camille Laurin, PQ house leader in the national assembly; Roch Lasalle, the independent federal MP for Joliette who broke with the Progressive Conservatives earlier this year; Claude Ryan, publisher of the Montreal daily Le Devoir; Andre L'Heureux of the Confederation of National Trade Unions; Francois-Albert Angers, Montreal head of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, and Rosaire Morin, head of the Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party.

YOUTH REPORT

Free Choice Advocated

Legal Pot Urged

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Freedom of choice for young people forms the core of the report today to the federal government of its committee on youth.

The 218-page report released Thursday recommends creation of regional and national agencies to approve and fund social development projects conceived by a national network of community assemblies.

The goal would be to make "freedom of choice a powerful societal reality" and in the process, give young people a full role in the making of decisions affecting them.

En route to this conclusion, the three-man committee makes numerous recommendations, likely to inspire controversy, including a proposal that the cultivation, sale and use of marijuana be legalized.

"Drug laws as they stand are ineffective," the report advises.

"Logically, it is difficult to understand how a society, unsuccessful at suppressing the use of drugs such as tobacco, alcohol and chemicals by its members, can hope to erase the use of soft drugs now so popular with, and available to, such a large part of its population."

STUDIES NOT FIRM

The report adds that medical studies on the effects of marijuana are far from conclusive and that the "most reliable studies show it is not physically addictive."

The committee beat the Le Dain commission to the punch by several weeks in giving a judgment about marijuana and hashish.

The Le Dain commission, headed by Dean Gerald Le Dain of Osgoode Hall law school, Toronto, is expected to hand down its final report this fall after more than two years' study of the drug scene in Canada.

In an interim report, the Le Dain commission called on the courts to "minimize" the impact of criminal laws against canabis for those charged with possession.

At the same time, the interim report of the Le Dain commission proposed lightened penalties for trafficking and possession of drugs.

Its most controversial recommendation — immediately rejected by the federal cabinet — was that illegal possession of any drug be subject to no more than a fine of $100.

COVERED BIG AREA

The youth committee, headed by Toronto sociologist David Hunter, began its inquiry under contract a year ago, covering the whole area of youth activities and attitudes.

On drugs, its report says:

"Drug laws as they stand are ineffective. By all accounts they have resulted neither in diminished availability nor decreased consumption."

ALBERTA PRISONS FACE GUARD STRIKE

EDMONTON (CP) — Beds and food for the RCMP were being moved into the five provincial jails in Alberta today as authorities prepared for a strike of 500 correctional officers who could walk out at any time.

A deadline of midnight Wednesday night passed without a strike by the men, who constitute almost all the guards and other officers at the jails. They were still on the job today.

RCMP detachments near the provincial jails said they have been placed on standby alert to replace the officers if the threatened walkout occurs.

Bigger Role Asked for Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—More federal say in education, bigger loans to university students and a more distinct separation between military and civilian education in military colleges is recommended in a study on youth commissioned by the federal government.

The state secretary department's three-man committee on youth said in its report, released today, that the constitutional decision to make education a provincial responsibility "was largely a religious one."

"But the situation today differs so much from that of 1867 that the current arrangements may well have to be revised."

Currently, the federal government contributes more than $1 billion a year to education through student loans or grants to provincial institutions for provincially initiated educational programs.

Because of the size of the contribution, the federal government should make sure post-secondary education is "equally available to all Canadians."

WANTS APPRAISAL

The report calls for a "detailed appraisal" of the entire system of federal support for education to ensure that the provinces are spending such money on education and that they are spending it in such a way as to broaden educational opportunities for all Canadians.

As well, it recommends that all people involved in education, from administrators to students, share governing power in schools and universities.

The report also recommends that the federal government take another look at its student aid program and come up with a different plan. Student loans, however, should immediately be changed "to remove, or reassess", the need for students to make money in the summer, rely on their parents for support or conform to complex administrative requirements.

The report deals with one loan scheme under which students could borrow as much money as they needed to pay their way through school, then repay it in the form of a tax when they began making money.

NEED ALTERNATIVE

But, it goes on, the government should look for an alternative that goes beyond this plan as well.

The report also recommends that the defence department consider turning its three military colleges — Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., Royal Roads at Esquimalt, B.C. and College Militaire Royal at St. Jean, Que. — over to civilians.

Canadian military college education is considerably more expensive than the civilian form and military people should be "more closely integrated into society," the report says.

As a result, military training should be separated from other forms of education by either turning the colleges over to civilian control or combining the functions of the three in one institution and finding some other way "to subsidize or purchase cadets' education in civilian institutions."

Work to Start Soon On Kootenay Project

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority announced Wednesday that work will begin shortly on the first stages of construction of the Kootenay Canal power project in southeastern B.C.

The project, which will cost about $100 million including transmission lines, will include a three-mile canal to feed Kootenay Lake water into four generators with a capacity of 500,000 kilowatts.

No date was announced for construction of the power house although tenders have been called for the generators. Work is expected to begin next spring. Approval for diversion of Kootenay River water was given only last week by the provincial comptroller of water rights.

Hydro Chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said Wednesday that agreement in principle has been reached on how the water will be utilized but full details have not been worked out.

It is expected that Cominco and West Kootenay Power will receive a share of the power generated at the new plant as payment for the diversion.

Hydro Wednesday said it has awarded a $105,600 contract to Shelter Bay Construction Ltd. of Kamloops, to clear 300 acres of land for the canal site, making every effort to "preserve the quality of the environment."

The new power plant would make use of water released from the Duncan Dam on the Columbia River System and from the Libby Dam on the Kootenay River in Montana, expected to be completed next year.

Marine Life Research At Bamfield

The federal government will give five western universities $500,000 toward equipping a new marine biology station at Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The grant, from the National Research Council in Ottawa, will be paid in equal instalments during the next two years. The consortium of five universities — Victoria, UBC, SFU, Alberta and Calgary — had asked for $800,000.

The universities have already bought 190 acres at the Bamfield site, including almost two miles of shoreline flanking Grappler Inlet.

The research station will be centred around the old federal cable station, built about 70 years ago and closed down 12 years ago. Despite its age the building is in good condition, and scientists have said it can be easily renovated.

The NRC grant will help finance a system of tanks for fish and other marine life. It will feature special emergency control equipment to prevent interruption of seawater flow which could destroy years of research.

Richard Lester, president of the Western Canadian Universities Biological Society, said earlier it was hoped the centre would be operational by next summer. Some biology projects have already been undertaken at the site.

Six Students Get Awards

Six students from Vancouver Island are among the winners of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. university entrance scholarships.

BCFP provides up to 10 scholarships to dependents of scholarships to dependants of company employees. They are worth $400 each for students eftering the University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University.

Winners are Mary E. Bratt and Steven E. Sommer of Victoria, Gregory J. Peet and Valerie I. Binion of Duncan; Judith G. Shelling of Chemainus, Linda Anne Westwood of Ladysmith, Robert W. Schultz of Maple Ridge, Thomas V. Martin of west Vancouver and Wayne W. Lyle of New Westminster.

In addition to this scholarship program, the company also announced it has made 34 grants, ranging up to $300, under a bursary plan for employees' dependants.

Hoppers Multiply

Grasshoppers are multiplying so fast they could reach plague proportions by 1973, according to Dr. Neil Holmes of the federal research station in Lethbridge, Alberta.

Holmes, who is attending the annual meeting of the Entomological Society of Canada, said the infestation is rising from B.C. to Manitoba.

The last major plague occurred in the 1930s on the Prairies.

The extent of the grasshopper infestation will depend largely on weather conditions during the next two years, he said.

He said federal entomologists will conduct surveys in September to find out how many eggs have been laid.

Underwater Missile Plan Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt says the United States should go ahead with development of a totally new underwater long-range missile system (ULMS).

Zumwalt, chief of U.S. naval operations, also voiced support Tuesday for an extended-range Poseidon missile.

Both missiles would have a range of about 6,000 miles, twice that of the present multiwarhead. However, the ULMS would require a new class of submarines, perhaps twice as big as the Polaris sub from which the present Poseidon is fired.

The ULMS program would cost up to $12 billion, while the Pentagon has said the extended-range Poseidon could be mounted in a revamped Polaris sub. It appears this would be much less costly than the ULMS.

"I feel the country needs to find the money to do both of these programs," Zumwalt said at a news conference.

Firemen Beat Hotel Blaze

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Firemen battled for nearly 2½ hours early today to bring a three-alarm fire under control at the New Wellington Hotel.

A fire department spokesman said the 300-room hotel in the city's downtown district appeared to be a total loss.

Investigators are studying the damage, estimated at about $750,000.

The hotel was evacuated successfully and none of the 65 firemen fighting the blaze was seriously hurt.

Cause of the fire is not known.

The spokesman said most of the hotel's rooms were full when the first alarm sounded shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday, and the hotel grill room was packed with sportsmen celebrating the end of a local golf tournament.

Sherbrooke is about 75 miles east of Montreal.

Casualties Increase

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese command reported today an increase last week in casualties among its forces, much of it due to the heavy fighting just south of the demilitarized zone.

The command said 423 South Vietnamese were killed and 745 were wounded, compared with 312 killed and 599 wounded a week earlier.

The U.S. command announced that 10 Americans were killed last week, the lowest weekly toll in six years. The two commands said 1,729 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed last week, a 25-per-cent increase over the 1,393 reported killed two weeks ago.

Arbitration Meeting

VANCOUVER (CP) — The executive board of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers will on Friday following the failure of B.C. Hydro and the union to agree on an arbitrator to replace Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

Union spokesman Doug Cronk said the executive will review the situation, establish policy and take the policy to the membership, if necessary.

A strike by the IBEW began June 21 and ended July 2 when both sides agreed to arbitration by Mr. Justice Nemetz, who recently resigned from the dispute because of his wife's illness.

The paper says Orr's hockey salary makes up only half the agreement. The remainder consists of fringe benefits, including payment for public relations duties for the Bruins, plus deferred payments and other considerations.

The agreement would make Orr the highest-paid athlete in the history of the NHL and also in the history of Boston sports. Carl Yastrzemski, Boston Red Sox major league baseball player, is next with a salary of $165,000 a year.

Council Irked Over Parking At Apartment

Oak Bay municipality has not decided what action to take regarding a Granite Street apartment block constructed recently without the agreed number of parking spaces.

Mayor Frances Elford said today the Granite House, 2100 Granite, may be allowed to continue with 67 spaces it is found the area is sufficient for the number of cars owned by tenants.

Council's streets committee was told Tuesday that improper parking in front of the building attracted attention which led to the discovery that insufficient parking places had been provided.

The original plans called for 92 spaces, or 150 per cent of the building's 61 suites.

"We are not too worried, but we are not too pleased, either," Mrs. Elford said.

The building was constructed by Copp Construction Company, a Victoria firm, but it has since been sold.

At Tuesday's committee meeting, it was also discovered that no certificate of occupancy had been issued before tenants moved in, as required by Oak Bay legislation.

The rule requiring 150 per cent parking for all apartments in Oak Bay applied when the building was begun, but it is under review.

ALL-NEW CORTINA

Just arrived from Europe.

A lot more little car. Because we demand a lot more of it.

A lot more durability
Canada challenges a car. The all-new Cortina has been designed to meet—and beat—that challenge.
Brakes, engine, electrical system, heating system, all engineered to tackle this country's varied driving and climate conditions.
Even the finish is special. It's electro-coated to fight rust in even the most inaccessible areas.

A lot more go
A 2 litre Overhead Camshaft engine is standard. It has been skillfully modified to give you more power without increasing gas consumption. It packs a 100 horsepower.

A lot more stop
Fade resistant power front disc brakes are standard. There's minimal effort in bringing the car to a fast stop.
The rear drum brakes have no sliding cylinders or shoe anchors to go wrong. And the whole Dual Line Brake System is sealed against dirt and water.

A lot better ride
The 101.5 inch long wheelbase accounts for the smoother ride.
The front Short and Long arm Suspension plus a Stabilizer Bar provides a quieter ride and improved handling.
Rack-and-pinion steering which offers quick, precise maneuverability is standard.
At the rear the traditional leaf springs are replaced by a 4-bar link system which improves the ride.
Drive Cortina and see.

A lot more room everywhere
For a small car, Cortina gives you plenty of head, hip and leg room. This was accomplished by widening the track to 56 inches. And making the inside wider.
There's more room in the rear, and the back seat passengers sit ahead of the rear axle for a more comfortable ride.

Enough Oil To Supply Washington

VANCOUVER (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday Canada has plenty of oil to supply Washington state refineries.

He gave the assurance in commenting on complaints from U.S. state department officials that Canada had failed to follow up its proposals for keeping supertankers out of British Columbia waters.

The Washington, D.C., officials said Tuesday Canada had failed to supply additional information following the proposals made to U.S. State Secretary William Rogers by Davis and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The Canadian ministers said the Washington state market could be supplied by oil from the Trans-Mountain Pipeline, thus enabling supertankers from Alaska to be diverted to California on a route well away from the coast.

Additional information to back the claim is needed soon because a decision on the Alaska pipeline will be made possibly within the next seven weeks, the state department officials said.

Davis said he was surprised at the complaints, but regarded them as opening the door to further negotiations on the matter. He said he feared the state department was dragging its feet because of a desire to encourage the Alaska oil industry and cut down on foreign imports.

After the meetings two months ago, Davis said, Canadian departmental officials were sent to Washington prepared to discuss the Canadian oil supply in detail.

Canadian oil production figures are in possession of the U.S. interior department in any event, he said, and there is no doubt that the Canadian supply could be increased by roughly 100 per cent.

The Trans-Mountain Pipeline supplies oil to the U.S. midwest, but the large-scale reserves could supply Washington state without diminishing this.

Davis said the Canadian officials who went to Washington found practically no interest in investigating the proposals.

"Washington was reluctant to make any studies in depth, but if this is all they want to know there is just no problem," he said.

He said he had instructed Ottawa officials by telephone Wednesday to renew their representations.

Their job would be to draw the attention of state department officials to the figures on Canada's vast oil reserves and the maximum economic rate of production record that has been supplied to the U.S. interior department since Canada began piping oil to the U.S. almost 18 years ago.

A point in Canada's favor, he said, is that Alaskan oil won't be any cheaper than that already supplied by Canada.

Bennett Eyes PGE Extension to Yukon

VANCOUVER (CP) — If Premier W. A. C. Bennett can get the right amount of financial support from the federal government, the provincial government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway will be extended to the Yukon and Northwest Territories borders.

He announced Wednesday that PGE general manager Joe Broadbent is negotiating such extensions with A. L. Peel, chief of the railway and highway branch of the federal department of transport.

The northeastern fork of the railway now is virtually completed to Fort Nelson, some 130 miles south of B.C.'s boundary with the Northwest Territories, and a 400-mile extension of the northwestern fork to Dease Lake, about 130 miles south of the Yukon border, is under construction.

Premier Bennett said the extension of each arm to B.C.'s northern border has been proposed to Ottawa, on the condition that Ottawa share the costs.

He told a news conference that the extensions were offered in a spirit of co-operation to help the federal government develop the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

"We are Canadians, and anything that benefits Canada benefits B.C.," he said. "We have a responsibility to see that the northern areas are not locked off."

Bennett said he is "99.9999 per cent confident" that the negotiations will succeed. A formula under which costs would be shared has been proposed, but he would not say what it is. Nor would he estimate the cost of such extensions.

The premier, president of the PGE, said he would not allow the railway to be extended beyond B.C.'s boundaries, because then it would come under federal regulations that would restrict its use as an instrument of development.

It would be up to the federal government to see that railroads were built on the other side of B.C.'s northern border to take advantage of the links offered by the PGE.

The northeastern arm of the PGE could eventually be connected with a federal line from Fort Simpson in the Northwest Territories to the B.C. border, he suggested.

Fewer Get In

LONDON (Reuter) — The number of Commonwealth immigrants allowed into Britain in the first six months of this year was 10.8 per cent lower than in the same period last year, the home office said. The figures were 12,845, compared with 14,426 in the first half of 1970.

Citizens Appeal to MP After Smuggling Raid

ATLIN, B.C. (CP) — Residents of this tiny community near the Alaska border in northwestern British Columbia have asked their Member of Parliament to look into the circumstances surrounding a recent police raid for smuggled goods.

Tom Kirkwood, President of the Atlin Board of Trade, said Frank Howard, veteran New Democratic Party standard bearer whose Skeena riding takes in Atlin, has agreed to visit the community Sept. 3 or 4 to look into the situation.

Police and customs officers seized smuggled goods from five persons at Atlin last month and about $2,000 in duty and penalties was assessed by customs.

Kirkwood said Howard would look into complaints that police and customs officers forced their way into homes during the search for goods.

In Vancouver, Jack Rutledge, chief of the district investigations branch, Canada Customs, said "there is an odd situation in northern B.C. with smuggling going on both ways across the border."

Copper Find Said Unusual

OTTAWA (CP) — A field party of the Geological Survey of Canada reported Wednesday it has been finding unusual copper-bearing formations in central British Columbia.

★ ★ ★

The party, working north of Morice Lake, reported to the mines department that the copper formations are of a type not found before in British Columbia.

Eighteen mineralized areas, all below the surface, have been located.

An official of the mines department said the significance of the finds is now not known, but "it's something that's worth looking at because of its very novelty."

★ ★ ★

The field party, headed by Dr. H. W. Tipper, will complete its program early next month and a further report on the region will be issued shortly thereafter.

White Paper—Black View

THE WHITE PAPER ISSUED this week by Defence Minister Macdonald, rightly takes account of the many changes that have occurred in the world since the review of 1964. Prime Minister Trudeau's policy statement two years ago contained the philosophy which was a preliminary to the present publication. Clearly, the government's approach to Canada's defence is based on a much wider concept than heretofore, and this in most instances is to be commended.

We no longer live in the world which was described as "post-war"; we have moved far beyond it. And Canada's defence now embraces some fields formerly believed to be wholly within the civil realm, such as surveillance of foreign fishing fleets, ice reconnaissance, surveillance of Far Northern industrial projects and of pollution on land or sea.

Some of the changes heralded in the white paper are abrupt. The government's views on Canada's contribution to world peace through active participation in United Nations peace-keeping assignments — formerly the kingpin of our national defence policy — have undergone, if not a reversal, at least a drastic alteration. Canada, says the white paper, will continue to assist in such tasks, but will take a very close look at each request before agreeing to participate. This new approach should be conducted with foresight and understanding. Lack of what Mr. Macdonald might call success in some past policing operations does not mean that the results could not have been much worse if the effort had not been made.

Significantly, one of the reasons given for a more critical approach to U.N. policing tasks is that it may be harder in the future to determine the real nature of the crisis. "Many of the conflicts likely to arise in this decade will have their roots in subversion and insurgency," says the white paper, "and will not therefore lend themselves easily to resolution through the use of internationally constituted peace-keeping bodies."

It is a trend of our violent and disturbed times that this should be true. But it is particularly interesting to Canadians that the Defence Department uses the same viewpoint in assessing some of the future jobs which the Canadian Forces may be called upon to perform at home.

The likelihood of serious domestic violence is apparently very much in the defence experts' minds — although this may come as a surprise to most of the people in Canada. Says the white paper: "The threat to society posed by violent revolutionaries and the implications of the recent crisis . . . merited close consideration in projecting Canadian defence activities in the 1970s".

It will be a shock to Canadians to realize that the Department views Canadian soil as a likely site for military action by Canadian troops, perhaps an even more likely one than in some country abroad. Again to quote the white paper: "The Canadian experience over the last two years clearly indicates the necessity of being able to cope effectively with any future resort to disruption, intimidation and violence as weapons of political action."

That is a highly questionable assertion. The recent Quebec fracas — still to be finally assessed as to its real danger to the government — was hardly a "clear" indication that we should move even partially into a military-guarded environment.

In addition to the Quebec kidnapping, the white paper mentions the Montreal police strike and the Kingston Penitentiary riots. It concludes: "We must . . . anticipate the possibility that emergencies will again arise which will necessitate the Canadian Forces coming to the aid of the civil power." It adds that in such situations the Forces' role "could be crucial", and foresees the danger that "violent events elsewhere could stimulate outbreaks in Canada."

That is a proposition which should be thrashed out in Parliament. It is a wholly new concept, a philosophy completely foreign to Canada, that Canadians stand in continuing need of an army to rescue them from domestic violence — that Canadians need Canadian troops trained to suppress Canadians.

Obviously, if police protection breaks down anywhere the only resort may be to enlist the temporary help of the armed services. But the apparent Department philosophy that this is now to be considered a normal type of operation for the army and something to be accepted quietly into Canadian thinking as an ordinary part of our life style should be rejected and put in its proper perspective. It's not Canadian.

Air Vent or Dead End?

THE DISRUPTION OF STEREOtypes by facts is perhaps the healthiest function of politics. The news that there exists in Moscow a journal circulating among the party elite and presenting what, at first glance, appears to be a reasonable approach to the probable truth, is heartening to the liberal cause around the world. The object of the journal, Political Diary, is apparently to give the Soviet Union's rulers an intelligent number of options from which to determine policy. Dissenting opinions on domestic and foreign matters are aired with a view to change within the existing framework. In the Western sense of the term, however, it is not an "opposition" paper.

The editors and writers of Political Diary seem to be scholars, journalists and other eminent people who move close to the centres of power. Their pieces are apparently meant to serve as points of departure for policy discussions and to prevent governmental rigidity. One party member wrote about the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in Political Diary in disparaging terms, even referring to "the eyes of progressive humanity" as a reference source for approval or disapproval.

While designed to buttress the Soviet regime and meant, in any case, only for "insiders", this remarkable journal is a hopeful indication of ferment within the Soviet Union — a process which could redound to the interests of world peace and democratization.

Steps Toward Union

BRITISH COLUMBIANS WILL applaud the philosophy which is apparently motivating Nova Scotia's premier Gerald Regan as steps are being taken, however haltingly, towards practical Maritime Union. Mr. Regan referred at the recent Charlottetown conference of Maritime premiers to the "orderly management" of the public purse.

While denying he is an advocate of Union he has been co-operating with the premiers of New Brunswick and P.E.I. in working towards co-ordination of various programs, including an industrial research council, a Maritime police academy, a regional data bank and a mapping and surveys agency. If Ottawa concedes provincial ownership of offshore minerals Mr. Regan anticipates regional sharing of revenues. The Maritime premiers this week concluded their fourth meeting in less than a year.

"Orderly management" of public money could mean economies that would reduce the burden on the regional disparity funds of the federal government and this, of course, could lighten the tax load of all Canadians. It is not the most elegant reason for urging Maritime Union but from such considerations other unions have been born and have endured.

". . . let me as Prime Minister hasten to explain the remarks made by the Minister of Finance at Dawson Creek . . ."

Letters will be considered for publication only if the writer is clearly identified to the editor, who may permit pen names at his discretion. Submissions will be edited and may be condensed. Short letters are favored. None will be returned.

Flags of Competitors

Reference is made to a letter to the editor from the Reverend E. W. MacQuarrie which appeared in your newspaper on Thursday, August 12. The writer of the letter referred to was questioning the propriety of displaying the American Flag at the entrance to the Parliament Buildings on July 1 during the special Centennial meeting of the Federal Cabinet in Victoria.

It is rather unfortunate that the letter did not point out that there were eight other national flags displayed on the steps of the entrance to the buildings that morning. The explanation is quite simple and the protocol was quite correct. It will be recalled that July 1 was also the start of the London-Victoria air race, a race which Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Bennett jointly started. To honor the participants of that race and the nine countries they represented, nine national flags were displayed in front of the buildings.

I trust that this explanation clarifies the matter for your readers. — L. J. Wallace, Deputy Provincial Secretary and General Chairman, British Columbia Centennial '71 Committee.

Destruction by "Progress"

We have viewed with horrified fascination what has been happening at Royal Oak with the highway development.

It started out with the wholesale destruction of the trees which had gladdened our hearts for years. Next went the homes which were unfortunate enough to lie in the path of progress. Then started what appeared to be a strip mining operation in which hillsides were sliced away and the whole landscape was reshaped to the specification of the highways department. Mountains of rock and gravel were brought in from Cordova Bay in a perpetual convoy of trucks, leaving there a scene of utter desolation. New roads were carved out overnight running in every direction. Now we are at the "sea of blacktop" stage with an intersection of a scale and complexity that would be adequate as an approach to Manhattan.

But this is Victoria, not a great industrial centre. Was it really necessary to sacrifice all these acres of land, to say nothing of the destruction of an attractive rural area for this road complex? A much greater volume of traffic is handled at the roundabout on Douglas at Hillside in a very small area of land.

We have heard a lot in recent years of the importance, in fact the vital necessity of preserving our environment. In destroying our environment we are in effect, destroying ourselves. All solutions to problems of traffic, urban renewal etc. must be considered within this context. — Mrs. P. Larson, 5156 Santa Clara.

FROM SHANGHAI — By JAMES RESTON

Brain, Lung Surgery Under Acupuncture

IN the present delicate state of Chinese-American relations, one problem is that the few Americans permitted to visit here are not qualified to judge or even understand many of the things they are shown. China's use of needles instead of drugs as anesthetic in major surgery is only an illustration of the problem, but pending the day when experts are allowed to come back to China, the amateurs will have to report as best they can.

Reston

My wife and I spent four hours yesterday at the Hun Shan Hospital in the middle of Shanghai. This was formerly the Chinese Red Cross Hospital and is now the centre of experimentation with acupuncture in Chinese brain surgery.

We were properly sterilized and not only allowed into the operating theatre, but urged to talk to two patients while they were undergoing surgery for the removal of tumors of the brain.

They were anesthetized merely by the insertion of very thin three-inch stainless steel needles into the body — usually with one needle inserted into the web of flesh — or, as the Chinese surgeon called it, "the joined valley" between the thumb and forefinger — and they were not only perfectly conscious while their skulls were laid open before us but remarkably alert within half an hour after the operations.

Talking Through Operation

The first patient was a 41-year-old worker from the Da Chin oil field named Wang. He kept up a conversation with Dr. Chiang Ta-chieh, his surgeon, while the doctor made the incision for the removal of a small tumor in the occipital-parietal lobes of the brain.

The second patient was a 51-year-old man named Chuan Lean, who had been suffering from epilepsy as a result of a rather large tumor in the frontal lobe of the brain. He seemed sensibly puzzled by being introduced to a couple of American strangers during his ordeal but was courteous and patient, and we listened to his comments while the tumor was removed and even watched him eat orange slices and ask for more while the operation was going on.

We were also shown a subtotal thyroidectomy on a 47-year-old woman, the incision of a cystic tumor of the submaxillary gland on a 13-year-old girl, who got up from the operating table and walked to her room, and a major operation for the removal of the tubercular right lung and one rib from a 24-year-old man called Chen Chien.

More Astonishing

In some ways, the operation on Chen Chien seemed even more astonishing than the brain surgery. His only anesthetic was a single needle inserted in his right shoulder at an acupuncture point identified by the surgeon as Pi Ju. He lay on his stomach with a vast gaping hole in his back, through which you could see the gasping of the remaining lung, but was wholly conscious through the ordeal, talked quietly and coherently in answer to questions and, like the epileptic patient, ate fruit while receiving blood transfusions.

It is very hard for any non-professional to sort all this out. Even the Chinese doctors are divided about how acupuncture works and are actually arguing out different theories in the Chinese official journals.

The old traditional Chinese medical theory is that there is a "channel" in the body and that the critical acupuncture points are fixed by this channel. The modern Chinese doctors, who approached this whole subject with considerable skepticism, reject the traditional channel theory and are more inclined to believe in the theory that there are certain nerve centres that govern feeling and can be affected by needle penetration.

The interesting thing here, however, is that, while they cannot agree on the theory of how needle anesthesia works, they are increasingly convinced that it does work, and they are operating on the pragmatic evidence and not waiting for theoretical justifications.

One troubling diversion in all this for a visitor is that the impressive objective evidence of the medical uses of acupuncture is always mixed up here with subjective psychiatric and even ideological explanations.

For example, all the patients we saw on the operating table were clutching their little red books of Chairman Mao Tse-tung's philosophic and moral teachings. And the doctors and surgeons, after participating in the operations, were explaining that the success of this system depended importantly on trust between doctor and patient and on a common faith in "Mao Tse-tung thought."

Dr. Chu Hsi-chi, the "responsible person" at the Hun Shan Hospital, explained that he always had careful philosophic and ideological discussions with patients before their operations. Faith and trust were important to the success of the whole system, he said.

Aside from this, however, there is enough objective evidence of practical medical information in the use of acupuncture to justify exploration by somebody more scientific than newspaper reporters.

The Chinese government is a long way from agreeing with the United States government on international political questions, but it is fairly close to agreeing that there should be a much wider exchange of non-government personnel and non-security information. The doctors and public health officials here are clearly persuaded that needle anesthesia is effective, particularly on the upper part of the human body, and that it is cheaper, safer and less subject to post-operative complications.

Also, Chinese officials, like Chinese doctors, make a great deal of wanting to help the whole human family. So maybe the time has come to get some serious medical exchange going between Washington and Peking. Something is really going on here, and it is clearly too important to be left to newspaper reporters.

FROM LONDON — By DAVID HUMPHREYS

Missing the Chance to Show ECM Unity

THE Common Market has missed its golden opportunity for working together as a single unit to meet the challenge of the dollar crisis. President Nixon's de facto devaluation last week presented the six finance ministers with the possibility of an historic decision for joint action. But they failed to agree. Inevitably the Nixon announcement was seen from here in Common Market terms. The British seized the occasion to demonstrate that they were good Europeans. Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber went over to Brussels to consult the Six and to observe their discussions. British action would be taken in concert with "our European partners," it was disclosed on Wednesday night last week.

Humphreys

Independent Policies

By Friday night, Mr. Barber was back home trying desperately to put a brave face on the Common Market's uncommon policy. The Benelux countries salvaged something by agreeing to float their currencies, as they had been urging on their larger partners. The British went ahead, with the official exchange rate unchanged, but allowing for greater flexibility. The French established their two-tier market for dollars, and the Germans continued to let the mark float.

Exchange rates are supposed to be what the Common Market is all about these days. Apart from the present enlargement talks, the member states are preoccupied with harmonizing their monetary and fiscal policies. There is a concrete plan to make the Market a monetary and economic union, as distinct from the present glorified free-trade area, by the end of the decade.

Now the author of the plan, Commissioner Raymond Barre, admits it is useless to hide the failure of overcoming national interests. The British, it seems are proving better Europeans than the Europeans. Flexibility of exchange rates among member countries has been the greatest obstacle to a common monetary policy. And the finance ministers agreed last year to reduce and finally eliminate exchange margins among their own currencies.

After their decision last year the ministers circulated this statement: "The Community should progressively adopt a common position in its relations with third countries and in international organizations. In particular arrangements must not be allowed to prevail which allow flexibility of exchange rates in the monetary relations between the members states."

In their discussions last week the ministers failed to come to grips with both aspects of their declared aim. The failure goes back really to last May when the West Germans floated the mark, followed in floating by the Dutch. The French held fast with fixed parities until a whole new world monetary sytem could be worked out which may now safely be considered one step closer. In May the French and the Germans went home calling each other bad Europeans and they were just getting over that sulk when Mr. Nixon put them back in it.

Significant Failures

The two failures have considerable significance. The Six have a common agricultural market which depends for steady prices on fixed parities. Without them various makeshift stopgap measures have to be resorted to. Now that the floaters and the fixers have drawn up sides it is likely to be a long way back to the unity of the European ideal. In Britain the failure works both ways, coming as it does in the campaign to move public opinion behind the government's decision to join. The hard-line anti-marketeers are delighted, as if one failure among the Europeans is the final vindication of their little-England attitude. "The naked truth is this," said the Daily Express. "The Market nations will act individually and not collectively in the face of this economic challenge . . . See how the Eurocrats flounder . . ."

Yet preservation of national sovereignty is the final rallying point of the Express and its anti-Marketeer sympathizers. They evoke the unthinkable thought that Westminster will be surrendering some sacred powers of control over national sovereignty to faceless bureaucrats in Brussels. The total lesson of the Nixon announcement seems to have escaped them. This is the utter interdependence of the Western world.

Just as the welfare of thousands of Canadians is no doubt hanging on Ottawa's bid to win an exemption to the United States' imports surcharge, so the welfare of thousands more here will be affected by a surcharge which must be lived with.

Poignant Example

A few days ago the British had an even more poignant example. The vote of the senator from Kentucky in the Lockheed airbus decision saved the jobs of thousands of Englishmen at Rolls Royce, the engine builders. The lesson is more likely to be understood in terms of markets, jobs and wage levels than in the high-sounding references to sovereignty. The new threat to exports to the United States, which fortunately have been booming, adds extra weight to the campaign for joining. When one major buyer can do this to you, it will be argued, you are far better off as part of a much larger guaranteed market.

Europe's hopes and dreams for the future have been shaken. The one point of existing unity is in the common anger at the United States surcharge and that augurs poorly for future trade relations. But somehow the steps that find a solution in Britain staying out look impossibly distorted. Among the members the Market itself remains very much in business and should look more attractive than ever to a Britain looking for exports.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of August 26, 1911:

Farnham, Que. — For the first time this week, Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday addressed an English-speaking audience. It was in the old town of Farnham, with the charred and devastated area of the recent fire stretching in gloomy perspective.

The premier covered ground largely familiar in his address, but laid special emphasis on the ridiculous statements that reciprocity would bring ultimate annexation. These he denounced as insults to Canadian manhood. He said it would break his heart to have the reciprocity convention rejected by the Canadian people.

His Life, Not Death Was Real Tragedy

By TOM WICKER
New York Times

To many U.S. citizens, white and black, it will seem unlikely that the San Quentin prison authorities "set up" the killing of George Jackson, one of the so-called Soledad Brothers, particularly since several guards also were killed.

But many others, mostly black perhaps, but not a few of them white, will not find it hard to agree with his mother.

"They killed him and set him out in the yard and photographed him, and then said he tried to escape," Mrs. Jackson told Wallace Turner of the New York Times. "They've been trying for 10½ years to do it and they did it."

Most people never come into difficulties with policemen and never see the inside of a prison, even as visitors. Our tendency is to respect authority and to discount as hysterical and self-serving such views as Mrs. Jackson expressed. Authority in the U.S. is not supposed or generally thought to do such things.

* * *

But that is not necessarily the view in the black ghetto, where authority — mostly white — is deeply mistrusted. That is not the view of many in the black community everywhere who — just in the last year or so — have seen little or nothing done about the Orangeburg Massacre, the rioters shot in the back in Augusta, the students gunned down at Jackson State, Fred Hampton destroyed in his bed, and hundreds of less publicized crimes.

That is not the view of those who have seen young sons and brothers go to prison for minor offences and come out of these grim schools of crime and degeneracy — if they ever do — as hardened lawbreakers and permanent outcasts from society.

* * *

Nor are blacks — or Chicanos or Indians or other minorities — the only people who look at authority in the U.S. with misgivings or mistrust. The dead and maimed students at Kent state were white, and nothing is to be done.

Other whites in low economic and social status know what it means to be powerless and hopeless before an uncaring or oppressive law.

Many whites who are neither powerless nor hopeless are nevertheless deeply concerned, and aware that all is not as promised in the promised land.

It may well be true that Mrs. Jackson was overwrought — why not with two sons dead before the gunfire of white authority?

It is also true that, for once, this predominantly white society ought not passively to accept the opposite and usual assumption that authority is blameless and truthful, and those who defy it are fools or depraved, especially if black.

That is not just because George Jackson, the tragic and talented author of "The Prison Letters," sentenced at 19 for one year to life for confessing to a $70 robbery, had become a symbol to so many blacks — particularly the young and passionate — of the rank injustice they believe with all too much reason their people have suffered at the hands of the police and the courts and the prisons.

* * *

It is that symbolic position and the violence of his death at San Quentin that will cause so many in anger and in sorrow to agree with Mrs. Jackson that at last her defiant son was "set up."

If it can be demonstrated beyond reasonable doubt that there was no such "set up" of course, that may be useful to society in trying to hold black disaffection and anger within bounds. Almost certainly, and for just that reason, there already are stirrings within the liberal power structure to press an investigation to the limit.

A better reason for challenging official explanations and general assumptions

Mrs. Georgia Jackson grieves for her son in the San Quentin case is to get at the truth of George Jackson's life, not just the truth of his death. Whether or not he was shot while escaping or was in some way "set up" for killing, his life was the real tragedy. It is indisputably a U.S. tragedy.

He was, that is, not merely a victim of racism, although he was certainly that. He also was a victim of the poverty and hunger and disadvantage that are not the lot of blacks alone in this richest country on earth.

* * *

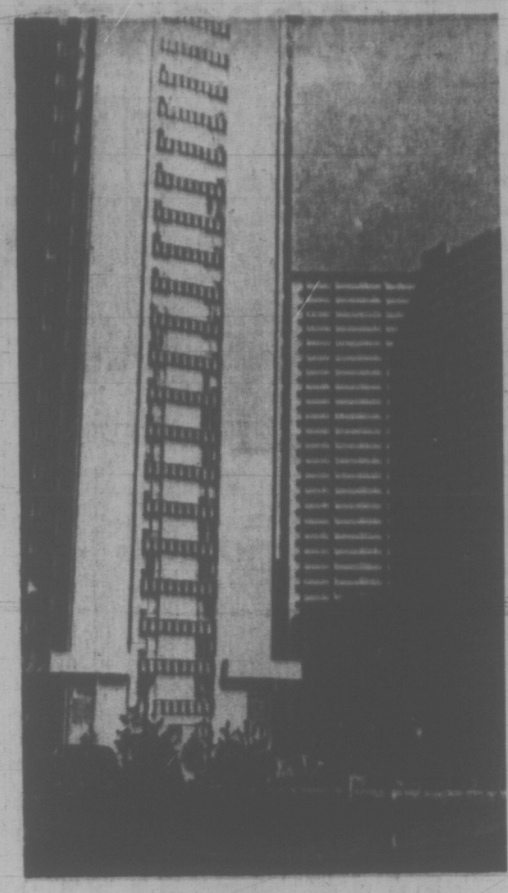
Its schools treated him with contempt. He was shot at age 15 by its violent lawmen. Its courts knew nothing better to do with him than to send him to its harsh prisons, where he spent a third of his life. There, and in his brief years on the streets of Chicago and Los Angeles — by his own account — he learned that "the jungle is still the jungle, be it composed of trees or skyscrapers and the law of the jungle is bite or be bitten."

* * *

A talented writer, a sensitive man, a potential leader and political thinker of great persuasiveness, George Jackson was destroyed long before he was killed at San Quentin. There are thousands upon thousands like him — black and white, who will be or have been destroyed, too. Until this wanton destruction of humanity in the U.S. is seen for what it is, it will go on, and consume us all.

Knocking Down The Myth About Highrises

They Don't Mean More Money For Cities



THE GLOBE AND MAIL

It is doubtful whether $25,000 of taxpayers' money ever purchased a more valuable piece of information than that which lies at the heart of the study by Price Waterhouse Associates on the revenue advantages of high-rise development in the Borough of York. Evidently there is very little advantage; certainly not enough to make high-rise assessment the compelling argument it has been assumed to be.

The reverberations of this finding — arrived at methodically by a firm of highly respected consultants, will go rumbling far beyond the borders of the Borough of York. There is no reason to believe that the principle apparently established by Price Waterhouse is not equally applicable in other municipalities.

As the first thunderclap rolled over the City of Toronto, Alderman Fred Beavis was observed to be wandering around in a state of shock, his hands clapped over his ears as though an obscenity had been uttered. His disbelief verged on despair. "They are talking through their hats," he said unhappily.

Quoting rapidly from the scriptures, Mr. Beavis went on: "You're getting 10 times the assessment from a given area with 2½ to three times the coverage . . . I just can't see the credibility of it; it just doesn't make sense."

Well, actually it does make sense if you look at more than the simple input of revenue. Price Waterhouse went into the subject a little more deeply, considering seven key development sites in the borough, one built on, one under development, and five potential high-rise sites.

Attention was devoted to the cost of services generated by development — high-rise or single-family — and this cost was compared to the revenue benefits. The study found that if the best redevelopment decision were made in each of the seven locations, the average taxpayer in York would have saved only $5.76 on his 1969 tax bill.

If apartments had been built on all seven sites, his savings would have been $2.12. If two key sites had been developed for low-density residential housing, the loss to the average taxpayer would have been only $1.96 on his 1969 taxes.

In other words, the difference between one choice and another is sufficiently small that it could be discounted as an important element in the political decision about the type of development that should be encouraged.

York had good reason to be interested in seeking guidance. The borough has a heavy preponderance of single-family dwellings and the income level of its citizens is below the Metro Toronto average. Naturally, the question arose as to whether a change in emphasis, designed to encourage apartment development, would improve the tax revenue situation and perhaps ease a tax rate which is the highest in Metro.

The study suggests this would not be a particularly rewarding course to follow. The other options open to York will be a matter for further study; the important thing in the meantime is that a myth has been exploded. Whether or not there are strong sociological or other arguments favoring high-rise development remains to be seen, but at least the argument about increased assessment has been cut down to size.

Possibly this development fits into place with other changes in our thinking, or challenges to traditional thinking, about expanding economies, bigger buildings, more expressways, and growth, growth, growth. Certainly planners in other municipalities have questioned assumptions about the financial virtues of high-rise development, and now that York has led the way they should press for further study.

It may not be necessary to prove the same principle, municipality by municipality; possibly research initiated at the Metro level could proceed from the basis of the York report, with advantage to all area municipalities. Land values are not the same everywhere, and so it would be instructive to learn among other things whether the new principle would be affected by the variations.

One of the more significant phrases in the Price Waterhouse study reads: "The taxpayers of the borough are therefore free under present conditions to choose the kind of community they wish without incurring financial hardship . . ." If this proves to be a general truth, the whole philosophical slant of municipal planning will be significantly changed.

The Freep's Sad Saga of Survival

By CHARLES FOLEY
The Observer

LOS ANGELES — Can the oldest, most successful underground newspaper in the United States beat the capitalist system, and live? Can it survive the machinations of its own staff, who accuse the editor of deserting the "Movement"? Has it sold out to the "Porno Mafia"? Will it be able to pay next week's bills?

Not for Everyone

These and other curious questions are being answered in the saga of the Los Angeles Free Press, a week-by-week cliff-hanger that has Southern California on tenterhooks. The Freep — as it is familiarly known — is a success story of a kind among America's 600 underground newspapers which have an estimated readership of 10 million. But this month it ran into serious trouble — financial, ethical, legal and political.

The Freep's mixture of radical politics, avant-garde criticism of the arts and pornographic ads is not, plainly, everyone's cup of tea. But it does provide a platform for dissident minorities, an "alternative voice" and a wide spectrum of information on what radical groups of all political colors are doing. Many who dislike the newspaper's controversial editorial policy would be sorry to see it die.

With a circulation of 93,000, the Freep is surpassed in size only by New York's Screw in the world of underground newspapers. Why has it flourished when so many rivals failed? Perhaps because it has opened its columns to so many different groups on the left — Women's Lib, Chicanos, black militants, gay (homosexual) liberationists, conservationists, doctrinaire Leninists, mystics and Maoists, revolutionaries, rock bands, cultural guerrillas . . . if it's radical, then it is in the 55-page Freep.

Hard Knocks

The hand of editor-publisher Art Kunkin must also have played a large part in the paper's growth over its seven-year life. Kunkin, 43, a former union worker and Socialist Party official, is dedicated to the idea of editing by collective, and all that; but he also knows a thing or two about survival through compromise with the existing financial structure. He has taken some hard knocks.

Loathed by Governor Ronald Reagan and California's ultra-conservative establishment, the Freep has been persistently harassed, says Kunkin. Some 18 months ago, commercial printers banded together in a refusal to print the Free Press because of its radical policies. Kunkin bought his own printing plant, and soon found himself ensnared in a mass of business detail. Management was incompetent, machinery proved faulty, losses grew.

At the height of these financial problems, the Freep inadvisedly published "as a public service" a list of names and addresses of Californian narcotics agents. The state gleefully brought a series of actions, and hit the paper with well over $50,000 in civil court judgments.

Grumbling

The small publishing empire established by Kunkin began to crumble. Three Free Press bookstores closed down. The printing plant was sealed by the Internal Revenue. The grumbles of a much-tried staff rose to a crescendo.

Editor Kunkin had become a bourgeois capitalist, they complained. He paid himself $1,000 a week and lived in a $42,000 hillside home. He drove a big car equipped with a telephone. He paid low wages, exploited workers by using volunteer help. He condemned capitalist exploitation, yet filled the Freep's pages with sexist ads that exploited women. (The staff includes not a few women's libbers.)

REAGAN
. . . loathing

This month came the financial crunch. Kunkin tried to sell the Freep to a radical Beverly Hills attorney, Barry Bernstein. Bernstein lasted a week, then fled from the paper's massive problems, while pickets marched in the streets outside, demanding their pay. The Freep's creditors moved into the shambles and foreclosed on the stock and assets. It was reportedly $100,000 in debt — good going for a journal that clears $200,000 a year before taxes.

The paper's masthead now identified the publishers as "therapy Productions Inc.," a firm whose leading light was Marvin Miller, a well-known figure in the porno industry. He has been convicted three times of mailing obscene material.

'More Important'

Kunkin was brought back as editor, but was not eager to talk about his new bosses. "Let malicious enemies of the Free Press explore the reality of Therapy Productions," he said. "They will find that despite all business reverses I still have editorial control, and that is more important than ownership. If I was compelled to say things I did not believe in, I would not be here."

As to whether Kunkin had ever abused his editorial position by using the paper in an "anti-movement" manner, "only blind personal enemies can really believe that."

Of these there were quite a few, and they banded together at a meeting in Hollywood to plot Kunkin's purge. Nothing came of this three-hour meeting, and Kunkin still sits in the editor's chair. Everything, it seems, will go on as before.

A Little More Insincerity, Please

By SIDNEY CALLAHAN
National Catholic Reporter

Whatever happened to charm? I don't mean by "charm" the make-up tricks girls used to learn in so-called charm schools; my concern is for what's inside the head (of both sexes). I'm resigned already to the unisex jeans and army boots of the younger generation, but it's the inability to converse that's getting to me. Even with my eyes closed, my ears are suffering from generation gap culture shock.

Callahan

Why must monosyllables and rude silence be de rigeur? Okay, so I might faint if a young person stood up when an adult entered the room, but is even a smile or direct greeting too compromising? The idea of being amiable and charming in a social situation seems anathema, or pretty weird.

* * *

I trace the present rude mood to the young's overemphasis upon sincerity. They have confused insincerity with dishonesty when they are not the same thing.

I would have them meditate on the dictum of that nifty writer Nabokov: Art should possess harmony, complexity, and splendid insincerity. As in art, so in life and the art of conversation; can we "right on" and "hear it" for splendid insincerity?

* * *

It's inevitable, really. Conversation and manners do not, cannot and should not express only deep, deep feelings inside. There just isn't that much deep feeling on instant replay. One point of conversation is to construct and create new feelings by using manners and customary social exchanges as a first serve or parry.

By developing an art of conversation with splendid insincerity we can delight each other with wit or tap our fantasies for fun. It's even a good way of getting to know you, as the inventors of the Rorschach ink-blot tests discovered.

If we balk at treading the light and lively fantastic, we too will fall into the pit of puritan uptightness. Who can be so ponderous and pompous as the man who weighs and means every word that passes his lips? I say "man" because more males contract the hoof and mouth disease of heavy "yep and nope" sincerity. They catch it from old westerns or Marlon Brando movies.

If we let the young insist on maximum, masculine sincerity at every moment, we may be doomed to give up speech altogether. In another context St. Augustine said we should not even say God was ineffable since that was already to say too much about him. Well, true enough in a way, but what goes for God, goes for other people and life situations as well.

Who can adequately express deep love or affection or deep anything else, without sounding slightly grotesque? Better to attempt less and retreat to a measure of superficiality.

Maybe if our young people could be convinced to be amiable and articulate they would not have to lapse into such extremes of profanity and maudlin self-expression.

* * *

The embarrassing do-it-yourself wedding ceremony in Love Story (in fact Love Story itself) was typical of a whole generation whose ear for expressive language has been ruined. The standard of sincerity has led many into the land of G-L-O-P and other four letter words. All this despite inheriting the English language — a tongue rich in irony, wit and other splendidly insincere strategems of charm.

Prices Increase On Foreign Cars

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. (AP) — Volkswagen of America and Toyota Motor Sales announced Wednesday price increases on their 1971 models that arrived in the United States after President Nixon imposed a new import duty on foreign cars.

A British firm had announced a similar increase earlier.

In addition, the Nissan Motor Corp., U.S. distributor of the Datsun, said in Gardena, Calif., Wednesday that its 1972 models, scheduled to go on sale Sept. 1, will be increased in price to reflect the new import duty and higher manufacturing costs. It said there will be no price increase on 1971 models.

A spokesman for Toyota Motors Sales, U.S.A. Inc., said in Torrance, Calif., that the average increase on its models would be $100 or four per cent.

It said the price boost was effective immediately.

The Volkswagen increases averaged between $100 and $200 at port of entry, and a spokesman said adjustments by dealers could mean increases as high as 6½ per cent.

British Leyland Motors Inc. announced the prices of its 1971 cars will rise temporarily by 3½ per cent.

A spokesman for the British firm, which markets Austin, MG, Morris, Riley, Jaguar, Rover and Triumph cars in the United States, said last Friday that if Congress acts on Nixon's recommendation that the seven-per-cent excise tax on cars be repealed "we will again revise prices and we anticipate that the final result will be a reduction from the pre-surcharge level."

The Leyland spokesman said the temporary increase will apply to all 1971 cars which cleared customs after midnight Aug. 15.

Hair Styling

A good hairstyle does something good for you. A way-out style or any style that calls emphatic attention to itself as a hairstyle per se, regardless of adaptability to individual physical features such as the neck, the chin, the width and the height of the forehead and the general shape of the head, falls short of a good hairstyle. Therefore: Select your stylist with great care!

Aussie $ Rate

CANBERRA (AP) — The Australian dollar will be fixed with the pound sterling on a day-to-day basis, Prime Minister William McMahon told the House of Representatives today. McMahon said in the present state of uncertainty it is not possible to settle on a firm exchange rate for the Australian dollar.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Gr. West

A subsidiary of Birmingham Small Arms Co. Ltd. has been bought by Vancouver-based Great West Steel Industries Ltd. for a sum in excess of $600,000.

The firm, Birtley Engineering Ltd., of Chesterfield, has established coal and mineral prospecting business in western Canada, the UK and Australia and is engaged in bulk sampling, screening and supplying coal processing equipment.

Great West has six plants in the west, includes design and erection of steel structures, heat exchangers and mineral analytical work in its field, worth about $20 million a year.

Canarctic

Canarctic Resources Ltd. reports it has negotiated a 5½-cent increase in the price of gas from its recently-discovered Golden Dome field in southwestern Montana.

It will get 22.75 cents a thousand cubic feet for production from two wells drilled so far. Four more wells will be drilled jointly with Stampede Resources Ltd. next month.

Silknit

First half profits of Silknit Ltd. are well above the level of a year ago, partly through a gain that added 26 cents a share to $1.18 earnings.

Sales were up 20 per cent to $7.6 million and earnings were $304,857 ($1.44 a share) vs. $104,615 (49 cents, a year ago.

Earnings in the second quarter were $120,761 (57 cents) compared with $62,746 (30 cents) on sales of $3.8 million and $3 million respectively.

Working capital at June 30 was $4.2 million compared with $4.1 million Dec. 31 and $3.88 million in 1970.

Landings Drop

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fish landings by British Columbia fishermen in July were worth $13.9 million, about $3 million less than landings for July, 1970, fisheries officials said Wednesday.

Dom. Textile

Dominion Textile Ltd. reports net income of $5.2 million ($1.97 a share) for the year ended June 30, compared with $4.6 million ($1.76) for the previous 12 months.

In a report to shareholders, the company attributed the 14 per cent increase to a larger volume of shares without a corresponding increase in overhead, to lower coast of raw materials and financial charges and to improved plant efficiency.

Can. Delhi

Canadian Delhi Oil Ltd. increased its net income to $1 million (12.5 cents a share) during the first half of 1971.

In the first six months of 1970, the company earned $765,000 (9.2 cents).

Production of crude oil dropped slightly but was offset by price increases and lower rental, lease and foreign exchange charges.

Canadian Delhi participated in 12 wells with 11 dry holes and one potential oil well.

Crestbrook

First half operations of Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. resulted in a $2.59 million loss, but general improvement started in May and June extended into July.

The company said it lost $3.08 million in the first half of 1970.

In the six months this year sales amounted to $15 million, up $2.8 million and production volumes were all higher.

Working capital at the end of the period was $3.4 million. Pulp remains weak but further improvement in lumber and plywood markets is expected.

Alta. Gas

The earnings of Alberta Natural Gas Co. Ltd. increased to $833,000 during the first half this year from $628,000 in the opening six months of 1970.

Because of an increase in the number of outstanding shares, earnings dropped to 70 cents from 74 cents a share.

The company, a shipper of natural gas for distribution firms and other pipelines, has agreed to increase its rate of return to 8¾ per cent from 8 per cent effective Oct. 1 and expects the change to increase earnings by $80,000 in the final half.

BIGGER THAN BENNETT DAM

Mica Tenders Called

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority Wednesday called tenders for supply and installation of power generating facilities in the Mica Dam that will eventually exceed the W. A. C. Bennett dam in production capacity.

The contract, for four of six generators, will be the largest single generator order placed by hydro. No firm date has been set for calling tenders on the others.

Mica Dam will have a generating capacity of 2.61 million kilowatts, when all six are installed, 383,000 more kilowatts than the Bennett Dam will have once it reaches full capacity.

The Mica Dam announcement marked a flurry of activity in power facility construction in the southeast corner of B.C. Hydro also plans to build the Kootenay Canal Power Project, between Nelson and Castlegar, and to reconstruct the Whatshan generating station on the west shore of Arrow Lake.

A hydro spokesman said the decision to equip Mica Dam with power generating capa- earlier this summer.
city at this time was made

Construction of the dam, located 85 miles north of Revelstoke, began in 1967 to regulate the flow of water in accordance with the Columbia River Treaty between the United States and Canada and to build eventually a maximum power generation plant.

Each of the four generators will have a maximum continuous output capacity of 435,000 kilowatts. The first two are scheduled for operation by September, 1976, the third by January, 1977 and the fourth by September, 1977.

Construction of the dam, to be in operation by April, 1973, is more than 75 per cent complete, the spokesman said. The 650-foot structure will be North America's highest earthfill dam.

Closing date for bids is Nov. 23.

Secret Soviet Journal Reveals How Khrushchev Was Deposed

This is the second article about a group of reformers working within Russia and their until now secret monthly journal, Political Diary, in which much of the material is highly critical of Soviet policy. The group, however, is staunch-y Marxist and is more in the form of a critical 'Opposition' party. The Diary reveals many facts until now unknown about Soviet political life.

By ANTHONY ASTRACHAN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Political Diary began as Nikita Kruschev fell. Its early issues contained several articles on the ousted leader, including one that mentioned that there had been two attempts on Kruschev's life while he was in power.

One attempt blew up a Soviet navy cruiser only minutes after Khrushchev left it. (The editor of PD noted that despite this Khrushchev never developed a "pathological suspiciousness" like Stalin, and walked unafraid in the streets of Moscow with U.S. millionaire Cyrus Eaton and then vice-president Richard Nixon.)

The December, 1964 issue contained a report, which while it did not discuss foreign-policy reasons for Khrushchev's overthrow, was candid by the standards of the time and provided a fascinating picture of the politburo mind at work.

RETIREMENT

Anastas Mikoyan, then a politburo member and head of state, supported Stalin, Khrushchev and Brezhnev in turn and is the only recent politburo member to have gone voluntarily into honorable retirement.

Mikoyan appears in the party register as a member of the party organization of the Krasny Proletary (red proletarian) factory. A party meeting took place at the factory on Dec. 14. Among the notes sent in . . . was one with the following question:

"What is the reason for the unexpected removal of Comrade Khrushchev, and why was his removal delayed?" Mikoyan answered in approximately the following terms:

There is no denying Khrushchevs achievements, for they are great — in the struggle for peace, the liquidation of the remnants of the personality cult, the development of socialist democracy, and the preparation and management of the most important party congresses . . .

MORE ERRORS

More and more errors and serious shortcomings, however, accumulated in the work and leadership of Khrushchev These shortcomings were largely due to his subjective impulses, and manifested themselves because of his age (he is 70) and his sclerosis.

This made him irritable, impetuous, indiscreet and restless. He could not work more than three hours at a stretch. He was always wanting to be on the move. In all his actions he tended to improvisation and snap decisions.

His speeches contained more emotion than reason, and once he started speaking he could not stop. You have read good speeches by him, but they all had to be corrected by the central committee, because on delivery he would wander off the point and say many superfluous things not written in the text . . .

PUSHING PEOPLE

When serious difficulties arose with agriculture, Khrushchev made no attempt to find the underlying, objective causes, but started pushing people around and re-shuffling them, although the causes of the difficulties were not connected with the people in charge . . .

Khrushchev suffered from an uninterrupted organizing itch, an inability to leave well enough alone . . . but he split the party organization into a branch for industry and a branch for agriculture and proposed to subdivide the agricultural organization further.

The changeover to the seven-year plan was quite irregular. When the planning organs prepared the seven-year plan proposal, Khrushchev suggested to Satyukov, (then the editor of Pravda) that the proposal be published in Pravda before it had been discussed by the general committee presidium and pleneum.

The central committee, confronted with the fait accompli of publication, had no choice but to approve the proposal. We are now going back to five-year plans again.

When the Khruchchev question was before the central committee presidium, 22 people spoke, to the point and without abuse. Khrushchev himself was in the chair. We did not publish a secret letter about it, not wishing to wash dirty linen in public or exaggerate the affair. We decided to tell the party and the people ourselves, face to face. I think comrade Khrushchev was dealt with constitutionally.

The presidium remained practically unchanged . . . Khrushchev was always away on his travels, so for practical purposes Brezhnev ran the central committee apparatus and Kosygin ran the council of ministers (even while Khrushchev was still in power).

So a good job has been done. A normal state of affairs has been established in the central committee leadership, everyone speaks his mind freely, where before they hardly dared. They all have their say, where only Khrushchev spoke before.

Ship Rescues Four on Raft

DOVER, England (UPI) — A cargo ship rescued four Britons, one of them a pregnant woman, in the English Channel Wednesday after their unsuccessful attempt to reach France on a home-made raft powered by an old car.

The Finnish ship Heros put the four ashore at Dover after their raft was hit by rough seas. The five-months pregnant woman was "not too well," a hospital spokesman said.

The group left the English coast Tuesday on a 40-foot raft lashed to 24 oil drums. The old car powered the red and white paddles.

They said they planned to reach France, sail up a river, drive the car to Paris, and return next weekend.

Martin Lewis, 33-year-old father of three and self-confessed eccentric, said "I don't think we were daft in trying to cross the channel." He said he would "build a better craft with more power and try again."

They were almost swept out to sea when a big wave broke over them. "At one stage we were all scared stiff. We were very pleased to see the ship," said Christine Smith, the woman.

The ship came to their rescue after they fired a flare and signaled SOS on the car's head lights.

Dead Woman Identified

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A woman killed Monday night when a 49-passenger Greyhound bus plunged down a 20-foot embankment after colliding with a panel truck was identified here as Mrs. Colein Balan, 48, of Calgary.

Twelve other persons were injured in the collision on a two-lane stretch of Trans-Canada highway, 12 miles west of this interior British Columbia town.

Police said Mrs. Balan, one of 43 passengers on the Vancouver-bound bus, was thrown through the windshield and crushed between the bus and trees 200 feet off the highway.

Six bus passengers and three persons in the truck remained in hospital Tuesday, four in serious condition. Three others, including truck driver Daniel Ediger of Kamloops, were treated in hospital and released. Injuries ranged from shock to fractured spines.

Youths Rescued

CALGARY (CP) — Two youths stranded at 9,100 feet on Mount Rundle for two nights were rescued earlier this week, officials of Banff National Park announced Wednesday.

Bob McIntosh and Gary Bailey, both 18, from Saskatchewan set out Sunday morning with light clothing and no food.

When they failed to return by Monday afternoon, friends notified park wardens and a search party set out about dusk.

The two were found insufficiently equipped on a ledge about 7 a.m. the next morning, unable to move either up or down. They were suffering from exposure and a lack of food but were uninjured.

Worm Aid Studied

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan farmers may be financially compensated for costs resulting from the infestation of the province's rapeseed crops by the bertha army worm, Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Wednesday.

The provincial government may have to wait until after harvesting is well under way before a complete assessment of damage can be determined, he said in an interview.

Trade War Possible

SASKATOON (CP) — Otto Lang, federal minister in charge of the wheat board, said the move by the United States to devalue the U.S. dollar could lead to a worldwide trade war which could be disastrous to Canada.

Any move away from free trade is dangerous, he said, adding that Canada must remain cool and watchful.

He told a joint service club meeting the closer the world moves to free trade, the more he is convinced the world is better off."

WINNIPEG (CP) — Officials of the United Way of Greater Winnipeg have taken exception to Manitoba Highways Minister Joe Borowski's "uncalled for" statement that he will not support the organization because one of its members refers patients to New York for abortions.

A statement Wednesday assured city residents "no voluntary dollars of the United Way are used to pay any part of therapeutic abortions being performed locally or anywherelse."

Borowski has publicly opposed the practice of the Mount Carmel clinic of referring women to doctors in New York, where abortion on demand is legal.

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Harry Strom said Wednesday the federal government should consider economic and trade restraints similar to those applied by President Nixon to combat inflation in the United States.

AMONG HUNDREDS IN BOLIVIA:

Death of a Priest

By LEWIS DIUGUID

LA PAZ, Bolivia (WP)

Among the hundred or so Bolivians who died in last weekend's coup was a Canadian-born priest, shot down as he tried to help the wounded street-fighters.

The last years of the Rev. Mauricio Lefebre, a naturalized Bolivian, were as turbulent as the social turmoil that was wracked his adopted homeland. He exemplifies the revolutionary priesthood that has spread wide the limits of Catholic action in South America.

Most of the priests who are struggling for rapid social change here are, like Lefebre, foreign-born. But then, 300 of the 900 priests in Bolivia are foreigners, and only seven of the 24 bishops are Bolivian.

One reason for the scarcity of native churchmen is that in the bitter rural poverty no sons can be spared to the priesthood. The foreigners who have volunteered to help have often turned to radical action in the fact of economic and social stagnation.

Lefebre came to Bolivia along with several other French-Canadians of the Oblate Order in 1952, and worked seven years with the tin miners of Catavi down-country.

Miner's living conditions are grim in the best of times, and the last decade has not been kind to Bolivian tin. In 1959 Lefebre came to La Paz slums to continue labor organizing.

The next year he founded the school of sociology at the national university of San Marcos here. Students of the university have always been a radical and strong force in politics. They turned in great numbers of sociology, making the school one of the largest in the university. He was its dean.

In the late 60s, following the defeat of Ernesto Che Guevara's guerrilla band in the Bolivian wilds, many students moved from Marxist parlor politics to take up arms.

Last year a band of mostly extreme left Christian Democratic youth tried to start a guerrilla army in Teoponte. Some of them starved and others were killed by the army.

Lefebre led a progaganda-laden hunger strike by priests demanding that the bodies of the fallen guerrillas — eulogized as heroes by officials and students alike at the university — be rendered up by the army for burial.

Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia was the president of a government that started out sufficiently socialist to interest the students. But they began to have their doubts which were confirmed when Ovando deported five churchmen including Lefrebre to Argentina.

With that, the near chaos that is chronic here built to a climax last October and Ovando was driven from power. His replacement, Gen. Juan Jose Torres, brought back the exiled priests as a first order of business.

Two close friends of Lefebre, who say they fear reprisals following last weekend's coup, gave this description of Lefebre's attitude toward guerrilla warfare:

He would never counsel a student to take up arms, but he would respect such a decision. While he thought that the Guevara and Teoponte ventures were disasters from a practical point of view, he felt they were great victories in the battle to build social awareness — "concientizacion" — in the masses.

Since his return from exile, Lefrbre joined a group of priests petitioning for the right to reject celibacy, led an effort to have the papal nuncio returned to the Vatican for alleged interference in the national church; gave a public homage to a slain guerrilla, and encouraged sociology students in their seizure of an institute adjacent to the university which was built by U.S. aid.

When the fight to overthrow Gen. Torres was most violent in La Paz last Saturday, the Red Cross called the Oblate parish house for volunteers to help the wounded.

Lefebre responded. He was driving the order's truck to one of the bloodiest scenes when he was hit. Witnesses say he fell into the street and was shot again, apparently by sniper fire ripping through the exposed street. The snipers were supporting Gen. Torres.

The body lay there for hours until the firing died down at sunset. Lefebre was 48 years old.

FIRE CHIEF WANTS TO STAY

Four Months Means $63 More

Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland will go before an open meeting of council Monday night to fight for a four-month extension of his job.

He was to retire Tuesday and council has appointed deputy fire chief Glen Robbins to succeed him.

Contacted today, Sutherland said he wants the extension past his scheduled retirement because changes this year to the Superannuation Act would increase his pension by $63 a month.

If he retires before the end of the year, his pension is based on the best nine years of pay and 1971 is not included.

But if he works to the end of the year, his pension will be based on his best eight years of pay — including 1971.

* * *

"The way it is set up now, the most advantageous time to retire is Dec. 31," said Sutherland.

He asked council's personnel committee for the extension, was turned down, and then sought an open council meeting.

"I am asking for the same consideration as the commission accorded the police chief," Sutherland said.

(It was announced June 7 that the term of police chief W. A. Pearson had been extended to the end of the year. He was due to retire Sept. 22).

* * *

Mayor Hugh Curtis said a comparison with the police chief's extension is "irrelevant" because the police commission received request from the chief for an extension. A successor to Pearson has not been named.

Curtis said personnel committee made its earlier decision regarding Sutherland's retirement and Robbins' appointment "in the absence of any request from him for an extension."

The decisions, he said, now are subject "only to a reversal of council opinion, a reversal I would oppose."

Sutherland said he regrets he did not know earlier the effects of pension changes but he only found out, accidentally, just over four weeks ago.

Liquor Ad Ban To Be Defied By Magazines

By PETER McNELLY

The publishers of Maclean's and Saturday Night magazines said today they will continue to publish liquor advertisements in their editions reaching British Columbia despite a provincial ban effective Sept. 1.

September issues of Maclean's are already being sold in B.C. They contain liquor ads, as will the September edition of Saturday Night.

"As far as we're concerned, our understanding is that the government regulation does not apply to national magazines," Lloyd Hodkinson, Maclean's publisher, said in a telephone interview from Toronto.

William Nobleman, publisher of Saturday Night, said he thinks the ban is unconstitutional.

"We have run all our liquor advertising just as we normally would have — with one exception, and that was a case where the company asked their ad be withdrawn," Nobleman said.

The ban came as a change in the Government Liquor Act during the 1971 legislative session. It applies to all forms of liquor advertising.

Publishing companies Maclean-Hunter Ltd. and Time Canada Ltd. have applied to B.C. Supreme Court seeking a declaratory judgment on the constitutionality of the amendment.

Nobleman said his legal advice is that B.C. does not have the power to ban liquor ads or prevent distribution of publications which carry them.

"IMPOSSIBLE"

"They (the B.C. government) are making the publication of national magazines in this country impossible," said Nobleman.

"If there's going to be a national press in this country, I don't know how much of this kind of crap we can put up with and survive."

Nobleman said he will only believe Bennett is going to stop "pushing liquor" when he announces closure of government liquor stores.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday the government will pass no regulations clarifying the legislation on liquor. Peterson also said no regulations explaining the government's 1971 Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act will be passed.

These acts speak for themselves, Peterson said.

Hodkinson and Nobleman said the Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act will pose no problems, because it has been superseded by a similar federal law banning tobacco advertising throughout Canada.

Lack of government clarification about liquor advertising has confused B.C.'s major magazine wholesalers, who say they cannot predict what government action will be taken against them if they continue to distribute publications with liquor ads.

A spokesman for Vancouver Magazine Ltd. said today they will adopt a wait-and-see attitude pending outcome of the applications or declaratory judgment.

Aside from Maclean-Hunter and Time Canada, applications have been made by four tobacco companies seeking clarification of the Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act.

NO WORRY

Nobleman said the liquor ad ban "isn't worth worrying about" as far as Saturday Night is concerned, because only 3 per cent of its sales are in British Columbia.

Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. and Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd. say they have been advised by lawyers that billboards and other outside advertising signs can remain pending outcome of the Supreme Court applications.

J.C. Melville, general manager of Victoria Press Ltd. said Wednesday the company will not publish advertising which contravenes any statute.

He said there was no question about the liquor ban but added the tobacco prohibition seems vague.

FUTURE STUDENT at the University of Victoria, Judy Stewart, 17, of Penticton, crowned Miss PNE this week, will study political science and English. She won PNE title over 38 other contestants. A spokesman for the four judges said Miss Stewart was chosen for her "warmth, outgoing but ladylike personality, and her presence."

Sick Leave Dispute On Ferries Settled

A dispute over sick leave regulations on B.C. Ferries has been settled following an 83 per cent vote among unlicensed employees.

Norm Thornber, business agent for the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said the ferry authority agreed to rescind new regulations on sick leave and to retract letters warning 200 employees they could be fired if they were absent from work in the next six months.

Thornber said the union approves of a clause added to existing regulations covering absenteeism. "The clause was designed to eliminate malingerers and the ferry authority was quite justified in insisting it be inserted," he said.

Teacher Surplus Idea Detrimental to Plans

The mistaken notion that B.C. is facing a teacher surplus "might affect plans for someone wanting to become a teacher," Johann Phillipson, deputy minister of education, said today.

A provincial government report issued recently warns of a shortage of teachers in B.C. in the 70s, not a surplus as there is now.

CLARIFICATION

The report was an informational item sent to district superintendents of schools by the government's department of education. It contradicts a Canada Manpower report released earlier this month which predicted a surplus of teachers in Canada in the next decade.

Phillipson said the report is intended to clarify the B.C. situation regarding teacher jobs.

PHILLIPSON
. . . expects shortage

Potential teacher "might think they could go through their training and then end up without a job," he said.

Phillipson said the years 1964 through 1966 had been low-birth years — when fewer babies were born than usual. The result was that when the lower number of children reached school age, six years later the numbers of school children dropped correspondingly.

However in 1967, births maintained their usual increase. Phillipson said, so that starting in 1973, there will be greater numbers of children entering schools.

"And they will need teachers and teaching facilities," he said.

Another factor is the traditionally-high influx of school-age children from outside the province, Phillipson said.

Next fall, about 530,000 pupils are expected in the province's schools, an increase of 12,500 from last year. Phillipson said the usual increase is about 20,000 and this year's increase "is all part of the reduction of numbers affected by the birth rate."

The number of children above grade three is higher than in previous years, he said, and when the children born in 1967 enter the system, schools will start filling again.

(The Greater Victoria School Board has 2,800 teacher applications on file but has only hired 128 for the forthcoming year.)

A Canada Manpower spokesman said today the Manpower report on teacher jobs cited "general oversupply" as the reason for predicting a surplus of teachers in the 1970s.

POPULAR COURSE

"There are a lot of students taking this course," he said. "It seems to be quite popular."

With a large number of teachers being trained, there might not be enough jobs to go around, he said, and indicated that population figures could stay low due to the public's lack of desire to have children.

POLICE OFFICER TO TAKE DRUG COURSE

Sgt. Bill Chisholm is expected to take a year's leave of absence from the Saanich police department to become involved in the province's drug-alcohol education program, Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

Curtis, also chairman of the police commission, said Chisholm has "done an outstanding job" in youth work and drug education in Saanich.

He will recommend the commission approve Chisholm's leave of absence to join the provincial program.

Police Seek Robbery Car

City police are searching for a car they believe was used in an attempted robbery at the Tally-Ho Travelodge, 3030 Douglas, Monday morning.

The vehicle is described as a 1967 metallic grey Chevrolet Malibu.

ONTARIO DRIVER KILLED

The driver of a small car was killed and his woman passenger seriously injured this morning in a rear-end collision on the Pat Bay highway at Sidney.

RCMP in Sidney withheld names of the victims but said they were in their early twenties and from Ontario. The woman is at Rest Haven Hospital with head injuries and cuts.

Officers said their car was northbound on the highway when it rammed the rear of another northbound car which was turning left on to Weiler Avenue. The crash occurred about 9:30 a.m.

The name of the driver of the front car was not immediately available but police said he was from Alaska and currently working in Sidney. He was uninjured.

More Pollution Control Help Urgently Needed—Ministers

Municipal affairs ministers from nine provinces called Wednesday for "vastly increased federal resources" to be made available for pollution control programs.

In a communique winding up three days of meetings here, the ministers all provinces except Newfoundland attended — agreed that the need for more federal anti-pollution funds was urgent.

The ministers said existing federal programs for pollution control, including sewage system aid, "fall far short of a comprehensive attack on the problems of environmental management."

The communique contained little to bolster the hopes of municipal governments that they will be given a voice in inter-governmental consultations on urban problems.

DELAYED

The question of whether municipalities could be included in consultation was put off until after a special federal-provincial conference on urban problems which the ministers are seeking.

The communique said federal Urban Affairs Minister Robert Andras agreed that such a meeting should be held soon. Andras attended part of Monday's session with the ministers, but was not present at the closing.

NO OBJECTION

The conference agreed that a committee studying the possibility of including municipalities in the consultation process should continue its work.

But it was indicated that some provinces won't agree to including municipalities in the process until they are satisfied with Ottawa's plans for its new department of urban affairs.

There was concern expressed with the constitutional problems related to municipal inclusion. Manitoba's minister of municipal affairs, Howard Pawley, made clear his province has no objection to a three-level conference on urban affairs on constitutional grounds because it wouldn't be a decision-making meeting.

Dalton Bales, Ontario's minister of municipal affairs, said there was agreement from all provinces and from the federal minister that the provinces must have primacy in municipal affairs.

B.C. Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, conference chairman, was asked about a report — described as a "leak" from the conference and believed to come from a federal source — that he was one of the major stumbling blocks to recognizing the municipal voice.

LEAK, DRIP

"You should attach as much importance to the leak as to the drip that made it," Campbell said. He didn't identify the source of the leak.

A five-member committee, including Campbell, was named to meet with Andras to "discuss the implications of the order-in-council which established the new ministry of state for urban affairs."

Campbell said the ministers want to see how the new department will "relate" to provincial governments and municipalities.

He indicated there is concern about federal interference in provincial jurisdiction through the new department, but the concern wouldn't prevent Ottawa from making more funds available for the solution of urban problems.

The conference also "exchanged information" about common problems, including disposal of abandoned cars, early closing of commercial establishments, municipal incorporation of Indian communities, inter-provincial co-operation in municipal research and pollution control, the communique said.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me how I would go about becoming a jockey? Is there such a thing as a jockey school? — B.A.

A. The usual way is to try to get work as a stablehand, and, if you show ability, you gradually work up to exercising horses, and racing, the training period beings anywhere from 1½ to three years. Rex Ellsworth runs a jockey school at Chino, California. He is a director of the California Thoroughbred Breeder's Association, Colorado Boulevard, Arcadia, Calif.

CHARTER FLIGHT and local ambulances this morning whisked first 12 bed-ridden patients to new Glendale Hospital near Royal Oak. Patients, from 13 to 37 years old, are Island residents being transferred from Woodlands Hospital in New Westminster. Glendale, which has 300 beds, will provide long-term care for severely mentally retarded and physically handicapped. A second group of 12 was also transferred by charter flight to Victoria International Airport shortly after noon.

BILL WALKER

These being some notes from readers, and officials, and other pertinent paraphanelia, some accrued, some pending, but mostly about horse racing:

Gerald Milburn, Director of Racing and Presiding Steward at the recent 12-day Quarter Horse and Thoroughbred race meeting at Sandown, pens the following (in part):

"I feel the article that you wrote on Saturday regarding the Sandown meeting will give many of your readers the wrong impression regarding the Thoroughbred part of the program.

"Victoria owners and trainers supported the meeting, they entered their stock willingly and often. The fact that they raced their horses for small pots and in doing so depreciated their horses should be appreciated and applauded by those who wish racing to flourish in the Victoria area . . ."

There was more of the same, all well meant, and all pointing out that the Thoroughbred owners should not be blamed for the lack of success at Sandown, and that they shouldn't have been bad-mouthed in this fashion.

Well, Gerry, it wasn't from this corner that the charge was made that the Thoroughbred owners hadn't co-operated. That came from the Quarter-Horse Association officials . . . And furthermore, it said "not all" Thoroughbred owners.

But your utterance is debatable.

●

Besides, you do make a good point in suggesting that the ferry situation had a lot to do with horses being held up for hours at a time, and this undoubtedly deterred some owners and trainers from coming to Sandown.

And also the outbreak of equine sleeping sickness deterred other owners from bringing their Thoroughbreds across the border.

Which is true.

And when you continue "the fact that Exhibition Park had the shortest star list that I can remember for the month of August also hampered our efforts," there is absolutely no argument.

Because this was pointed out as well by the Quarter-Horse people.

So, the knowledge is abundantly clear that you had your problems in this first combined meet, and that "all new meetings have problems filling races in their initial years."

Which, after all, is what was said, wasn't it?

And if the Quarter-Horse group chose to suggest that the Thoroughbred people were partly to blame for events, that's their opinion. And besides, it was their money.

Sure, everyone would like to see the meet go, and the fact that this first effort did not make a profit is not to say it won't be a success in future years.

There were a lot of mistakes made in the meeting and all weren't on the side of the operators. Frankly, there was little elegance to it. But there is little point snarling at one another.

B.C. Jockey Club president Jack Diamond suggested a year ago there might be problems.

"They will have to learn to walk before they can run," he said.

●

Meanwhile, there was another dispatch, brief and to the point:

"Why give so much ink to those cheap horses from Vancouver, when it's the quarter-horses which supplied the most contentious racing," writes John Adamson. "I got to like those sprint races after I got used to them."

Yes, the quarter horse races were different, and close, and contention did run deep. But Victoria fans still haven't taken to the speedsters, although they did appear to be coming around at the finish. And this could be an indication that things might be better the next time around.

But if Sandown suffered from non-support, running a race meeting here at the same time as Ex-Park will always produce problems. Mainly, the Vancouver crowds weren't pouring the money into the mutuels at the weekends.

Even then Sandown would have been hard pressed to handle bigger crowds. Betting facilities would have been sorely tested; and the lack of show wagering did nothing for the meet either.

September has been mentioned as a better time. Perhaps it is, but here again there is likely no way that extra totalisator machines will be moved in just for a 12-day program.

And that is just another of the situations that wasn't expected to crop up — the shortage of machines — but did.

Still, racing hasn't disintegrated that much that the customers have all defected: or that a general get-together couldn't at least examine the situation with a co-operative eye to the future success of Sandown. It's such a pleasant spot. In the fall.

THIS WAY YOU DON'T GET TIRED

That's what Montreal Alouette defensive back Merle Code (white jersey) could have said about the way he brought down Hamilton Tiger-Cat Tommy Joe Coffey in Canadian Football League game Wednesday in Hamilton. Coffey didn't get far on this play and neither did his teammates as the Ticats dropped a 12-8 decision to the Grey Cup champions.

Irish Protest Loss —Face Adanacs Here

COQUITLAM — Victoria Shamrocks were steamrollered here Wednesday night, absorbing a 21-10 trouncing at the hands of the home-town Adanacs in the third game of the best-of-five Western Lacrosse Association semi-final series.

The win gives Adanacs a 2-1 lead in the series.

But whether the Rocks will be able to rise from their flattened state and enter tonight's Memorial Arena game on an even basis with the Adanacs is a decision for the league's protest committee.

The Islanders protested Coquitlam's use of Dick Crompton, who Shamrocks insist was an ineligible player.

Crompton was given a match penalty in Sunday night's game in Victoria and was not expected to play Wednesday because the league automatic one-game suspension following a match penalty.

Crompton played and Shamrock president Mason Sheldrick announced he was launching a protest over the use of the Adanac player.

Sheldrick said the explanation given him by league commissioner Tom English was not satisfactory and that a protest had been entered.

He said English had allowed Crompton to play after reading the referees' report of the game and deciding the one-game suspension was not justified.

On the floor, Shamrocks ran into a familiar problem — Wayne Shuttleworth. The fleet Adanac popped in six goals and assisted on three others as he continued to have a field day against Victoria.

Bill Robinson notched four tallies for Coquitlam, while Kerry Gallagher scored three and collected four assists.

DILLON INJURED

Victoria fans will be looking for a comeback effort tonight from Shamrocks like the one Sunday in which the locals bounced back from a Saturday defeat in Coquitlam to square the series with a 12-11 thriller.

But they may have to do it without standout Nirmal Dillon, who took a Shuttleworth shot on the leg in last night's game and may not play.

Cougars Hoping For Junior Star

Victoria Cougars, on the threshold of their first season in the Western Canada Hockey League, may be close to signing what some of the game's experts say is the hottest junior prospect in the west.

The player in question is Bruce Affleck, a 17-year-old all-star defenceman who played with the Penticton Broncos of the B.C. Junior Hockey League last year.

Cougars' general manager Eric Bishop said he spoke with Norman Affleck, Bruce's father, in Penticton at the weekend. The senior Affleck told Bishop that a decision will be made when Bruce returns from Alaska where he is visiting a brother.

Affleck, six-foot-one, 220 lbs., scored 23 goals and added 46 assists with the Broncos last year when he was 16. He was named to the first all-star team.

"He's generally regarded as the finest prospect in junior hockey in the west," Bishop said. "There will be dancing in the streets if we can sign him to the Cougars."

Bishop also announced that six other players of the Broncos, with whom the Cougars have a working agreement, will attend the Victoria training camp which opens at Memorial Arena on September 13.

They are Gary Donaldson, a 19-year-old centre who was sixth in the BCJHL scoring race last year with 37 goals and 53 assists; Fred Parent, 19, who at right wing was eighth in scoring with 38 goals and 47 assists; Harry Turk, a 19-year-old left winger who finished last season with 33 goals and two assists; Dan Ashman, 18, who had 25 goals and six assists at right wing; Gerry Sismey, a solid, 18-year-old defenceman; and Jan Cascak, a 17-year-old defenceman.

City Duo Double Winners

VANCOUVER — Victoria's Brenda Cameron and Glen Bradshaw could come home double winners of the Canadian junior open tennis championships here at Jericho Tennis Club.

Miss Cameron scored two second-round victories in separate age brackets Wednesday. She defeated Sally Cates of Vancouver, 6-2, 6-0 in the girls' 14-and-under singles division and downed Suzanne Senst of Toornto, 6-1, 6-0, in the 16-and-under class.

Bradshaw staged a come-from-behind rally to defeat Toronto's Garth Naumoff, 6-7, 6-4, 6-3 in the second round of the boys' 14-and-under age bracket Wednesday. Bradshaw teamed up with Josef Brabenac of Vancouver to score 6-3 and 7-5 victories over Doug Zuber of Phoenix, Ariz., and Syed Mir of Toronto in the third round of the 14-and-under boys' doubles event.

John Picken of Vancouver eliminated Bradshaw from the 16-and-under singles bracket with a 7-6, 6-3 win in the third-round play.

BOMBER QB ACCOUNTS FOR 40 POINTS

It Was Jonas vs. the Eskimos

EDMONTON (CP) — Don Jonas put on one of the top individual performances of the Western Football Conference season Wednesday night, lifting Winnipeg Blue Bombers out of the cellar and kicking Edmonton into it, in a 40-31 trouncing of the Eskimos.

Jonas passed for four touchdowns and kicked 16 points while skilfully shredding the usually-stingy Edmonton defence.

He passed to Mack Herron for 10- and 12-yard touchdowns, threw for 17 yards to rookie Paul Williams for another and fired a 33-yard rocket for a majo tro Bob LaRose. Ht converted all four and kicked field goals from 22, 49, 38 and 47 yards.

Edmonton, which put on its best offensive show of the season, got four touchdowns, all from ex-Bombers. Bob Houmard scored twice as did Charlie Bryant, Dave Cutler converted them and kicked a field goal from 28 yards.

Losing by only nine points flattered the Eskimos, who picked up a touchdown with less than two minutes left when Winnipeg had the game well in hand.

Ray Jauch, head coach of the Eskimos, when asked his opinion of the game said:

"Don Jonas, period. He did a beautiful job of picking our defence aaprt."

Bombers coach Jim Spavital reacted to the win as though he'd just won the Grey Cup.

"Jonas played a great game," he said. "We knew we could score against Edmonton. In fact, this team can score against anyone."

The win put Winnipeg in second place with four points, tied with British Columbia and Saskatchewan. Edmonton trails the pack with two points while Calgary is undefeated in five starts.

With the victory, the Bombers equalled their winning record of last season when they lost 14 of 16 games.

While Jonas was the star of the game, the defence, the most porous in Canada, played strongly, picking off five Larry Laurence passes.

Friday's game between Ottawa and Saskatchewan will be telecast on Channel 8 starting at 7 p.m.

Bunt Sparks Birds

By The Associated Press

Frank Robinson, one of baseball's premier sluggers, had not hit a sacrifice bunt since 1957— and the way Wilbur Wood's knuckler was flitting around, he didn't think he would try again for another 14 years.

But Robinson, who fouled his first bunt attempt against Wood Wednesday night, tried again much sooner than he expected and neatly executed the sacrifice, paving the way for Baltimore Orioles' 6-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

The rare sacrifice came in the sixth inning with the score 1-1 and followed walks to Don Buford and Paul Blair.

After Robinson's sacrifice moved the runners to second and third and Merv Rettenmund struck out, Brooks Robinson was walked intentionally, and Dave Johnson rapped a two-run double and Andy Etchebarren delivered a two-run single, putting the Orioles safely ahead 5-1. It was the 11th victory in the last 14 games for the runaway leaders in the American League's East Division.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota Twins 6-2 as Mickey Lolich gained his 21st victory; Kansas City Royals topped Boston Red Sox for the 11th straight time this season 7-5; Washington Senators edged California Angels 5-4; New York Yankees downed Oakland Athletics 4-2, and Milwaukee Brewers trimmed Cleveland Indians 10-8.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates kept on their hitting binge as they blasted Atlanta Braves 13-6. The two team total of 19 runs made it 65 runs scored in four games at Atlanta Stadium on 107 base hits. The Pirates won three of the four games.

In other games, New York Mets stopped San Francisco Giants 5-1, Cincinnati rattled Chicago Cubs 9-4, San Diego Padres blanked Philadelphia Phillies 7-0, Los Angeles gained a game on the Giants by turning back Montreal 4-1 and St. Louis Cardinals downed Houston 4-1.

Hamilton Stalled By Als' Defence

HAMILTON (CP) — Honors went to the Montreal defence Wednesday night as the Alouettes scored a 12-8 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Eastern Football Conference action before a record Hamilton crowd of 33,321.

"Our defence kept us in the game all the way. That's the best they've played all year," declared satisfied Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry.

The game was a fierce defensive struggle from the outset with the Montrealers bursting through the Ticats' offensive line in the second half to harass Hamilton's Wally Gabler, on the field to relieve Joe Zuger.

Mark Kosmos, Mike Widger and Bill Whisler led the assault on the game little quarterback, while Montreal's secondary spread an umbrella over potential enemy receivers.

The Als got to Gabler four times in all, throwing him for a total yardage loss of 53 yards.

After an early touchdown by Zuger moved the Ticats into a 7-0 lead, the Als took over. A field goal by Montreal's Justine Canale made it 7-3 after the opening quarter.

ALS TAKE LEAD

A three-yard touchdown run by Bruce Van Ness saw the Als going into the second half with a 9-7 lead, whittled down one point by a 57-yard single from quarterback Zuger. That set the stage for George Springate's 33-yard field goal at 6:44 of the final period which opened a four-point lead for Montreal.

Gene Gaines intercepted a Zuger pass with less than a minute remaining in the game, to snuff out the Ticats' final offensive lunge.

The Hamilton loss evened the records of the two clubs at two wins and a loss, and created a three-way tie with Ottawa Rough Riders for second place, four points behind Toronto's unbeaten Argonauts.

SOUTHPAW STOPS OPTIMISTS

ALBUQUERQUE, New Mexico — Juan Jose Quinones, a left-hander for Puerto Rico, came within one of pitching a no-hitter as he hurled his team to an 8-0 victory over Saanich Evening Optimists in the 15-year-old Babe Ruth World Series here Wednesday.

The loss was Optimists' first and dropped them into the losers' bracket of the nine-team, double-knockout series. They are scheduled to play Mount Healthy, Ohio, today at 1 p.m. (Victoria time).

Quinones struck out five Optimist batters and allowed only one hit, a triple by Bob Wilson in the seventh inning. Quinones was the first left-hander to go all the way against Saanich.

The Puerto Ricans gave Quinones errorless support throughout. In the second inning, Jesus Barbosa tripled off losing-pitcher Wayne Krimmer and scored on a sacrifice fly by Rene Atilano.

Behind 1-0 in the fifth inning, Krimmer walked three consecutive batters, and base hits by Santiago Aldrey and Barbosa brought in four runs.

Manuel Lopez and Samuel Torra batted in the final Puerto Rican runs in the sixth off reliever Gary Budd.

The loss broke a 12-game winning streak for the Optimists who swept the local title in three games and took the provincial and Pacific northwest regional tournaments with four victories each. Victoria opened the world series with a 4-3 win over Sarasota, Florida last Sunday. Puerto Rico and Lompoc, both undefeated, will meet today. If the Optimists defeat Ohio today, an evening game is also slated.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

The big male blue grouse burst literally at our feet as he flushed from a heavy clump of huckleberry we were walking through. A small stand of fir a hundred feet away in the open slash served as an ideal roost and he glided into one of the higher branches, settling about fifteen feet up.

For the third time that morning I watched Dr. Zwickel quietly ease his way through the slash. When he was about fifteen feet away from the tree and partially hidden by underbrush he slowly began to draw out the sections of his unique telescopic snare until he had about twenty feet in all. At the business end of this peculiar fishing rod was a small four-inch noose of sixty-pound nylon fishing line which he carefully eased up to the head of the blue.

Jeff, Dr. Zwickel's fourteen year old son, stood on the opposite side of the tree and slowly began to wave his arms acting as a decoy. Twice I watched the noose bounce on the immobile and unsuspecting bird's beak but he didn't fly. In a few moments the noose settled ominously over the bird's neck. A quick yank — then Dr. Zwickel dove into the clump of salal harboring the flapping-thrashing but uninjured cock bird.

* * *

This was number 5,000 according to the series of metal bands to be placed on his leg. It was a big bird weighing close to three pounds, 1,340 grams to be exact, as Dr. Zwickel began a series of elaborate scientific field tests including, blood samples, weights, age, numerous measurements and finally banding.

This was the 5,000th blue grouse to be banded in the twenty-year Vancouver Island study being conducted by Dr. Bendell of the University of B.C. and Dr. Zwickel of the University of Alberta. This study has been continuing every spring and summer since 1950 in the Quinsam Lakes area near Campbell River; since 1962 in the Browns River-Wolf Lake — Anderton Lake area near Courtenay; and during the last two years in the Elsie Lake-Ash River area near Port Alberni. Following the recording of pertinent scientific data, band number 5,000 was placed on the right leg of the large male we had just captured. Another red plastic band was also placed beneath this metallic ban. On the left leg, green over black bands were placed. This combination would give an observer quick field identification without having to catch the bird.

During the morning trip we banded two hens, two chicks and No. 5,000. During this time I asked Dr. Zwickel some of those questions uppermost in the minds of Island Blue grouse hunters:

* * *

Q. Will the wet June in 1971 affect the blue grouse population for this fall's hunting season?

A. The spring of 1963 saw the highest rainfall and the lowest temperatures during the peak of the hatch and yet 1963 saw the highest brood hatch of the nine year Browns River study area. This summer (1971) observations have shown that the brood hatch is also well above average.

Q. Do hunters have any serious effect on blue grouse populations?

A. Dr. Bendell's blue grouse studies in the Quinsam lakes area show that only about 8% of the population is harvested by hunters. Of 1,483 grouse banded in the area only 61 bands have been returned by hunters. In the Browns River area only 1110 bands have been returned from 1,077 birds banded. At least 20-20 per cent of the population can be harvested without any serious effect.

Q. How long does it take before a second growth area becomes unsuitable for blue grouse?

A. Blue grouse populations will soar in new slash areas continuing at a relatively high level for the first ten to fifteen years of the second growth. Good blue grouse habitat is eventually choked out by the thick second growth which may remain productive for up to twenty years.

Q. Why are so few "Hooters," adult male blue grouse shot? (Why isn't highly unlikely that No. 5,000 will never experience the hunter's gun?)

A. Like all birds blue grouse migrate, however, their migration is vertical and usually up into the heavy forests of spruce and fir whose needles they feed upon in the winter months. Adult males begin their migration very early, usually early in August with the hens and this year's young migrating in mid-September. This year's hunting season begins September 4th, which will eliminate virtually all adult males from the hunter's harvest. Studies have shown that only 1% of the hunter's bag consists of adult males.

* * *

Information gained in the study areas is for pure scientific purposes with many applications for blue grouse management. A number of varied side studies have also been conducted. One interesting study conducted last year shows how rapidly an area is re-populated if the habitat is suitable. In the summer of 1970 all blue grouse were taken from the 1,000-acre Anderton lake area. In 1971 that the re-established population actually exceeded that of 1970.

To facilitate the studies of Dr. Bendell and Dr. Zwickel all hunters who bag banded blue grouse are asked to give the bands to their nearest conservation officer or to send them to Dr. F. Zwickel, Department of Zoology, University of Alberta, Edmonton.

Match-Play Goes Hard On Golf's Big Names

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player were major upset victims Wednesday as some of golf's top names were eliminated in the first round of the $200,000 Professional Match Play golf championship.

Toronto's George Knudson survived with a 70 to 75 victory over Don January.

Half the field is eliminated each day in the contest, where scoring is on the basis of total strokes over 18 holes.

"I'm not sure whether I like it or not," Arnold Palmer said after a 68-71 victory over Bruce Devlin of Australia. "I'd like to reserve opinion until I play a few more rounds.

"It's tougher, really, than regular match play. You have to have the same perseverance that you do in stroke play. You can't let up for a minute."

SEASON'S OVER

Nicklaus and Player agreed, before packing their bags and calling it a season on the regular American tour.

Nicklaus was out of it all the way as 28-year-old Ray Floyd was five under par after five holes and held a four-stroke margin over Nicklaus.

He finished with the day's best round, a five-under-par 67 on the tough, 6,973 yard Country Club of North Carolina course. Nicklaus had a solid 69.

Player, eliminated by Homero Blancas, was emphatic about the season having ended.

"That's it for the year," he said. "I'll bet that's the longest distance anyone ever went to play one round of golf — 30,000 miles." He arrived in this country only Sunday and left immediately for South Africa.

Blancas birdied the 18th hole to tie Player at 71 then won it when Player went one over on the third extra hole.

Julius Boros, teh 51-year-old National Senior's champ, knocked out Miller Barber 71-75 and Lee Elder took Heard 71-73.

EDMONTON (CP) — Murray McLaren was wondering what would happen if his putting improved during the second round of the Canadian junior golf championship today.

The 16-year-old high school student from Woodbridge, Ont., had problems with the club during the opening round Wednesday but still managed a two-under-par 69 for a share of first place with Bruce Moore, 18, of Edmunston, N.B. "My putting was just terrible," said McLaren. "I missed about eight putts under 15 feet."

There was nothing the matter with his other clubs, however. He fired a two-under 33 on the front nine and then carded a par 36 on the last leg-identical to Moore.

Two strokes off the pace was Stephen Ball, 18, of Weston, Ont., who handily stroked a two-under 33 on the front and then took a 37 on the longer back nine.

SEVEN SHARE THIRD

Seven golfers shared third place with 71s and five others had a piece of fourth with 72s. Moore, who shot 78 and 76 during the interprovincial team matches earlier this week, had few, if any, problems.

"I was listening to my caddie this round. He clubbed me all the way around and did a good job.

"Everything went right today. If I can continue hitting the ball super off the tee, it should continue to score well."

Adam Brown, 18, of Hamilton, one of the golfers tied for third, brought in rounds of 34 and 37 after a sparkling 69 in the final 18 holes of the team matches Tuesday.

Daniel Talbot, 18, who placed third in last year's tournament, was hot on the front nine with a 33, but then went two over on the back for a total of 71. During the team matches he had a 68, two strokes off the club record.

The other golfers at 71 were Mike Defalco, Lucerne, Que.; Bob Laing, Prince George, B.C.; Scott Keeniyside, Langley, B.C.; Gerald Brackett, Halifax, and Kelly Roberts, London, Ont.

Defalco managed his par despite bushing a ball on the fourth hole.

Michel Pepin, Drummondville, Que.; Ed Heakes, Weston, Bill Brown, Lucerne; Greg Olson, Edmonton and Jirka Danek, Edmundston, were tied for fourth.

Danek, 18, was the third golfer to score a hole-inhole during the junior competitions this week.

He smacked the ball 215 yards with a seven iron for the ace on the par-three 15th hole.

Century Game Away From Championship

One more game could do it for Century Inn.

That's how far the Innkeepers are from taking the playoff title in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League, after blanking Bell's Men's Wear 2-0 Wednesday night at Heywood Avenue Park.

The win gave Century a 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven series and means they can win the championship with a victory in the fifth game Friday night.

Pitcher Ken Poirier limited Bell's batters to a mere two hits on the way to the win and was only in trouble in the third inning.

Century's runs came in the second with Gerry Lavender's single driving Carl Walker across, and in the third when Don Frampton doubled home Gord Rutherford.

Losing pitcher Steve Ross gave up only five hits.

In the third inning, Bell's managed to put a man on third with none out when John Lauvaas singled and went the rest of the way on a passed ball and wild pitch.

But that's as far as he got, as Poirier forced a pop-up and struck out the last two batters.

Lavender collected two of Century's five hits.

Figg Wins Singles

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Harry Figg of Edmonton won the Canadian men's singles lawn bowling championship Wednesday by trouncing Dave Brown of Burnaby, 15-4 in a sudden-death playoff.

Both players finished regulation play after six rounds with 5-1 records. Brown had defeated Figg, 21-19, earlier.

Jim Watkins of London, Ont., and Bob McIntosh of Ailsa Craig, Ont., won the pairs title and B.C.'s veteran fours, skipped by Bert Leadbetter of Vancouver, took team honors.

Brown was carrying a 5-0 record into the final round but was beaten, 21-15, by Ian Smith of Verdun, Que.

Figg advanced to the playoff by dumping Saskatoon's Gordon Robinson, 21-5.

Brown jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first end of the playoff but Figg took control on the second with a four-ender and then added singles in each of the next five ends.

Leadbetter went undefeated through all six rounds while the Ontario pair finished with a 5-1 record, one win better than Nova Scoita.

In the final round, Watkins and McIntosh scored a 15-13 win over Jim McGregor and John Wright of Victoria, who finished with a 3-3 record.

POLISH CHAMP LEADS

WHITSTABLE, England (Reuter) — Polish champion Jerzy Rasinski won both races in the world cadet yachting championship here Wednesday to strengthen his lead in the event.

DALE SHAW LOSES IN SECOND ROUND

SAN DIEGO — Medalist Dale Shaw of Victoria was defeated, 3 and 2, by Debbie Grove of San Diego Wednesday in the second round of match play in the 41st annual Trans-Mississippi women's golf tournament.

Miss Shaw fired a two-under-par 72 Monday in the qualifying round, but went four strokes over par through the 18 holes played Wednesday.

Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver, the only other Canadian to make the match-play rounds, advanced to today's 16s by downing Cindy Casebeer, 4 and 3.

Quarter-final and semi-final rounds were played today with the final slated for Friday.

Local Ladies Spark B.C. Win

THORNHILL, Ont. (CP) — Dulcie Lyle of Hull, Que., captured the individual championship and a British Columbia foursome took the team title Wednesday in the Canadian Ladies Golf Association national seniors tournament.

Mrs. Lyle, Canadian women's closed champion of 1960, had a 36-hole score of 76-80—156 for a five-stroke victory over Pat Heisler of Calgary.

Third and fourth in the running for the Ada Mackenzie Trophy were Joan Lawson and Margaret Todd of Victoria who led the B.C. team to the Katerine Heileur Trophy.

Mrs. Lawson shot a 77-86—163 and Mrs. Todd 80-85—165. With them were Norma Lee with an 86-88 and Joan Campbell with an 89-87 that gave the winning team a low gross total of 501.

Second in the team race was Ontario with a 503 total. The Ontario girls were led by Katherine Heileur of Toronto who shot 84-82—166.

Mrs. Lyle's Quebec team placed third with a 508 total, followed by Alberta with 523, Manitoba 533, Saskatchewan 581, Nova Scotia 583, New Brunswick 606, Prince Edward Island 619 and Newfoundland 661.

The Manitoba foursome was led by Anne Tachan of Winnipeg with a 81-86—167, Ferne Crook of Winnipeg shot 89-93—182, Evelyn McDermott of Fort Garry had 95-96—191 and Marg McCann of Kenora, Ont., shot 94-90—184.

GEORGE REED
. . . in hot pursuit

Ron Needs Good Game On Friday

TORONTO (CP) — Sore-armed Ron Lancaster isn't having one of his banner seasons in the Canadian Football League.

His Saskatchewan Roughriders have lost four games in six starts this year, twice as many losses as they recorded in the entire 1970 Western Conference schedule when they rolled to a 14-2 won-loss mark.

Setbacks through injuries and retirements have plagued the Saskatchewan club and Lancaster, with his ailing throwing arm, needs a big performance Friday night at home against Ottawa Rough Riders to reverse the trend.

Last year's winner of the C F L.'s outstanding-player award, Lancaster in six games has completed 70 of 143 passes for 9.1 yards and three touchdowns. He ranks second over-all in the WFC to Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Jonas, last year with the Eastern Conference Toronto Argonauts, led the West in every passing department: most attempts, 146; completions, 78; yards, 1323; interceptions, 8, and touchdowns, 8, going into Wednesday's game.

COULD COME BACK

Lancaster with a big game against Ottawa, could vault back into serious contention as the West's top signal-caller and approach his seven-game performance of a year ago when he topped the conference passers en route to his outstanding season.

His CFL career with Saskatchewan, and earlier with Ottawa, is already sprinkled with stars.

He has thrown a record 3011 passes, completing 1573 — 67 short of Sam Etcheverry's record with Montreal Alouettes — for 24,942 yards (640 fewer than Etcheverry's).

His 178 touchdown passes are seven fewer than Ottawa's Russ Jackson threw.

Jonas' versatility is recorded not only in the passing department but in the points race. His 38 points, made up of one touchdown, 13 converts, five field goals and four singles, tops the conference.

REED IMPROVES

Saskatchewan's George Reed, quickly resuming his role as the WFC's outstanding rusher after being slowed by leg injuries through most of last season, is in hot pursuit of Jonas' scoring lead with 36 points off six touchdowns.

Reed paces the conference's running backs, logging 438 yards from 84 carries for a 5.2 average.

Another ex-Argo, flanker Jim Thorpe of Winnipeg, has taken a stranglehold on the WFC's pass-catching honors. He has caught 25 for 614 yards and two touchdowns.

Bob La Rose of Winnipeg and Herm Harrison of Calgary Stampeders have each received 20 passes, but LaRose has the yardage edge 368 to 320.

Defensive halfback Ed Ulmer, released earlier this week by Winnipeg, tops the West punters in number of attempts 53 and yardage 2166, but his average 40, is less than that of at least three regulars: Bill Van Burkleo, Calgary, 44.9; Ken Phillips, British Columbia Lions, 43.2, and Al Ford, Saskatchewan, 42.3.

Winnipeg's Paul Brule is the top punt return specialist in both returns, 26 and yardage, 208, while another Bomber, Mack Harron, leads the kickoff returns with 420 yards on 15 carries.

Phillips, who has assumed the placekick job for Lions previously held by Ted Gerela, has made good on six of eight field goal attempts. Gerela's lone successful job in eight tries has been from 51 yards out.

Scoring leaders, after Tuesday's Calgary-B.C. game:

Phillips, B.C.	0	4	6	3	24

Nine players are tied with 12 points and two touchdowns each.

Hockey Stars Enshrined

TORONTO (CP) — Some 300 guests including 22 honored members will gather today at the Hockey Hall of Fame for the induction of five new members.

The five new members are Terry Sawchuk, Harvey "Busher" Jackson, Ralph "Cooney" Weiland, Dr. Gordon Roberts and Arthur Wirtz.

Not expected to attend the awards ceremony at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds is Conn Smythe who resigned as chairman of the hall after the announcement in June that Jackson was among those honored by the selection committee.

Jackson, who died five years ago, was a member of the famous Toronto Maple Leafs' Kid Line with Joe Primeau and Charlie Conacher in the 1930's under Smythe who was then managing the team.

But Smythe maintained opposition to Jackson joining the Hall of Fame because of the player's controversial off-ice antics.

Lefty Reid, curator of the Hall of Fame, said Wednesday an invitation had been sent to Smythe to attend today's ceremonies despite his resignation, but Smythe had not replied to the invitation.

Accepting the award for Jackson will be his son Kim from Vancouver, and 17-year-old Jerry Sawchuk from Detroit will accept for his father who died last year after an accident in New York.

A special display has been set up in the hall commemorating Sawchuk who recorded 103 shutouts in 971 regular-season National Hockey League games during more than 20 years of play.

Sawchuk won the Vezina Trophy as the league's top goalie three times with Detroit Red Wings and shared it with Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs in 1964-65. Sawchuk also played with Boston Bruins, Los Angeles Kings and New York Rangers for brief periods.

Weiland played 11 years in the NHL with Boston, Detroit and the old Ottawa Senators and later coached the Bruins to the Stanley Cup in 1941.

Get Outdoors, Athletes Told

CHICAGO (AP) — Spending the summer in air-conditioned comfort can prove harmful later for young athletes when they start training for the autumn soccer and football seasons.

That is the word of the American Medical Association's committee on the medical aspects of sports.

Although summer is nearly over, the committee says the athlete can help protect himself by getting away from air-conditioning and working outdoors to acclimatize his body.

PRECAUTIONS NEEDED

The committee said in a statement, "Every fall, particularly since air-conditioning became popular, there have been cases of serious illness — and even some deaths—from heat illness.

Special precautions are needed to prevent heat fatigue, heat exhaustion, and heat stroke.

Heat fatigue is a depletion of salt and water from the body caused by sweating. It dulls the athlete's alertness and increases the possibility of injury. Heat exhaustion is a more serious form of fatigue.

Heat stroke is a breakdown of the sweating mechanism which causes overheating. Death can result.

The AMA committee cautioned against the use of salt tablets, which can irritate the stomach, and said one teaspoonful of salt added to six quarts of drinking water can help restore that which is lost.

The committee emphasized:

- Each candidate should have a thorough physical examination before workouts begin.
- Eight hours sleep is a good minimum under average conditions, but vigorous activity makes nine hours necessary, even for college athletes.
- There are no magic pills or wonder foods for the diet. Adequate supplies of nutrients are provided by a balanced, varied diet.
- Supplementary vitamins are unnecessary, unless prescribed by a physician to meet a deficiency.
- Rubberized clothing to "sweat down" can be harmful.
- Water should be taken at least once an hour during strenuous activity. Workouts should be scheduled during the cooler parts of the day.
- Conditioning is of prime importance. But it should be built up gradually.

Arctic Studies Differ on Pollution Danger

By BOB INGRAHAM

OTTAWA (CP) — Two government - sponsored research projects in the Arctic show differing evidence of danger to the environment from crude oil pipeline spills.

They were supported by a single $20,000 grant from the northern development department and began last September in the Northwest Territories.

Dr. Michael Dickman, a University of Ottawa biologist who specializes in fresh water biology, concluded that an oil spill might affect the Arctic food web.

On the other hand Dr. Adolph Feingold, chairman of the university's mechanical engineering department, said in an interview he believed the danger of a massive oil spill had been grossly over-estimated.

In a paper prepared for presentation this week to a meeting of international engineers in Norway, he writes that even a massive oil spill on level land probably would melt a crater in the permafrost and create nothing more than a stable pool of oil on the Arctic tundra.

MELTING WON'T SPREAD

His experiments at Tuktoyaktuk showed that mosses, lichens and Arctic spruce would grow on land saturated as much as 52 per cent with crude oil and that while the oil melted the permafrost, it only melted downward and not to either side on the flat plots of experimental ground.

Of the growth on the oil-saturated ground, he observed in an interview that "to the naked eye no (genetic) damage has occurred."

In his experiments near Inuvik, Dr. Dickman added small amounts of oil to containers of water containing algae—microscopic plant life—and after several hours compared the efficiency of these algae specimens to the efficiency of specimens in uncontaminated water.

He found algae in the oil-laden water to be 10 times less efficient than the algae in the uncontaminated water in converting carbon dioxide to carbohydrates.

In a paper prepared for publication, he noted that about 30 per cent of the total Arctic area is lakes and streams and that algae probably are a source of considerable food energy in the region.

Wallace Had No Place in Party To Begin With, Says Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Wednesday former Social Credit MLA Dr. Scott Wallace is an extreme right-winger who had no place in the party to begin with.

"I don't know why he joined the Social Credit movement in the first place if he now says these things because our policies haven't changed," the premier told a news conference.

He was replying to charges by Wallace that the Social Credit government has become undemocratic and almost totalitarian. Wallace, member for Oak Bay, left the party last week to sit as an independent.

The action left the government with 37 seats, with 12 held by the New Democrats and five by the Liberals.

"We were called dictatorial and 10 times worse when we took over the B.C. Electric (in 1963). A government is elected to govern. This is the most democratic government in Canada," the premier said.

★ ★ ★

"I have been elected personally in my own riding 10 times with ever-increasing majorities. The government has been elected seven times in 19 years. A government that goes to the people that often is extremely democratic."

Bennett said one of the reasons he walked across the floor of the legislature in 1952, withdrawing his support of the coalition Liberal-Conservative government to sit in opposition, was the government's imposition of hospital insurance premiums "on the poor and the rich alike."

"My only argument with Scott Wallace," said Bennett, "was that he wanted to increase the dollar-a-day (hospital co-insurance), and I said no, never, as premier, because I don't believe in taxing the poor when they are sick and in hospital, and that is the only issue, and if that is being a dictator, protecting the poor against the powerful, protecting the people against the powerful, then that is what I am."

★ ★ ★

He said Wallace, an immigrant to Canada from Scotland, does not understand the British parliamentary system. "It is not the duty of an MLA to administer."

Asked if Wallace had been consulted on health or hospital policy, Bennett said: "I do not consult the hardware men on hardware matters, or lawyers on legal matters. That is the corporate system, that is the fascist system, that is not democratic. That is not the British parliamentary system."

The premier said Wallace was not elected to represent the doctors, but that was what he was doing.

Wallace said the "last straw" for him was the recent passing of two controversial orders-in-council giving Health Minister Ralph Loffmark the right to say at which hospitals a doctor can practise and giving Provincial Secretary Wesley Black the power to license private medical laboratories.

Citizens Find 13 Lucky

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — Charges of obstruction against 13 residents of Brown's Arm, 40 miles west of here, were withdrawn when they appeared in magistrate's court here Wednesday.

RCMP, who laid the charges after they arrested the six men and seven women Aug. 14 for blocking a gravel pit, gave no reason for dropping the charges.

The 13 were among 50 persons who set up a picket line across the pit to protest the lack of improvements on a road leading to their community.

They ended the protest when Premier Joseph Smallwood promised the work would be done next year.

ONTARIO VOTE ON OCT. 14?

TORONTO (UPI) — Observers here have been expecting a fall provincial election for some time now although the exact election day has remained anybody's guess.

That is, until Wednesday when a local newspaper found out that Premier William Davis and his Progressive Conservative party had rented space in a downtown office building to serve as campaign headquarters. And now, at least observers have a date to toy with.

On a wall in the half-renovated offices, stacked with cartons of as yet undated campaign material, is a hand-drawn poster indicating Oct. 14 as election day. The drawing shows an Ontario PC campus association booth with a banner reading: Bill Davis on October 14.

However, Michael Gee of the party's communication and press liaison department, insists the date has no significance whatsoever.

"That poster was part of a demonstration the campus association had prepared for schools," explained Gee. "They just stuck a date on to make it complete. Nobody knows when the election will be, save one man (Premier Davis) and he doesn't seem to be talking."

100 Suspects Held In 'Communist Plot'

MANILA (UPI) — Authorities arrested nearly 100 persons Wednesday for questioning on an alleged communist plot to burn Manila and take over the Philippines. Officials declined to release their names.

The Philippine News Service reported that 51 were arrested in central Luzon for suspected communist activity and were being held at a national police camp 45 miles north of Manila. Reliable sources said 47 more were at Camp Crame in nearby Quezon City.

They were held without formal charges. Marcos suspended the writ for habeas corpus Saturday, allowing police to search without warrants and detain without charges.

In a nationwide broadcast Tuesday, Marcos said he acted "because there is a plot and a conspiracy to wreak vengeance not only against government officials but innocent civilians. The targets included a plan to burn down Manila . . ."

Staff Duplication Avoided In Extended Care Hospital

DUNCAN — When the 100-bed extended care hospital opens "hopefully" in early 1973 it will be treated as an extended arm of the Cowichan and District hospital.

Administrator Ken Noton said his responsibilities, along with all other department heads in the hospital, will broaden.

"We will treat the extended care hospital as an arm of the Cowichan hospital to save duplication of highly paid techical and professional staff," he said.

Noton said the dietician, executive housekeeper, director of nursing services, accountant, and plant superintendent will be in charge of the new hospital under his administration.

The $1,600,000 hospital referendum ($300,000 of this was for renovations at the Chemainus General Hospital while the remainder is for extended care) was passed by 93.4 per cent by Cowichan Valley Regional district taxpayers in June.

Noton said if everything continues to move as scheduled "hopefully the extended care hospital will be open in early 1973."

The hospital board has received unofficial approval of sketch plans for the hospital from the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

ON OLD SITE

"We hope to receive official approval soon from the minister so that we will be able to go ahead with working drawings," Noton said.

The extended care hospital, which still has to be named, will be a wooden frame building capable of expansion, horizontally constructed on the Old King's Daughter's Hospital site in Duncan. This is less than a mile from Cowichan hospital

Noton said the extended care hospital will be a great asset to the community because Cowichan Hospital is over crowded.

There are accommodations for 17 extended care patients but there are 28 of these patients in the hospital, all using acute care beds.

"To some extent this is detrimental to the acute care patient," Noton said.

"We hope to proceed as quickly as possible with the extended care hospital to overcome this problem. We want everything done correctly as we move along."

The proposed hospital will complement as well as complete the up-to-date services already found in Cowichan which Noton claims is "one of the most modern hospitals in B.C."

Last year Cowichan, which opened four years ago, became a fully accredited hospital.

"This means that we meet the standards of the Canadian Council of Accreditation," Noton said.

This comes up for review every three years.

Cowichan's facilities include: capacity for 131 acute care patients and 17 extended care patients; up-to-date radiology, laboratory, physiotherapy, pharmacy and medical records departments.

The three-storey building has 24 active and associate medical doctors, four courtesy and 23 consulting doctors and 10 dentists.

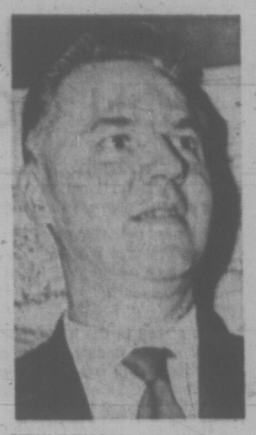
The rest of the hospital staff, which includes nurses, secretaries, orderlies, janitors, total 233.

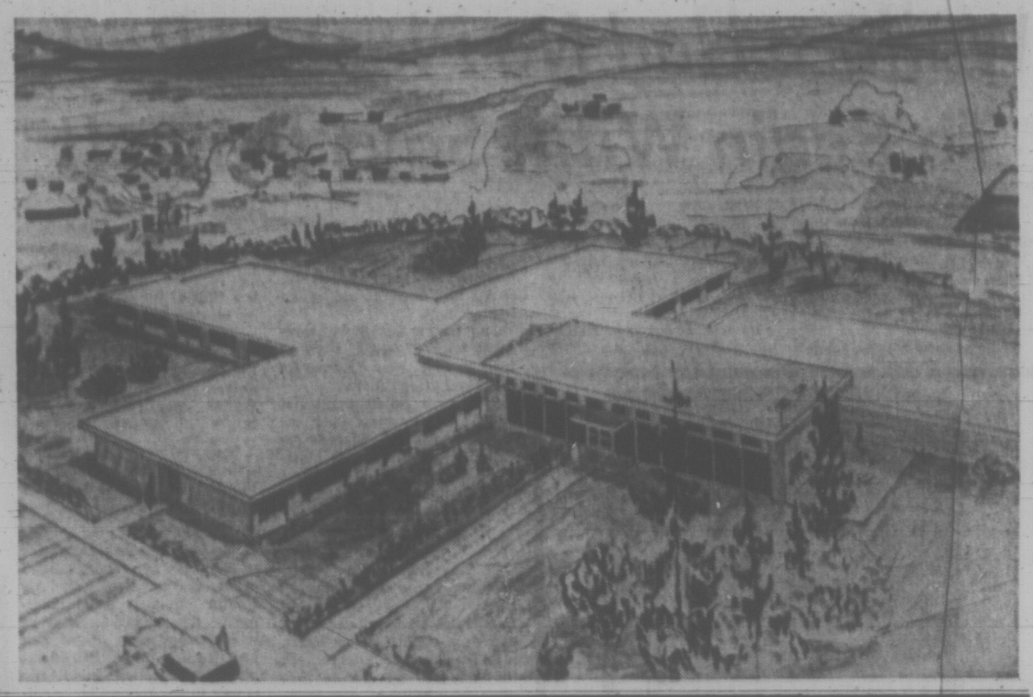
There is a 13-man hospital board, under chairman John Hulbert.

Noton, who was raised and educated in Calgary, worked as an accountant in King's Daughter's Hospital for three years before he became administrator in 1956.

He qualified for the position after completing a two-year course on administration, hospital organization and management course through the Canadian Hospital Association and Toronto University.

Later he became a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators.





NEW DUNCAN extended care hospital (right) is considered by hospital administrator Ken Noton (above) as an arm of the Cowichan Hospital. Opening date is set for early in 1973, but official approval from B.C. Hospital Insurance Service is still pending.

U.S. Teachers to Get Raise In Sole Exception to Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Against a growing wall of union opposition to President Nixon's wage-price freeze, the U.S. government has opened the door a crack to allow most teachers a pay raise this fall.

The National Education Association said the ruling affects 80 per cent of the country's 2.1 million public school teachers.

The original ruling by the Cost of Living Council had said teachers were barred from pay raises if their contract period started on or after Aug. 15, when Nixon announced the 90-day freeze.

Now the council has ruled teachers may receive raises if they are eligible to be paid over a 12-month period but are in fact paid over a 10-month period, provided the contract took effect before Aug. 15.

Meanwhile, organized labor stepped up demands that employers put frozen pay increases into escrow accounts until legal questions are settled over whether the money can be distributed when controls end.

Otherwise, the AFL-CIO Painters union said, "they will be putting into their own pockets dollars that belong to our members."

WON'T WALK OUT

After a two-hour meeting Wednesday with AFL-CIO President George Meany, President Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers pledgtd there will be no walkouts among 100,000 aerospace workers during the 90-day period.

But Woodcock described the freeze as unfair to workers, criticized Nixon's proposed 10-per-cent investment tax credit for business and expressed concern over what type economic controls might be imposed after the freeze ends.

Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) said today Nixon's new economic policy cannot work unless the United States cuts military spending.

"A cutback in U.S. troops in Europe and a greater sharing of the costs of defence among our NATO allies, together with a final end to the war in Vietnam, would significantly improve our balance-of-payments position and give our economy a chance to recover," said Proxmire, chairman of the joint congressional economic committee.

Foreign auto-markers began posting price increases on 1971 cars coming into the country after Nixon imposed an extra 10-per-cent import tax.

Volkswagen of America announced a 6½-per-cent increases, Toyota Motor Sales, an average four-per-cent increase and British Leyland Motors Inc., a temporary 3½-per-cent increase.

In Detroit, Ford Motor Co. attributed a 16.5-per-cent increase in new-car sales during the middle 10 days of August to proposed repeal of the seven-percent auto excise tax. American Motors Corp. reported a 1.6-per-cent sales increase, but General Motors and Chrysler said their sales during the period declined 3.4 and 10.6 per cent, respectively.

Strikers Stone Police

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Supporters of a striking union stoned police and fire vehicles and Texpack Ltd. plant in a violent demonstration by about 600 persons Wednesday.

A national union leader was arrested on arson and watching and besetting charges when it ended.

R. Kent Rowley president of of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, was released on his own recognizance Wednesday night following his arrest.

The near-riot, watched but not halted by 31 police in riot gear, was the most violent in a series of incidents that have marked the six-week strike by 150 union members against Texpack.

Rocks and tin cans were thrown at the plant, breaking windows and wooden panelling during the two-hour demonstration.

Mr. Rowley was the only person arrested.

Anthony Fairchild, a television cameman with CHCH Hamilton, gave up his camera to six demonstrators who chased him. The film was torn out but the camera was returned.

Jack Bowman, a photographer with the Brantford Expositor, was threatened by demonstrators when they thought he was takin trought he was taking pictures of the garbage disposal unit being upset.

ARMSTRONG . . . quitting

ASTRONAUT ARMSTRONG STEPS OUT OF SPACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years after his "one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind" put the first footprint on the moon, Neil A. Armstrong is stepping from the space agency to the academic world.

"I believe space exploration . . . is part of our mutual lives now and will remain so for the remainder of the history of man," he told reporters Wednesday in announcing he'll go back home to Ohio and become engineering professor at the University of Cincinnati.

Armstrong, 41, is quitting a $36,000-a-year job as deputy associate administrator for aeronautics in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's office of advanced research and technology. But he'll continue as a special consultant.

About Oct. 1, he will become a full professor in the University of Cincinnati's College of Engineering—drawing salary at that academic level, although he declined to disclose the amount. He will work in aerospace engineering but also will be assigned to geology, astronomy, physics, chemistry, psychology, biology and medicine, the university said.

Armstrong commanded the Apollo 11 flight to the moon in July, 1969, and became the first man to set foot on another world. He headed the Gemini 8 team in 1966 and performed the first docking of two vehicles in space.

Remember the Good Days . . . Before Pollution?

KENORA, Ont., (CP) — The Fish For Fun Only signs, put up a year ago to warn of mercury poisoning, are gone now but for some, the memory lingers.

The ones who remember best catered to the big-spending tourists who don't come in such numbers any more, shunning waters they consider tainted.

Others, anxious to forget the whole affair, point out there are more visitors than ever in this watery playground and the fishing is great.

Mention the word mercury to people in this northwestern Ontario tourist town of 11,000 and the response is as varied as an angler's lures.

To Jim Adams, manager of Ontario Central Airlines, a line that lifts tourists to the rich fishing lakes inaccessible by road, the business picture is grim.

"We used to have 25 to 50 flights a day, 14 planes, 14 pilots, five men working on the dock and one driving the customers. Now we have five to 12 flights a day, with only four planes and three pilots and one man on the dock."

GIVEN RUN-AROUND

Adams wants the provincial government to make "some definite policy" on fish with mercury traces. "They tell you you can eat it, and they tell you you can't eat it. They're just giving people the run-around."

To Percy Woods, secretary-manager of the Kenonra District Camp Owners' Association, the answer is more vigorous boosting by government of the area's tourist attractions.

He said that because of mercury found in Clay Lake, Ball Lake, part of English River and Wabigoon River, downstream from Dryden, the whole region's economy has suffered.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission last year ordered a Dryden plant to stop dumping mercuric effluent into the Wabigoon.

Woods said mercury is under control now and he has only scorn for Americans critical of the situation. "They haven't got a pitcher of water down there that isn't polluted."

RAPS GOVERNMENT

Len Anderson, manager of Hockey Haven, a tourist camp 10 miles east of Kenora, blames the Ontario government for the mercury scare because of "the way it was advertised."

He said the impression was given that the whole area was polluted. "This year, after a slow start, business has picked up and his camp was booked solid at mid-summer.

Albert Halverson, owner of a bait and tackle shop on the Trans-Canada Highway just east of Kenora, said his trade has improved 10 to 20 per cent over last summer.

He heard "very little talk about mercury any more" but said that for some big lodges, business has fallen sharply, due in part to a trend to campers and trailers.

Barney Lamm, owner of a posh fishing lodge on Ball Lake, 50 miles northeast of Kenora, has closed his $1 million enterprise.

Government Moves 'A Threat'

MONTREAL (CP) — The American Risk and Insurance Association was told that social and political pressures have caused the government to encroach into many areas previously considered the sole preserve of insurance companies.

E. S. Jackson, executive vice-president of Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. of Toronto, said the insurance industry therefore must give more consideration to the various factors which "determine where the line of demarcation lies between business and government."

Jackson told the association, holding its annual meeting outside the United States for the first time, the insurance industry also must be sure that the products and services it offers are fulfilling their purpose.

"Government encroachment can be viewed as a threat as indeed it sometimes is to our industry," he added.

"It also can be viewed as a challenge — a challenge that the life insurance products we offer meet the needs of the public at reasonable cost and that as an industry we seek new areas of public need which we can meet."

Unity Sought

LONDON (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England, and Pope Paul, head of the Roman Catholic Church, will pray Sept. 2 for the unity of the Catholic and Anglican churches. The Anglican church information office disclosed the special prayer plan Wednesday. Pope Paul will pray at Castel Gandolfo, his summer residence, and Dr. Michael Ramsey at Lambeth Palace in London.

Japanese Forging Bonds With Alaska Economy

By KENT STURGIS

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Relations between Alaska and Japan have come a long way since United States and Japanese troops engaged in a bloody Second World War battle in the Aleutian Islands.

Japanese troops were dislodged from far-flung Attu Island in 1943, but the Far East country now entrenched in Alaska is a significant force in the state's economy.

"Alaska economy is in many respects tied closer to Japan than to the continental United States," says a recent report from the Alaska department of economic development.

Japanese capital investment in Alaska is estimated to exceed $200 million—more than the total Japanese investment in the other 49 states, says the report.

Each week, Japan Airlines touches down at Anchorage with 44 polar flights. And officials say an ever-increasing number of Japanese tourists are visiting Alaska.

BUSINESS INVOLVED

The state report says 17 Japanese companies have offices in Alaska, many more are doing business in the state and at least 27 firms have expressed interest in doing business in Alaska.

The growing bonds will be strengthened Sept. 27 when Anchorage, Alaska's largest city with 100,000 people, will be host to a historic meeting between President Nixon and Emperor Hirohito who is en route to Europe.

The brief stopover will mark the first time a Japanese emperor has set foot in the U.S. And the meeting that follows will be the first between a U.S. president and a Japanese monarch.

It also is a recognition of the tremendous growth in Japanese investment in Alaska in the last decade—primarily in forest and marine products, petroleum and natural gas.

Japanese concerns investing in Alaska include such giants as Teikoku Oil, Taiyo Fisheries, Iwakura-Gumi and Mitsui and co. Ltd. Teikoku Oil is Japan's largest petroleum firm, Taiyo Fisheries is that country's largest seafood company, IwakuraGumi is Japan's No. 1 lumber company and the Mitsui is the largest trading company in the world.

The Japanese government opened its 10th U.S. consulate in Anchorage last year, and the state government has a fulltime trade office in Tokyo.

The Japanese also are assuming a weightier role in Alaska's blossoming oil industry.

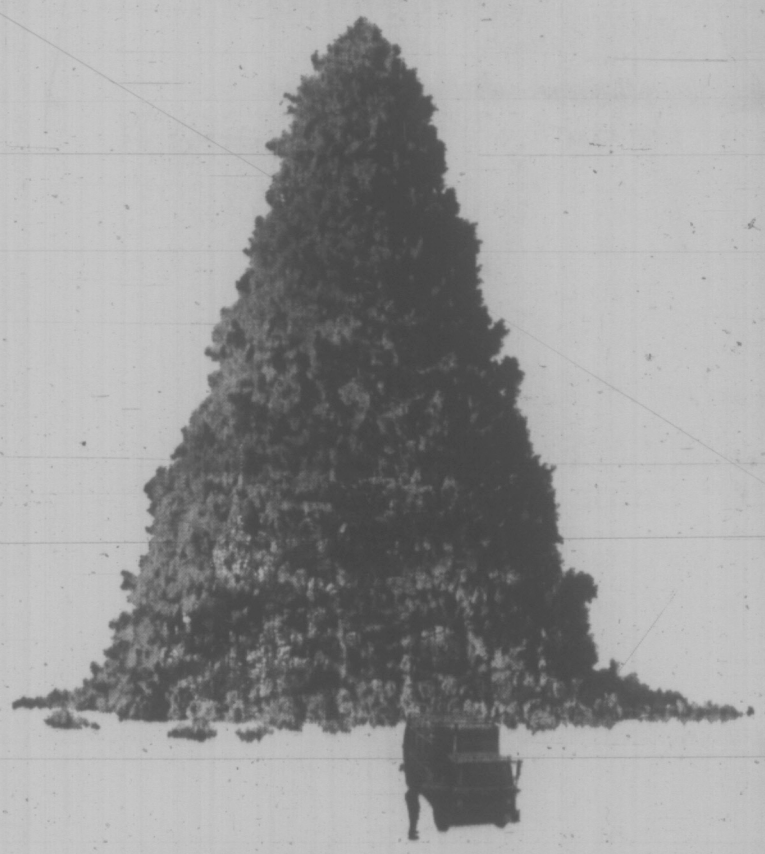
There is a way to build a mountain.

All it takes is a little thoughtlessness.



If every resident of British Columbia (2,250,000) and each visitor this year (est. 7,515,000) took one 8½ x 11 sheet of paper, crumpled it up and threw it away in Stanley Park, we would have a pile of paper 576 feet high. Or we could cover Manning Park (188,000 acres) with a 2 inch layer of old crumpled up paper.

A terrifying thought indeed.

Yet every year we do thoughtlessly throw away that much and more. The Government of British Columbia is asking for your help.

It is physically impossible to control pollution in the entire 366,255 square miles of British Columbia. Join us now and let's all do our little bit to keep British Columbia beautiful.

Child's Hidden Handicaps Go Unnoticed for Years

● Why is it that some children fail to make progress in school when there appears to be no visible reason why they should not be doing well? This is the first of six articles by Dr. Leslie J. Nason, of the University of Southern California, on the problem of under achievement and what parents can do about it.

By LESLIE J. NASON

Underachievers are an abomination. They puzzle their teachers. They disappoint their parents and they, themselves, are frustrated.

An under achiever is a student who is not learning up to his potential. He may not be failing; he may be making Cs when he should be making As and Bs.

Feeling Helpless

Parents feel helpless. Their efforts to motivate their under achieving sons and daughters seem to do more harm than good.

Too much so-called "motivation" can have a negative effect unless the student knows how to improve.

Parents worry for fear that they are urging their children to work beyond their ability. Their first problem is to recognize true under achievement when it occurs.

The under achiever who fails sticks out like a sore thumb.

FAMILY SECTION

The under achiever who makes Cs seldom gets much attention. The faulty learning procedures that he developed in the early grades go unnoticed year after year. He may even graduate from high school with his "hidden" handicaps.

Failure to diagnose the learning difficulties of under achievers and help them become achievers is the greatest waste in our present day school systems.

It is important that children be successful in their first weeks of school. Parents can do much to bring this about.

But to do so they must first recognize the things that are difficult for their child. As problems are faced and solved one thing at a time, the child develops confidence as well as skills.

Parents are important in this process. True, teachers are the professionals and should be responsible. Even though they recognize a child's handicap, they may not be able to do much about it. Each teacher is faced daily with a large group of children. Directing their activities and maintaining order consumes their attention.

Simple Handicaps

Children may get to be members of small groups for a few minutes at a time in the early grades, but learning the skills necessary for school success sometimes requires more individual attention and more time than a teacher has available.

Some handicaps are simple. For example, a child who, in preschool and primary grades failed to develop ease in speech, may carry the handicap for years. He is no trouble to his teachers. They refer to him as a quiet child, not recognizing that expressing ideas is essential to learning. They set up no procedure to help him gain skill in expressing himself.

The Lonely Look for Companionship In Newspaper Ads, Dating Services

Personal ads, dating service help people

By HELEN MELNYK

Loneliness is something like a common cold.

No cure has been discovered for either.

However, there's one big difference: Most people who suffer from colds recover. But for many people, loneliness is a constant misery, that eats away all of the joy and meaning of life, leaving nothing to look forward to beyond a wall of isolation.

The Personals columns in any daily newspaper read like chronicles of loneliness. Most items advertise for a date or mate. Some aren't very particular, asking only that applicants be "affectionate" and "good-natured". Other specify preferences as to age, background, religion and interests. Recently there was a "health-minded" widow who was searching for a prospective husband who was a non-drinker, a non-smoker, interested in subsisting on a raw diet, between 52 to 58 years of age, and preferably a widower also.

LADY WITH PERSONALITY, good looking, wishes to meet unattached financially secure gentleman (60-70) for social outings, travelling, companionship. Matrimony if suited. No triflers, please.

The woman who placed the above personals ad in a paper is an attractive, active widow in her 60s. She was anxious that her children and acquaintances not know about the ad.

"I don't really know why I did it," she said. "I thought, it's summer, maybe I can meet someone interesting and have a nice time. This is the first time I ever asked for anything.

"It's very important to have someone to talk to that you can trust, but it's so hard to meet people. I haven't got the personality to go to a nightclub or bar looking for a man.

"All my life I've been busy working. Now I have so much time to give and there's no-one. My life is not gone yet. I'm not old enough to just sit."

'Can't Seem to Find Each Other'

The woman used to be a concert musician in Europe, who came to Canada 15 years ago. Her children are grown up and gone, and she had to retire from her job a few years ago. She tries to keep herself busy, working about the house and garden, and being active in community affairs, but says that neither satisfy the craving for companionship.

"When I'm active, nobody thinks that I might need something," she said. "There are many lonely people around, but we can't seem to find each other."

A dating service has recently been established in Victoria to bring together the lonely.

The price — $60 for six months for a man, and $45 for a woman for the same time. Dates are guaranteed on request.

"We serve as the eyes, ears and feet by doing all the investigating for people looking for dates," one of the service's operators, Randall Brown, said.

He said that although his clients are from every educational, economic and age bracket, most are between 30 to 50 years of age. They include "shy and introverted" single people, out-of-towners, and the married or divorced who have lost their social dating skills after years of disuse.

Brown cited the example of one 50-year-old man who, after mourning the loss of his wife for 11 years, was just starting to break out of his shell.

"He doesn't know how to go about getting dates like he did when he was young. So he turned to us for a head-start, a push on the road," Brown said.

Some Tastes Self-Defeating

Another client is a 40-year-old woman with a good job and strong religious inclinations; she's a non-drinker, non-smoker, non-gambler and non-dancer.

Brown said that people with preferences such as this woman have a difficult time meeting potential dates.

"She likes going to museums and wax collections. But you're not going to meet anyone in front of Custers Last Stand or the Chamber of Horrors," Brown explained.

"Out-of-town businessmen and salesmen phone in and ask to be set up with a date for the night . . . er . . . evening," he said.

"Female clients outnumber the men two to one," Brown said. "That's because men have a much easier time finding a date. They can go to different places in town, looking for a woman. A middle-aged woman who tries to get a man is frowned upon by her neighbors. Frequently she's also tied down by children."

When clients first approach the service, they're given personal application forms to fill out, stating their age, marital status, job, income, education, religion, interests and appearance. They are also asked to include a photograph of themselves and to list the physical and other qualities they are looking for in a date.

"Honesty is an important factor," Brown said. "If people give us false information, it's hard for us to match them with a suitable date."

Brown said the service tries to match people by their similarity of interests, backgrounds and age.

"Usually a couple will hit it off well — the only thing they come up against are personality differences."

In the future, a computer will be used to increase "efficiency," Brown said.

Men Doff Their Hats To These Dressy Women

By SALLY GLOVER

Men doff their hats and women smile when they see Victorian women in Edwardian dress.

And it's not a put-on.

"When I wore this dress in Seattle," said Linda Loder, 28, in her white My Fair Lady-style ensemble, "old men would tip their hats and women would smile with a look of nostalgia."

Miss Loder is one of several women strolling along the streets of Victoria, entertaining in the garden, even acting as hostesses at intimate dinner parties in turn-of-the-century Edwardian dresses.

High-necked, lamb-chop sleeved dresses in heavy cottons with lace applique have been in one Victoria store since last April. They have been in such demand, the owners of a local boutique, Rosina and Terry Izzard, have ordered their third shipment.

"We've sold a lot of them as wedding dresses and for graduation," said Mrs. Izzard. People have come from the mainland and the United States to buy them.

The revival of this style elsewhere has resulted from the success of a movie, Death in Venice, set in the early 1900s. Piero Tosi designed 700 Edwardian period costumes for the film (to be realeased here Friday).

But women in Victoria have not seen the movie yet. They saw the dresses in the shop and bought them for several reasons:

● "They fit so beautifully," (most have tight-fitting bodices and waists).

● "They're something I've always wanted."

● "They make you feel like a lady."

Bev Groom, manager of the boutique explained:

"The dresses are made in Mexico with the turn-of-the-century concepts and ideas, all the tucks and lace work is hand-done, but they've been improvised in a modern way.

"Pure white dresses are accessoried with blood red cummerbunds, bright-colored underslips or just body stockings, or the nude look."

Prudence Thomson, 28, said she enjoys wearing period clothing, but feels "you have to make the occasion to suit the dress."

"It's fun to bring out a mood through dress," she said. "I'd wear this (a white lace and tucked cotton Mexican wedding dress style) out in the country—or if I wanted to remain slightly aloof."

Dr. Janice de Montigny, 34, bought her Edwardian wedding dress last May and wanted another one for street wear.

When she's not delivering babies, she wears long dresses as often as possible, she says.

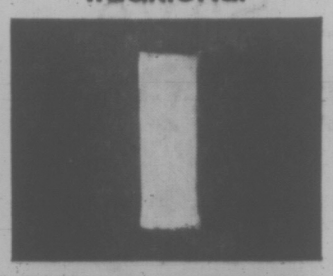
"The wedding dress can only be worn on certain occasions. It's fine for garden parties or evenings, but it's hard to wear on the street," she said.

Her 1890s black and white striped heavy cotton dress is more practical, and "is the type I'd wear anywhere."

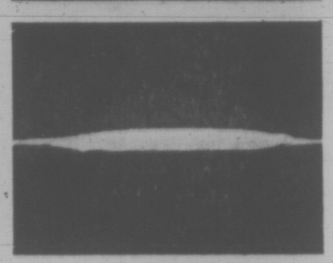
Here are five improvements your sanitary napkin should have had years ago.

And five reasons why you should switch to Confidets now.

Traditional: Confidets:

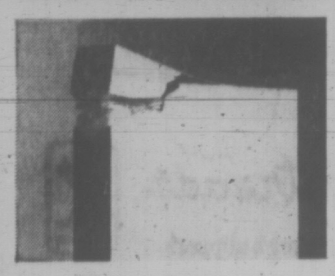


1 The traditional napkin is rectangular shaped, too wide in the middle to fit properly. That means bunching and folding over. The Confidet is a tapered napkin, narrower across the centre. That means a snug, comfortable fit.

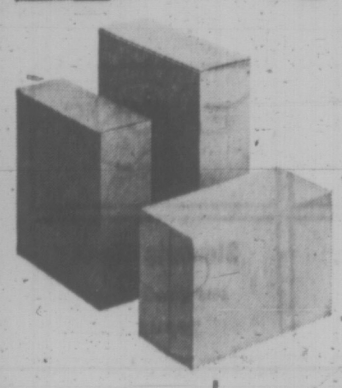


2 Confidets are thicker through the middle. That means extra absorbency. Traditional napkins are flat, the same thickness all over. So how can they be really effective? Yet Confidets aren't bulky, because they get slimmer towards the ends, see? One more thing, Confidets have a special inner layer of plastic that's bonded in place so it positively can't slip. That means extra security.

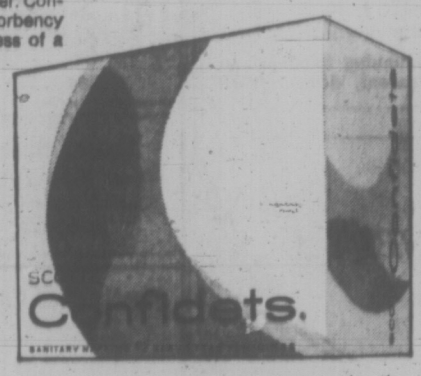
3 The covering of traditional napkins is soft. But soft and flimsy. That means the material will rip apart when attached to a sanitary belt. Confidets combine a strong underlayer with a soft, finely textured outer layer. You get end tabs that don't shred. They fasten securely and stay fastened.



4 Traditional napkin packages have perforated openings that tear unevenly and break fingernails. Confidets have a convenient tearstrip. Just lift up the tab, and rip! It's that simple. Traditional napkin boxes don't close properly once they've been opened. That means exposing new napkins to dust and dirt. Confidets have a reclosable lid. Take out one napkin, then close up the package tight, till next time.



5 Traditional napkins come in "regular" and "super" absorbencies. If you have a heavier flow at the start of your period, you should really have both on hand. You needn't bother. Confidets are both. You get the absorbency of a super pad and the trimness of a regular, all in one napkin.



Confidets: the napkin that makes others seem old-fashioned.

Feminists Mark 'Anniversary'

NEW YORK (AP) — Women will take to the streets again today, a year after the first female strike for equality in the United States, to renew demands they say have gone largely unheeded.

But this time, instead of a strike, it's the 1971 women's march for equality. So far, demonstrations are planned along New York's Fifth Avenue—where some 20,000 supporters filled the street last year — at the Chicago Civic Centre, in St. Louis and by car caravan in Los Angeles.

In addition, various women's groups around the country are planning creative non-marching demonstrations including guerrilla theatre at a shopping centre in New Jersey and a 21-hour radio marathon in Minneapolis.

Explaining last year's three main strike demands, the march committee is focusing on women's rights in five areas: equal political power; abortion and contraception; child care centres; equal education and employment and equality under the law.

Betty Friedan, who provided the idea for last year's activities, says the current thrust is for political power.

"The movement has become political," she said. "We are taking the energy from last year and forming concrete organizations to achieve the unfinished items of women's equality."

A second political aim of today's events will be the Women's Lobby—an idea promoted by the National Organization for Women, largest of the women's liberation groups. Its aim is to propose legislation and communicate with women from all parts of the U.S.

"Everybody has a lobby in Washington so we should have our own" says N. O. W. vice-president Roxcy Bolton of Coral Gables, Fla.

Sex Roles Become 'Blurred' In Depersonalized Society

WASHINGTON (WP) — Sex roles have become increasingly blurred in American society since the 1960s. Men may be getting tired of being aggressive in a depersonalized society and women may be tired of doing what men tell them to.

These are the surmises of a leading clinical psychologist, Dr. Fred Brown, head of the psychology division at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York.

Brown based his conjectures on a series of Rorschach (ink blot) tests administered to 1,393 patients since 1949.

Analyzing patients ranging in age from 16 to 40, Brown finds support for his theory that results of the famous ink blots test are "a unique mirror of the culture" and its changes.

Brown suggests that the confusion occurred because women are chafing at what he called "their traditional man-imposed roles" and tend to become more aggressive, "masculine." At the same time, he theorized that men have "grown weary of an aimless competitiveness in a depersonalized society and desire a more passive, traditionally "feminine" demeanor."

It used to be that "normal" people looked at the ink blot on card III in the 10-card Rorschach series, and saw two men. But those tested more recently see some combinations of men, women, and hermaphrodites. Or they see no human beings at all, and say the blot looks like an animal pelt or a butterfly.

Before 1960, 51 per cent of his control group saw men. After 1960, 33 per cent saw males.

Analyzing these new responses, Brown suggests that young people especially are inclined to blur the blot's gender. This has been traditionally interpreted as a dissatisfaction with one's own sex, identification with the opposite sex, and inclination toward homosexuality.

Brown thinks that changing cultural concepts might be confusing peoples' choice of sex roles. He cites television programs in which father is shown as a bumbling oaf, and the lack of charismatic heroes to model one's self after.

Add to this a "widespread cynicism" about love and replace romance with what Brown calls "mutual exploitation" — and it leaves few traditional sex roles to identify with.

If you assume that anatomy determines one's sex role, Brown says he'd have to conclude that many of the people he tested were "psychosexual" deviants.

Using another assumption — that society and culture affect sex role — Brown offers an alternative conclusion. He thinks the new generation might have taken its first steps down the "road to social-sexual reversals," and sex roles as we know them will change dramatically in the future.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old divorcee with three children. I am going with a 22-year-old fellow who wants to marry me. He's a real sweet kid, just back from Viet Nam and he doesn't know what the score is.

I prefer older men, but I've dated several, and the minute I mention marriage, they run like rabbits. I've decided to marry this kid, Abby, and as soon as we're married I'd insist that he adopt my children so in case the marriage falls apart he will have to support all of us.

I realize this guy is too young for me, but I am only thinking of my children. Do you think it will work out?

— Georgia Peach

DEAR PEACH: Probably not. It's a cold business proposition whereby you are using marriage to trap a young man into supporting you and your children. He won't be young and immature all his life, and when he realizes that he has been used he will resent you and your children.

I know that life for a young divorcee with three children is no breeze, but your chances for a successful marriage would be far better if you started out with a more mature man who knew what the score was.

DEAR ABBY: I read about that poor woman who had birthed five children from her man, and now he tells her that her body is "repulsive" to him because her bust has fallen and her stomach has stretch marks.

I'm an old trapper, and believe me, I'd never discard a trap that is capable of catching game just because it got a little rusty.

Kindly convey my opinion to this dear lady; the fault is not hers. I opine her man has just run out of bait.

— Peter W. In Phoenix

VICTORIANS 'JUST NOT INTERESTED'

Foster Parent Drive Fails

A meeting Wednesday of the Foster Youth Recruitment Committee was "a disaster area," according to a Family and Children's Service supervisor.

Mrs. Bernice Packford described the six teen-age volunteers as "discouraged and disappointed in the people of Victoria."

The committee members, all foster children themselves, have been canvassing homes in an attempt to recruit foster parents for the agency.

The group canvassed the Metchosin, Shelbourne, North Dairy and North Gorge areas without finding a single family willing to take a foster child.

"People just weren't interested," Mrs. Packford said. "And some were openly hostile."

One man apparently told a young canvasser not to bother him about "children in trouble . . . I've got troubles of my own."

Mrs. Packford, the home recruitment and retainment supervisor for the service, said that there are only 35 foster homes for children 12 years and over in the area.

"We had hoped to find another 35 homes by October," she said. "I am at my wit's end. I can't believe people know of the need or they would respond," she said.

The committee has given up door-to-door canvassing. "But they are going to stick together as a group and try to help in some other way."

A letter was sent to the 500 families canvassed inviting them to a prospective foster parents meeting in mid-August.

"Not a single family turned up," Mrs. Packford said.

She said that experts find there are "not many happy families today.

"What is happening to the family cuts down the number of potential foster homes," Mrs. Packford said.

"The children from these unhappy homes may end up in care and I have nowhere to place them."

Will Alberta's New Youth Vote Be Decisive on Monday?

EDMONTON (CP) — There are two things to remember should one make a guess on the outcome of the Alberta election Monday, Aug. 30.

Eighteen-year-olds will be able to vote for the first time, and redistribution has increased the number of seats in the legislature to 75 from 65.

The number of 18-year-olds has been estimated at 25,000, but Edgar Gerhart, Social Credit attorney-general, doesn't think their vote will have much effect. He expects the new youth vote to be spread among all parties.

Ira McLaughlin, 80, a Social Credit MLA for 27 years, is uncertain whether the reduced voting age will be of great significance.

Recalling the past as a guide to the future, Mr. McLaughlin, who is not seeking re-election, said:

"I remember when the women got the vote. Everything was going to change, everybody said, but when the ballots were counted it wasn't much different."

Redistribution on the Alberta scale, however, could have a much greater impact.

There are 13 new seats, but because of the disappearance of two and the merging of another, the net increase is 10.

Only seven seats were not affected by the redistribution enacted since the 1967 election when the Social Credit party won 55 of the 65 seats with Progressive Conservatives getting six, the Liberals three and an independent one.

When the legislature was dissolved July 22, the standings were: Social Credit 54, Conservative 10, vacant 1. Conservative strength increased with two byelection victories, and a party switch by a Liberal and an independent member.

A seven-man commission altered electoral boundaries on a formula hammered out by a legislative committee, which designated 38 urban seats and 37 rural seats, giving the edge to urban representation for the first time in the province.

CITIES GAIN SEATS

The two rural constituencies which disappeared were Dunvegan and Willingdon-Two Hills, while Wetaskiwin and Leduc ridings were merged into Wetaskiwin-Leduc.

Some experts says the redistribution may favor the opposition Conservatives since they usually draw their strength from the cities while the Social Credit government has traditionally been almost unbeatable in rural areas.

In the last legislature, the Conservatives had eight of their 10 seats in Edmonton and Calgary, both of which will increase representation this time.

Edmonton gained five seats and now has 16, and Calgary picked up four for a representation of 13. The other seats designated urban are Lethbridge with two—one more than last time—and one each in Grande Prairie, Camrose, Leduc, Medicine Hat-Redcliff, St. Albert and Red Deer.

Of the seats affected by redistribution, one had a name change only—Banff-Cochrane now is called Banff. Sixteen underwent slight area changes accompanied in some cases by name changes and 38 had substantial area changes with some getting new names.

No Concession Will Come From China, Says Reston

HONG KONG (AP) — President Nixon's trip to China may get him re-elected but he is not likely to get any concessions from the Chinese, New York Times writer James Reston said today.

Reston, a vice-president of the Times, returned today from a seven-week visit to the Chinese mainland. He was asked at a news conference what Nixon can expect to get out of the trip to Peking.

"The cynical answer is re-election," Reston replied. "If he manages to convey a sense that some enormous change has taken place, as a result of his visit to Peking, in the political order of the world and of establishing relations with this vast country — I suppose in the political confusion of our country at the present time that could be a decisive factor . . .

"Other than that I don't see he can get anything out of his trip to Peking in temsr of concessions from the Chinese People's Republic. I saw no sign whatsoever of any concessions they are willing to make in order to see established normal relations between Washington and Peking."

Premier Chou En-lai is not interested in acting as a mediator for the Vietnam war and will not "do a deal" for China's seat in the United Nations, Reston reported.

He said he got the definite impression during his interview with Chou that Peking wants to leave the Vietnam issue "entirely to the parties directly concerned."

"He would not get into that at all and emphasized that in fact this was not a question China is interested in mediating in any way, shape or form."

PESTICIDE MEN GET 'JITTERS'

Government refusal to establish guidelines for pesticide development and registration has given the pesticide industry the jitters, Dr. George Cooper, past president of the Canadian Agricultural Chemicals Association, said Wednesday.

He said three major firms may have to stop producing bug killers because of government attitudes to their products and methods of dealing with them.

Cooper is attending the meeting of the Entomological Society of Canada at the University of Victoria. He said it is becoming uneconomical to produce pesticides under present government policies.

As an example, he pointed out how a firm recently presented a new compound for registration after conducting all the long and short term tests that it knew were required.

MORE TESTS

But the company was told it would have to conduct further tests on three generations of non-rodent mammals.

He said the company has already spent about $12 million — a common development cost — to bring the compound to this stage.

"This means if it still wishes to proceed, it will face about $850,000 in added testing costs," he said.

"Had they known they wanted this when we started, they could have done it along with other tests."

Holmes said under such conditions some firms were finding it difficult to carry on producing new pesticides. It was discouraging investment and development.

Cooper is also critical of how compounds are taken off the list of approved pesticides.

"Compounds can now disappear at the stroke of a pen with withdrawal dates even back-dated," he said. "There is no chance to organize to minimize the blow."

He said the government should remove a pesticide from the market by setting a deadline and restricting its uses in the meantime to avoid the situation where people will dump a suddenly-banned product down the toilet.

Cooper is a manager of technical services and development with Cyanamid of Canada Ltd.

Hail Damages Crops

PAMPLONA, Spain (Reuter) — Heavy rain and nut-sized hailstones smashed car windshields and flattened crops during a five-minute storm over northern Navarre province for the second straight day. Damage was estimated at $4.5 million.

'Blame Name Change on Ottawa'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government is to blame for the dropping of the name "Trans-Canada Highway" in British Columbia, Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

He accused the federal government of being an "opt-out" government which threatens to withdraw from certain shared-cost programs and has already done so in the case of the Trans-Canada.

It is because the federal government will not longer contribute to the costs of the route that the B.C. government is replacing Trans-Canada signs across the province with "B.C. Highway 1" signs, he said in an interview.

Cabinet Shuffle In Greece

ATHENS (Reuter) — Premier George Papandopulos swore in a new cabinet today in an apparent effort to streamline his 4½-year-old administration.

The premier appointed a second deputy premier, Nicholas Makarzos, who until now has been minister of coordination. As second deputy premier, Makarzos will supervise the economic sector of the government.

First deputy premier Stylianos Pattakos, formerly interior minister, will be in charge of the sector shaping the government's policy.

With Papadopoulos, both men, former army officers, comprise the triumvirate and the revolutionary committee which seized power in Greece in April, 1967.

Papadopoulos retains control of the ministries of foreign affairs and national defence.

The new cabinet was sworn in before Greece's regent, Gen. George Zoitakis, in the name of self-exiled King Constantine.

Papandopoulos, who appears to have emerged stronger after the major shakeup of his army-backed government, brought in seven new ministers and 10 new under-secretaries in his new cabinet.

Timely Question

EDMONTON (CP) — One question to be answered in Monday's Alberta general election is whether the province will get into step with the rest of Canada during the summer.

A plebiscite will ask Albertans whether they prefer to remain on Mountain Standard Time all year or to introduce daylight time.

It's generally assumed that farmers prefer things the way they are while city dwellers favor a change.

Army Dominance Pattern Shows In Rebuilding of Peking Politics

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China reported today it had completed forming new Communist party committees at the provincial level, a major milestone in the lengthy process of rebuilding the party and state structure shattered during the cultural revolution.

The official New China news agency said Heilungkiang province in the far north bordering the Soviet Union and Ningsia Hui Autonomous Region, a desert area in central China, held party congresses earlier this month which elected new party committees.

They are the last of China's 29 administrative regions to set up new committees in a program that began last December.

Observers said the announcement could open the way for the convening of the National People's Congress —China's supreme legislative authority— which Peking has said will meet before the end of this year.

MAY REPLACE LIU

The congress, which last met in full session in 1964, is expected to proclaim a new state constitution and appoint a head of state in place of Liu Shao-chi, disgraced during the cultural revolution.

The heads of the Heilungkiang and Ningsia Hui party committees both have a military background, underlying the important role of the military in the party building process.

Army dominance has been the pattern in most new provincial party committees. Army commanders also hold important positions in the government organization that parallel the party structure.

The army was often used to restore order during the three years of cultural revolution turmoil and now holds key posts in the power structure at all levels.

Many of these military figures have been identified as moderates who edged out the radicals who held the limelight during the upheaval.

Fish Process Rights Sought for Portugal

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The federal government will be asked to allow the Portuguese to process and transship fish in bond in Newfoundland, Premier Joseph Smallwood said today.

The premier said in a telephone interview from Toronto a Portuguese proposal to begin using St. Pierre, capital of French-owned islands off Newfoundland's south coast as Northwest Atlantic supply base instead of St. John's would be a loss to the entire province.

The loss would be a "lamentable one . . . sentimental, historically and financially as well.'

Jaime Ferreira, Portuguese consul in St. John's, said Tuesday two representatives of his country's fishing industry were in St. Pierre to collect information on port fees, fish trans-shipment facilities and availability of bait and supplies.

Mr. Ferreira said Canadian criticism of an alleged threat posed to Northwest Atlantic fish stocks by the Portuguese was a "false accusation" and was resented.

Portuguese fishermen began using St. John's as a supply base shortly after explorer Gaspar Cortereal became the first of his country's seafarers to visit Newfoundland in 1501.

Today the fleet consists of 40 vessels with 3,000 men.

It spends about $500,000 annually in St. John's for bait and supplies. Crew members spend an undetermined amount in local stores.

Foreign ships are not allowed to land fish in any Canadian port for transfer to other vessels.

But St. Pierre has made trans-shipment one of the main selling points of its modern harbor development.

Fishing vessels are able to land their catches at St. Pierre for shipment to home ports in freighters.

World Chess King to Train In Secret for New Defence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Boris Spassky, reigning king of world chess, says he will begin training in secret next month for a planned defence of his crown next March.

The Soviet grandmaster said in an interview he believes Bobby Fischer of the United States will emerge as the winner of the current elimination series being held to select a challenger to meet Spassky for the world championship he has held since 1969.

The U.S. grandmaster is scheduled to meet another Soviet grandmaster, Tigran Petrosian, in the final round of the challengers' series in a best-of-10-game match starting next month. Site for the series has not yet been chosen.

Relaxing at his hotel between duties as a U.S.S.R. delegate to the World Chess Federation Congress and as an entrant in the Canadian Open chess championship, both now under way at the University of British Columbia, the world champion said he felt Fischer holds an edge over Petrosian.

Fischer now has won 12 straight games in the challengers' round. He defeated Soviet grandmaster Mark Taimanov 6-0 here last May and followed up with 6-0 Denver victory over Danish grandmaster Bent Larsen.

Spassky described the Dane's defeat as "a very big surprise." Taimanov's defeat? "Not so much a surprise."

Discussing the forthcoming challengers' match, he said "Petrosian is very stable and Fischer will have a tougher match."

"Petrosian keeps his opponents at bay until he wishes to attack. Fischer will have to solve many difficult problems. The match will be a test of his character."

Spassky, 34, won the world title from Petrosian in 1969 after being defeated by his countryman in his first attempt at the crown in 1966.

Spassky said the most important issue before the chess congress, which began closed-door meetings Tuesday, is the question of the world championship cycle.

At present, a three-year cycle of tournaments and candidates' matches decides the challenger named to meet he reigning champion for the world crown. Some countries consider the system cumbersome and time-consuming although there is general agreement it eventually produces a worthy challenger.

Spassky said he was maintaining a neutral position on the question.

Car Runs . . . in Circles

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The late-model car Romeo Renaud rented had ideas of its own Tuesday.

His wife parked the car outside their home and left the motor running.

Suddenly, the transmission clunked into reverse — all by itself.

The car backed up, struck a tree and a fire hydrant, ran over a ditch and then made circles on three neighbor's lawn for 45 minutes.

It was moving too fast for any of about 25 neighbors to stop it.

Finally it went into the ditch again and the transmission gave out.

Police said it will cost at least $1,000 to fix the lawns.

Neo-Victorian Backlash Likely in U.K.

By PAUL MAJENDIE

LONDON (Reuter) — Many Britons have spent the last few months assiduously pondering the current state of the country's morality.

After a decade of liberties won and licences taken in the permissive society, several indications point tentatively to a backlash in favor of a return to more orthodox sexual mores.

In April, the House of Lords debated the rise of pornography. And in May, a socialist peer set up a commission to combat "its incipient menace."

Then came the Oz cause celebre of the summer. Three editors of an underground magazine were given jail sentences of up to 15 months Aug. 5 for publishing an obscene 'school kids' issue."

Although the three appealed and were later released on bail, the case set off public discussion of the whole topic of censorship and pornography.

Richard Neville, James Anderson and Felix Dennis were sentenced to 15, 12 and nine months in jail respectively for publishing an obscene article and sending it through the mail. They were acquitted of conspiring to corrupt public morals.

QUESTION SENTENCES

Most newspapers welcomed the verdict but condemned the severity of the sentences, taking the view that this would help turn the Oz men into martyrs of the underground.

The three were out to challenge society's attitude to sex. Their viewpoint is perhaps best explained by a recent article in another underground magazine, Frendz.

"The act of murder is illegal, the description of it is not; the sexual act is not illegal, the description of it is," said Frendz. "This is the glaring contradiction."

The trial highlighted the dilemma of a society which wants to maintain certain moral values and protect the young while also wanting to uphold the right to free speech and a free press.

Many people deplored the attention paid to Oz while London's bookshops selling hardcore pornography continue to flourish. Annual profits in the trade have been put as high as $24 million a year.

ACT COVERS

Literature is covered by the Obscene Publications Acts of 1959 and 1964 which define as obscene anything that "tends to deprave or corrupt." But the defence can argue that a publication is justified "for the public good" for its literary, artistic, educational or scientific merit.

Many feel the law is riddled with anomalies. David Gold, whose large wholesale organization distributes erotic literature, considers the position intolerably vague.

"In the last year sales have doubled in the field of erotic literature," he said. "Censorship should either be abolished altogether, as in Denmark, and die a natural death as it will do, or we should have a board where publishers can subject their manuscripts to get a certificate."

Parliament has also recently concerned itself with the prickly topics of censorship and pornography.

The government has promised to tighten the controls on private movie clubs that show pornographic works.

TED LEWIS

'Is Everybody Happy Man' Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — The man in the battered top hat always asked the same question: "Is everybody happy?"

Ted Lewis would supply the answer himself innumberable times.

"Yes, sir!" he'd shout, and then came the soft-shoe shuffle, the hat sliding down his arm and a croaking rendition of Me and My Shadow, when My Baby Smiles at me or On the Sunny Side of the Street.

The familiar routine delighted audiences for decades. Lewis, who refused to concede he had retired, died of a heart attack at his home here Wednesday. He was 80.

A star of vaudeville and radio in the 1920s nd 1930s, Lewis made two movies and adapted to a new era with guest appearances on television. He played nightclubs until 1955.

PLAYED CLARINET

Born Theodore Friedman June 6, 1891, in Circleville, Ohio, Lewis played the clarinet in local bands, he crashed the big time with his act at Hammerstein's theatre in New York in 1911.

Lewis dropped his real name, he explained, because it was too long for marquees.

A top performer on radio, Lewis sold millions of records on his version of St. Louis Blues and Tiger Rag. His two movies were Is Ev'rybody Happy?, based on his life; in 1929, and Here Comes the Band in 1931.

Although his fame began to wane in the 1930s, Lewis continued as a top draw in nightclubs until he was 75.

"Being in show business is not a thing that stops," he said. "It's there in your blood."

Former N.J. Speakers on Fraud Charges

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two former speakers of the New Jersey State Assembly were indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on charges of covering up $2.4 million in bad loans made by a bank they controlled.

Named in the 16-count indictment were Walter H. Jones, 59, Speaker in 1946 and now a Port of New York Authority commissioner, and Peter W. Moraites, 48, Speaker in 1968. Both are Republicans from Bergen County.

The indictment charged them with fraud including allegations that improvident loans were made to 20 shipping companies by the Midland Bank and Trust Co. of Paramus, which Jones founded and of which Moraites was a director.

The grand jury charged they covered up the losses on the loans to ensure the bank's merger with the Englewood National Bank and Trust Co. of Englewood.

Moraites is in a federal prison, after pleading guilty Feb. 23, 1971, to two counts of an indictment handed down last year, charging him with receiving illegal commissions to secure the loans.

"'Carnal Knowledge' I have experienced only three or four movies that I was genuinely sorry to see end. I was sorry to see 'Carnal Knowledge' end!" —Vincent Canby, N.Y. Times

"'Carnal Knowledge' is a feast of a film. It is a very funny and very cruel and very sad film. Mike Nichols uses the screen as it has rarely been used heretofore. Arthur Garfunkel and Jack Nicholson are superlative. Unlike too many of today's films, 'Carnal Knowledge' lasts beyond the watching; it sticks to the mind-ribs and bears long retrospection. The film is brilliant." —Judith Crist, N.Y. Magazine

MONEY PILING UP —MAYOR CONCERNED

ST. BERNARD, Ohio (UPI) — This Cincinnati suburb has a financial problem—too much money.

Mayor Charles Young has revealed tax revenues were "rapidly approaching the point of saturation in excess funds."

"I think we should return some of the unneeded money to the citizens," said Young, proposing a cut in both property and earnings taxes.

The community is home to 7,000 residents and some huge and highly-taxed Proctor and Gamble manufacturing facilities.

Nanaimo Boy Off to Wales

Kevin Meikle of Nanaimo is one of 19 Canadian students who will leave for Wales in the next few days to attend United World College of the Atlantic, an international residential school.

They will join representatives of 36 countries to complete their last two years of high school education. The new students will bring the Canadian enrolment to 40 (out of 300) at the college, located at St. Donat's, a 14th century castle on the south coast of Wales.

Atlantic College was founded in 1962. Others will open soon.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Roger Hannagan, who made world-wide headlines with his escapades in the London-to-Victoria air race last month, "is considered a dangerous and irresponsible pilot" by his peers, an Aurora, Ore., flight instructor testified Wednesday. Ernest Myers, the Aurora instructor, testified Hannagan "had a rather unsavory reputation" as a pilot. He cited instances when Hannagan allegedly performed mid-air loops in a small plane at Aurora airport, once coming so close to the ground that part of the landing gear was knocked off. Gary Fletcher, a Wenatchee, Wash., pilot, testified that Hannagan "was an excellent pilot," although he's" . . . a bit young yet and possibly lacks maturity in his respect for rules."

PORT CREDIT, Ont. — Lord Thomson said Wednesday night he won't be affected by a London businessman's plan to establish a pig farm near his 50,000 pound home in Buckinghamshire near London. Lord Thomson, who is visiting in this community near Toronto, said in a telephone interview that he lives three-quarters of a mile from the site of the proposed pig farm and "it's far enough from me." Wine merchant Maurice Dale said he plans to establish the pig farm because the local council refused him permission to establish a market garden on his 12½ acres.

MONTPELIER, France — Victoria Chaplin, 30, daughter of Charlie Chaplin, gave birth to a daughter in a clinic in this southern French town Tuesday. She is married to Frenchman Jean-Baptiste Thierree, the director of a circus touring in the region. Mother and baby were well. It was not yet known what name the parents had chosen for their first child.

INCENTIVE OFFER TO WOO DOCTOR

GOLD RIVER — This community of about 2,500 has been without a doctor for a month and people requiring hospital treatment or a physician's care must travel more than 50 miles to Campbell River.

The Comox-Strathcona regional hospital board is approaching Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell with its problem but the Tahsis Co., major employer in the area, is also tackling it.

Company president Jack Christensen said in Vancouver today Tahsis is advertising for a doctor and offering incentives, but he declined to say what they were.

OVERWORKED

The last doctor at Gold River ceased practice for health reasons, said Christensen. There is a doctor at Tahsis, the company town 40 miles from here at the head of Tahsis Inlet, but it is quicker to travel the paved road to Campbell River.

Gold River Mayor Les Cartwright said first aid officials in the town are overworked, and it has been fortunate no emergency has come up so far.

The problem is that a doctor settling here is sure to complain over the lack of diagnostic facilities.

"When we get a facility, then we're home free," he said.

A spokesman for the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service said in Victoria today it has recommended the hospital district accept the same diagnostic centre plan recently approved for Port Hardy to save planning time.

The centre for Gold River would not have the beds to be included in the Port Hardy centre and would cost $120,000 to $140,000.

Christensen said he hoped such a centre would be built in Gold River next year. It would certainly improve chances of attracting a doctor, he said.

HOT CONTEST INDICATED

BLACKBURN, England (UPI) Harry Riding, 39, has challenged all comers to beat him in a hot mustard eating contest. He says he keeps in training by eating at least a pound of mustard a week with his food.

Red Tide Puts End To Clam-Digging

TOFINO — A warning that razor clams in the Pacific Rim National Park are highly toxic has been issued by park operational manager Frank Camp.

The clams are infected by Red Tide — a micro-organism which produces a paralytic poison, he said.

"They are unfit to be eaten and clam digging in the park area has been banned," he said.

Camp said tests have been continually carried out on the clams since Red Tide was reported in the area last year.

"But it wasn't until about three weeks ago that the degree of toxicity began to rise," he said. "It has doubled in the last month."

Fisheries officer Nick Seymour said since last fall a ban has existed on the digging of butter clams due to the red tide infestation.

FORBIDDEN

"It is strictly forbidden to dig butter clams from Pachena Point to Estavan Point," he said.

The ban does not include mussels, abalone and littleneck clams. So far they are free of red tide, he said.

He couldn't say how long the ban on razor and butter clams would remain.

"It may be as long as a year," he said.

Drug Expert Bucks Stereotype

By GERRY SUTTON

CALGARY (CP) — Before Ken Low joined the Calgary public school board last fall as drug education co-ordinator, he was called at times a "hippie" and a "drug addict."

While with the Calgary Drug Information Centre, he had heated discussions with officials who, he said, didn't understand his method of dealing with the drug problem.

But the situation has changed since the son of the late Solon Low—one of the originals of the Social Credit movement—took the $1,000-a-month position.

There are a few skeptics who even now may assess him on the basis of his shoulder-length blonde hair and a green motorcycle he rides to work.

"Two years ago things were different," he said in an interview. "After speaking at lectures to parents, adults and doctors the typical reaction I received was: 'I didn't know hippies could make any sense.'

"It was really kind of a blow to their stereotype to have somebody come in and talk like a human being. After this I felt if I cut my hair and put on a uniform of the middle-class working people, I was in a sense going to be fortified in their stereotypes."

LOW . . . 'alcohol just a legal drug'

The 29-year old drug expert could be called a rebel, but he's a family man, with a wife and two children, who holds great respect for his father who died in 1962.

Solon Low, once Alberta's education minister and a juvenile and family court judge at Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, was national leader of the Social Credit Party for 16 years.

"My father was a man who fought very hard for his principles. He wasn't about to be backed into a corner by anybody."

His son, who left a strict Mormon upbringing, started drug research while studying psychology at the University of Calgary's graduate school. During four years of research, he said he tried just about every kind of drug.

"I was studying drugs at the time and found the whole phenomenon of drugs interesting. I was collecting data on drugs and decided the only way to learn about them was through experience."

He helped start the Calgary Drug Information Centre.

"The centre was set up to deal with two major areas—public and individual education and crisis assistance. It could keep itself going just on middle-aged housewives . . . there's an awful lot of very mixed-up lonely people out there . . ."

He dosen't make any distinction among alcohol and tobacco and such drugs as LSD, marijuana or hashish.

"Just because some drugs happen to be legal and people think it's OK to use them doesn't make them a special drug. . . . People use all of these drugs in much the same way."

As a drug education co-ordinator, he administers information programs that are provided to teachers and students in public schools on a compulsory basis.

Often he gets calls throughout the night from people who are having drug problems. "I hear and see more kids that are messed up because of their parents."

He also doesn't believe that drug use is a legal problem.

"It's an individual, medical and social problem. By making it the job of police to look after it we have performed the typical copout of our society, of sweeping all of the difficult and thorny problem over to the hands of the police."

LEGAL DRUGS

As vice-chairman of the Alberta commission on alcohol and drug abuse, he says it's an "academic question" whether certain drugs should become legal.

"The threat of prosecution and detection is so low and the number of users so high that drugs might just as well be legal."

There were no easy answers to solving the drug problem.

"If governments were really serious they would try to understand why people are using intoxicants generally. Most people don't understand their own drug use, they don't understand their alcohol or tobacco use. . . ."

PRICE FREEZE UP IN SMOKE

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Officials at the regional office of emergency preparedness report that they received a long-distance phone call complaining that the price of marijuana had risen $10 per pound despite President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

Spokesman John L. Makey says "he said that at that price he would have to turn to hard stuff and that he didn't want."

Teen-Agers Held in Slaughter of Animals

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Three teen-age sons of policemen were arrested Wednesday and charged with slaughtering rabbits and other small animals at a children's zoo in Westchester County.

Up to 300 people, including many teenagers as young as the suspects, gathered at the Harrison town police station as the youths stepped out of police cars.

One of the boys covered his face with his arms as policemen led him into the station. Another made an obscene gesture at the crowd.

The three boys — John Henry and Jeffrey Triano, both 16, and Triano's brother, Ralph Jr., 17 — were arraigned before Judge William Johnstone and sent to Grasslands Hospital in Valhalla for mental examinations. They were charged with third-degree criminal mischief, third-degree criminal trespass and violation of the state agriculture and marketing law, which forbids mistreatment or torture of animals.

A fourth teen-ager who will not be identified because he is younger than 16 was to be arrested later, town police said. There were reports a fifth youth who allegedly took part in the animal slaughter had given police information about the incident.

The attack at the Children's Animal Farm, a zoo operated by the town in West Harrison, was discovered Tuesday morning. Eleven rabbits, three pigeons and a chicken were torn apart while still alive, the police said, and their blood was smeared over windows at the popular recreation centre.

Only a monkey, which was badly hurt with a severe head injury, and a pigeon escaped the vandals, police said. The zoo was closed for the remainder of the year after the attack was discovered.

Detective Ralph Triano Sr., a veteran member of the town police department, was contacted at his home after the arrests. "The kids are young and not that malicious," he said of his two sons.

"Reporters should cover the Vietnam war with the same thoroughness they're giving this case," he said, "and not worry about a few rabbits."

ELECTRIC HEATING
more living space

Homes are for living. Take this home for example. From basement to attic every bit of space is being used for living. That's because it's heated electrically. Compact units take up little or no space. There are no ducts or pipes, no furnace room. Every inch of space is being used . . . and that's important, with today's construction costs.

Most important, every room is comfortable — just the way each individual wants it. That's not always possible with other heating systems because one thermostat must satisfy the demands of all rooms. With electric heating you can have room-by-room temperature control — a thermostat in every room. Simply dial the comfort setting needed to suit each room's activity.

More living space. More comfort. Makes a lot of sense, doesn't it? You'll find that the cost of heating electrically is sensible too.

Give us a call. Our Customer Advisory Service will be happy to discuss your new home plans. Qualified personnel will recommend equipment sizes, amount of insulation required, and give you a written estimate of annual electricity costs for heating. Customer Advisory Service is free — available at all B.C. Hydro offices.

HOME GARDEN

Wide Selection of Fruits, Vegetables

By HILDA BEASTALL

On Saturday one of the older regional garden clubs will stage its annual flower and vegetable show. View Royal Garden Club founded back in the 1940's to serve the enthusiastic gardeners of that area, now draws exhibitors and visitors from a wide area with a schedule of classes that retains a distinctive flavor.

Hilda

This year I notice in View Royal's list more separate classes for commonly grown herbaceous perennials than in any other schedule received this year.

These are what the people grow, so logically there are classes for them. Another good point noted is the separating of the three main types of hydrangeas in bloom at this season — the pink or blue hortensis; paniculata or Pee-FGee; and the so-called Lacecap type. Not only is this educational to exhibitors and visitors, but it makes for more "just" judging.

A wide selection of vegetables and fruits will likely be another feature of the show.

While some areas have been slow with vegetable growth this year, View Royal seems to be in a favored position for most kinds. Judging from what has been seen in some of the gardens, it may be only ripe tomatoes which will be lacking on the show table.

Sizes of squash may be small, but several varieties have been making progress after the warm weather started.

Classes for arrangements, including miniatures, will no doubt bring out some lovely creations. Always of interest will be the junior exhibits, with wondrous creatures made of fruits, vegetables and flowers.

Miniature gardens and miniature farms will give even wider scope to young imaginations.

Altogether, the show will be worth a visit.

You will find it in the All Saints Parish Hall on Stewart Avenue, View Royal; doors open from 3 to 9 p.m.

Visitors to the Victoria area will see a charming community if they drive out Gorge Road, cross the Craigflower Bridge and continue on Island Highway to the right, through to View Royal, turning left on to Stewart just after the stores and fire hall on the right of the road.

New residents of View Royal will meet their neighbors and also see the possibilities for their own gardens with food crops as well as decorative plants. Refreshments will be available.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

"Psychic bidding" is defined as bidding what you do not have, in order to create the illusion of strength or to conceal a weakness. It is dangerous bidding, for while its aim is to deceive the opponents, it frequently deceives your partner.

At times, however, opportunities for safe psychics do arise. They are safe in the sense that the opponents, rather than your partner, are the ones who figure to be deceived.

Today's deal, which came up in the 1947 National Championships, features the so-called "safe" psychic bid. In the North seat was Alphonse Moyes, Jr., the former publisher of the Bridge World Magazine.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♡ A K
◇ A K Q J 9
♣ 8 2

WEST
♠ 5 4
♡ Q 8 5 3 2
◇ 7

EAST
♠ 6
♡ J 10 9 7 4
◇ 6 4 2

SOUTH
♠ A K J 10 9 2
♡ 6
◇ 10 8 5 3
♣ 7 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♣ (!)	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ◇.

After South's one-spade response, North knew that he would get to at least a game in spades. His forcing jump-shift bid of three clubs showed a hand containing 20 or more points. Of course, the intent of this "psychic" bid was to inhibit an opening club lead by West.

When South jumped to game on his rebid, North was certain that the spade suit was solid, and that if a club lead were not forthcoming, the slam in spades figured to be a cinch, since North's solid diamond suit figured to take care of whatever club losers South possessed. So North, hopeful that his psychic three club call had talked West out of opening a club, took the plunge at six spades.

Whether West would have led a club if North had not bid that suit will never be known. Perhaps he would have led his singleton diamond anyway, hoping that his partner possessed the ace. With the diamond opening, South had no problem in making all 13 tricks.

In retrospect, if East had doubled North's three-club call, he would have exposed North's psychic bid. And, in this case, West surely would have led his club king at trick one. The slam contract would then have been defeated, with the defenders taking two club tricks.

However, had East doubled, North would have recognized that his psychic had been exposed. And he would surely have then stopped at a mere game in spades. As to whether East should have doubled is open to question, although on this specific deal there is no doubt that it would have been the winning call.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

FIREMEN QUIT—NO FIRES

CALGARY (CP)— The excitement of a good fire can do wonders for morale in a voluntary department, the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs was told Tuesday.

"We get no fires, that's our problem," complained one delegate.

Another Alberta fire department head said his entire volunteer staff quit at one point because they were tired of waiting for something to happen.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MARCUS WELBY, MD. 7 p.m., Channel 6. The House of Alquist. Character actor Alexander Scourby plays a domineering invalid who maintains an unnatural control over his talented daughter. She wants to get married, but his dependence upon her for inspiration and support is the big stumbling block. Doc Welby walks into the mess, and doesn't seem to be making much headway.

ALIAS SMITH AND JONES. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) "The McCreedy Bust." A pair of old pros, Burl Ives and Cesar Romero, are featured as rich ranchers who have equal passion for a bust of Caesar. It belongs to McCreedy (Ives), who also is quite skilful at cards, but Romero manages to have it stolen and brought to his hacienda in Mexico. Heyes and Curry are then hired to retrieve it.

NBC ACTION PLAYHOUSE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "The Fatal Mistake." Arthur Hill, who will be seen this coming season in an ABC series, "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law," plays a normal London suburbanite, with one eccentric hobby, raising reptiles. He's also being blackmailed by his insurance man, played by Roddy McDowall. You will probably recognize Michael Wilding in the role of Maj. Tucker.

LANCER. 8 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) A birthday party for Murdoch develops a number of sentimental touches, as well as interesting developments all stressing the birthday gifts Johnny, Scott and Jelly have gotten for the birthday celebrant.

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "This Could Blow Your Mind." Guest-star George Grizzard plays a mob enforcer who kidnaps a psychological testing lab doctor's family in an effort to force information leading to an informer. Grizzard uses his hostages to make the doctor, played by Bradford Dillman, to use scientific methods on Ironside, hoping to get information on the informer's hiding place.

THE CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 8 p.m., Channel 7. "The Frozen Dead" In an eerie science fiction film, Dana Andrews stars as a Nazi scientist with fond hopes of recapturing the good old days of the Third Reich. He has been experimenting with frozen bodies, and, it turns out, he has 1,500 of them, the elite of the Nazi party, stashed away in caves since the end of World War II. The experiments have been unsuccessful and the Nazi scientist decides he needs living brains. His two nieces, who come to visit him, become prime potential donor-victims.

DAN AUGUST. 9:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) A patrolman is killed trying to abort a holdup at the fairgrounds. The robbery gang consists of three men and a woman, the only clues that Detective Lieutenant Dan August (Burt Reynolds) has to go on when he starts to track them down.

DEAN MARTIN PRESENTS: SNEAK PREVIEW. 10 p.m., Channel 5. This program is a trial balloon to test reaction to a pair of situation comedy pilots that hopefully will turn up either at midseason or next year. One is called Powder Room, starring Jack Cassidy as host and appearing in a series of sketches with Joey Heatherton, Jeanine Burnier and Elaine Stritch. Miss Heatherton tries a wild fling with a staid college prof, Miss Burnier hopes to perk up a marriage by "confessing" and affair with a younger man, and Miss Stritch is about to become an unmourning widow. In the other pilot, Jackie Cooper hosts "What's Up," a satiric look at the current scene through sketches, newsreels, interviews and blackouts. It's an updated version of David Frost's old "That Was the Week That Was."

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

I have often wondered what I should do if I were ever to find a burglar in my apartment. I know that in these days when there are many heroin addicts who must steal in order to get the money — perhaps $100 a day — to support their habit, if I were to surprise a burglar in my office or home, I could stand a good chance of being shot and perhaps killed unless I could keep out of his way and not bother him or frighten him.

Recently, I read an interesting article by Robert Beasely, who interviewed more than 100 convicted burglars within the walls of the largest U.S. prison at Jackson, Mich. asking them what a person had better do when he discovers that there is a burglar in his house.

* * *

The burglars agreed that the best thing to do is to stay away from the man, because he is in a dangerous business, and he is likely to "play rough."

Perhaps when the family is upstairs, if they hear a burglar downstairs, the thing to do is to make a lot of noise, slamming and licking bedroom doors, stamping on the floor, kicking a chair up against the wall, turning on the lights, and yelling for help from a window. If there is a telephone extension upstairs, call the police — but only after you have locked your door. Then the burglar is likely to leave in a hurry.

If you and the burglar are on the same floor or if you aren't sure just where he is, don't make a sound, do absolutely nothing, stay so quiet that the burglar can take what he wants and then leave. You may not have your silverware next morning, but at least you'll be alive.

* * *

If you come home some night and see signs of forced entry or you realize that there is a light burning inside that you did not leave on, then don't go in; call the plice from a neighbor's house. If you should get into the house and surprise the burglar, get out quickly and call the police from a nearby house. If you step inside your home and see signs that there has been a burglar there, get out at once and call the police. Don't assume that the burglars have left just because you did not hear anything. The burglars may be hiding.

As Beasely said, remember that a burglar at work is operating under a tremendous tension, and also, he may be "hopped up" on narcotics, and he may be carrying a gun. He fears three dangers — the police, prison, and death — and while trying to avoid those dangers, he may take your life.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open daily, Monday through Saturday 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you to call.

Lindsay Backers 'Campaign'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young, amateur backers of John Lindsay began fanning out across the United States this week hoping to convince the New York City mayor and Democratic party pros that he can take the U.S. presidency in 1972.

Organizers say they urged Lindsay, a Liberal, to run for president next year before he announced 10 days ago he had switched from the Republican to the Democratic party.

They said they are working for Lindsay without either his support or encouragement.

Leaders of the Committee for a Choice are Chris Jonas, 26, vice-president of a new York importing firm, and his brother Stanley, 24, a graduate student.

At a news conference Chris Jonas said Lindsay-for-president organizations are active in 15 cities and about 3,000 college campuses. A just-completed meeting in Washington was designed to pull the volunteer groups under a single umbrella and launch a voter-registration drive among newly-enfranchised 18-to-21-year-olds.

Lindsay has not said whether he will be a candidate in 1972.

Judge Battles For Water

CALGARY (CP) — Fish Creek barely runs along the southern edge of the city any more — it's nearly dry.

And the lack of water has so annoyed Mr. Justice Harold Riley of Alberta Supreme Court that he has started a personal campaign to remedy the situation.

He sent a letter to the city this week saying the low levels are the result of a subdivision developer using the creek to support the artificial Lake Bonavista but the developer denies the statement.

Justice Riley also sent copies of the letter to the premier, the department of lands and forests, the federal minister of environment, daily papers and the developer — Keith Construction Company Ltd.

He said the waters have been diverted "to the point that Fish Creek, once a beauty spot full of running water and full of fish has been devoured . . . (until) it is just a gravel bed."

Justice Riley agreed with tentative plans that the creek area be preserved as a park and scenic area "but the important thing is the environment and the water in the creek."

". . . residents who bought their property on the strength of the creek are disgusted not only with the desecration of the creek and its beauty, but can in no way fish."

GOLF COURSES

A spokesman for the developer said there are other users of the water upstream, including two golf courses, and the creek is dry at the intake point for the lake. The creek had a history of drying up.

The system feeding the lake could take up to 250 gallons of water a minute from the stream but a storm sewer system in the subdivision can return water further downstream at about the same rate, the spokesman said.

Mayor Sykes said the allegation would be looked into "because we cannot afford to have a creek destroyed for somebody's convenience."

No Raw Sewage Found Near Outfall Beaches

There is no evidence thus far that raw sewage is washing up on beaches near the Finnerty Cove outfall in Gordon Head, according to two men who are studying the situation.

Dr. Derek Ellis, University of Victoria biologist in charge of ecological studies along the shore, said Wednesday his four-month program will be completed in October and data will be analysed soon.

"At this stage, there is no good data to say that sewage regularly washes on the beach to the point where there is a serious health hazard," he said.

Oceanographic studies are being carried out by Associated Engineering Services Ltd. on the effectiveness of the present outfall and what changes may be needed as a result of studies.

"We have gathered no evidence which would indicate that raw sewage is being washed ashore at this location," said engineer G. H. Lawther.

The Finnerty Cove outfall is 1,300 feet long and discharges comminuted (or shredded) and chlorinated sewage into 44 feet of water through a 24-inch concrete pipe built in 1961.

The 1966 sewerage report on Greater Victoria, by Associated Engineering, said at that time "there appears little or no aesthetic impairment of the shoreline waters."

The outfall serves sewered parts of Gordon Head in Saanich.

Revaluation 'Calamity'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A top British Columbia forest industry spokesman said Wednesday a suggested 12-per-cent upward revaluation of the Canadian dollar in terms of the United States dollar from the former fixed rate would be a calamity for the industry.

President Gordon Draeseke of the Council of Forest Industries said the revaluation, suggested by the International Monetary Fund, would make the success or failure of some of B.C.'s marginal forest companies "touch and go" and would cost the industry about $80 million in profits this year.

Draeseke said it costs the industry about $13 million each time the Canadian dollar rises one point in relation to the U.S. dollar.

Before the Judge

Linden J. Bell, 48, of 506 Niagara, was sentenced to 14 days in jail Wednesday by Judge Edmond St. Jorre after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

His licence was suspended for six months.

* * *

David Smith Gibb, 48, of 126 Sims, was fined $200 and his licence was suspended for three months for driving with a blood alcohol content exceeding .08 per cent.

Scouting Award

OTTAWA (CP) — Leonard H. Nicholson, former commissioner of the RCMP, was awarded international scouting's highest award, the Bronze Wolf, at the recent World Scout Conference in Tokyo, the Boy Scouts of Canada announced today.

A native of Mount Middleton, in King's County, N.B., Mr. Nicholson has had a long association with scouting, receiving the Silver Wolf, Canada's highest scouting award, in 1970.

L'Association des Scouts awarded him the Vanier Scout Medal in 1969 for his contribution to the committee on co-operation between Les Scouts and the Boy Scouts.

He has held former posts as provost marshal of the army during the Second World War, president of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, Chancellor of Priory of Canada, Order of St. John, and deputy chief scout of the Boy Scouts of Canada.

LeDain Quits As Law Dean

TORONTO (CP) — Gerald LeDain, chairman of the federal commission of inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs, is stepping down as dean of Osgoode Hall Law School of York University when his five-year term expires on June 30, 1972.

He said he will take a one-year subbatical leave to write a book about government and public law, but will return to Osgoode Hall as a professor of constitutional law.

His decision was announced Wednesday by Dr. David Slater, president of York University, in a letter circulated among members of the faculty of law.

Mr. LeDain, 46, a Queen's Counsel, has been chairman of the drug inquiry since 1969. Its final report is due to be published this fall.

Zululand Can't Afford Luxury Of Political Opposition—Chief

By KENNETH L. WHITING

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The Zulus won't bother with an official opposition party in their proposed legislature. Their political leader, Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, says Zulus can't afford the luxury of political dissension.

He heads the Zulu Territorial Authority which is to be upgraded next year to the status of legislative assembly. South Africa's white rulers envisage Zululand as one of eight "bantustans," or black homelands, in which the country's major tribes will enjoy autonomy and limited self-government.

"We should get on with the job without creating an artificial apparatus for petty bickering," the chief said.

This provoked little surprise among either blacks or whites. Whatever else the post-colonial decade in Africa has demonstrated, many experts now agree that it was wishful thinking to expect Western democracy to flourish. But before independence came to most of the continent, the idea of doing without opposition was heresy.

MILITARY NOW RULES

Nnamdi Azikiwe, governor-general and later president of Nigeria, summed up the conventional view a year before British colonial rule ended there in 1960: "Unless an opposition exists — as a 'shadow cabinet' capable of replacing the government—democracy become a sham. . . . Failure to tolerate the existence of an opposition party would be disastrous to the existence of democracy. It is the easiest invitation to dictatorship. . . ."

Azikiwe now lives under military rule. His country has had two coups and a civil war since independence.

One of the leftover problems is that armies in colonial days served as the enforcement arm of the governor and his ruling apparatus. These armies gradually developed an autonomy of their own and some did not take kindly to civilian rule.

Nigeria is only one of 14 military dictatorships in Africa.

One-party regimes hold sway in 17 other countries. About three-quarters of Africa's land mass is under military or one-party control.

The relative handful of countries permitting two or more parties include Botswana, Gambia, Ghana, Malagasy, Morocco, Rhodesia, Rio Muni, Sierra Leone, South Africa, Swaziland, Zambia and Mauritius.

Ethiopia imposes a total ban on political parties. Chad established a one-party state by amalgamating various political organizations.

Some parties, such as the Tanzania African National Union, grew out of pre-independence revolutionary movements which attracted overwhelming support. To oppose the men who ended colonial rule was sometimes tantamount to treason. Some checks and balances are written into Tanzania's one-party constitution, however.

De facto one-party states have evolved through intimidation by the government of opposition elements. Analysts cite Kenya as one example. Zambia may be moving in the same direction.

ALIEN TO TRADITION

Almost without exception leaders in black Africa say a multi-party system is alien to black culture and tradition. They contend that the African version of democracy is as fair and democratic as that in Western countries.

The Zulus were among the fiercest of all African warriors and about the last controlled by white settlers. For these people Chief Buthelezi wants modern politics to build on the foundation of traditional tribal politics. He says this did not forbid dissent nor did it consist of two opposing parties arguing, sometimes just for the sake of arguing.

Traditional Zulu politics was the politics of consensus in which discussion continued until a consensus was reached. Issues are fully debated in the present Zulu Territorial Authority and members seem to feel free to comment on the administration.

As Chief Buthelezi sees it, the same method will prevail when the legislature is created.

30,000 Homeless

BANGKOK (Reuter) — At least 30,000 persons have been made homeless in northeastern Thailand by floods after the Mekong River burst its banks during heavy monsoon rains. Official sources said six persons were known to have died since the floods began late last week.

Canada Pushes Its Case

WASHINGTON (CP) — A group of high-level Canadian government officials flew into Washington today for a second meeting with United States representatives about new American import duties.

A U.S. treasury spokesman described the session as a "follow-up meeting by a working group" after last Thursday's conference involving cabinet ministers from the two governments.

Besides import duties, the spokesman said the two sides were expected to discuss the "over-all picture of the monetary situation" in the world following Washington's decision to free the U.S. dollar from its gold peg, in effect seeking devaluation of the dollar.

Canada is asking for a total exemption of Canadian goods from the new duty, which can add up to 10 per cent to the cost of imports into the U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally promised only to consider the request.

Ottawa has estimated that one-quarter of Canada's nearly 13 billion in exports to the U.S. could be affected.

WON'T MAKE STATEMENT

Both Canadian and U.S. spokesmen here said there were no plans to issue a statement following the meeting.

Arriving board a Canadian government plane for the session were Deputy Finance Minister S. S. Reisman, Deputy Trade Minister J. H. Warren and A. E. Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs who was Canadian ambassador here for 3½ years until January, 1970.

In Geneva the council of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade agreed early today to set up a working group to examine the supplementary 10-per-cent import tax announced by President Nixon Aug. 15.

The agreement followed 16 hours of deadlocked debate.

The group, appointed by the 55-nation council, also will examine the legality of the import levy under GATT's fair-trading rules, and will study the U.S. balance-of-payments situation and exchange views on other measures of a non-monetary nature announced by Nixon.

A GATT spokesman said this formula, insisted on by the U.S. delegation, left open the question whether the group would examine effects on international trade played by the job development tax credit plan and tax incentives for U.S. exporters which the administration plans presenting to Congress.

The group, formed by the council despite strong protests by developing countries that their interests were being overlooked, will start work Sept. 6 and report back to the council by Sept. 20. The group, chaired by the Finnish representative to GATT, Klaus Sahlgren, will consist of between 22 and 24 members.

Canada, which is seeking exemption from the import tax, will be a member of the group.

PIERCE-LOOKING SHARK was caught in Georgia Strait and Victor David, 65, of Vancouver, who made the catch using horsemeat as bait, says there are plenty more, up to 26 feet long, off the east side of Mayne Island. The shark died after capture. David plans to make another expedition to catch two live ones for the Vancouver Public Aquarium. (CP Wirephoto)

SHARKS IN GEORGIA STRAIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — There are sharks in Georgia Strait, says Victor David, who caught two last week and plans to catch another to present to the Vancouver Public Aquarium.

"Nobody ever sees them or knows they're there, because they're bottom feeders and never come up to the surface."

Mr. David, 65, is a retired sign maker who worked as a cook aboard a commercial shark-catching boat at the age of 12. Last week marked his first time back at that job in 53 years, but he says he still remembers all the places.

"There's a trench about three miles off the east side (of Mayne Island) which is about 600 feet deep and the sharks there run to about 26 feet long."

He says aquarium facilities can only handle sharks to about eight feet in length, so he and his crew fished a bank along the side of a trench about 350 feet below the surface "where the little sharks are."

To catch the sharks, Mr. David used half-inch manilla rope attached to a winch with a gangen, or leader, of 3/16-inch chain for the last few feet. On the chain were a dozen hooks baited with horsemeat.

The men caught two sharks, "one about 10 feet, the other about 8½ feet, but the big one got away just as we were getting it into the boat."

The second shark was transferred to a tank on the boat, but died several hours later with burst blood vessels.

"It's the same as with scuba divers," Mr. Davis said. "You can't bring them up too fast from such a high pressure down there."

He plans to make another expedition in about three weeks with a larger boat and better equipment and he says he will bring back a shark alive "for sure."

Wage, Price Freeze Here Not Planned . . . Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — A prices and wages freeze is said not to be an immediate prospect for Canada, but the prices and incomes commission has been reported to be drafting standby plans.

These were intended originally to be put on the shelf for use if another rapid inflation struck Canada. Now they may be held in reserve for mid-November.

The 90-day U.S. wage and price freeze is to expire, technically, on Nov. 12, but the Nixon administration is to produce some machinery to moderate price and wage increases after that date. Some authorities here believe it is important that Canadian costs be kept down, to avoid Canada becoming overpriced in an already highly competitive situation.

The departments of industry, trade and commerce, and of regional economic expansion have had an on-going program of studying Canadian industry and regional needs for industrial expansion.

These plans now are being restudied in the light of what a more competitive build-up of American industry might do to Canada. One of the objects of president Nixon's new economic policy is to spark renewed industrial growth and competitiveness in foreign markets.

There are no plans now for a fall budget in the Commons. A finance department spokesman said it is not, of course, possible at this stage to say there will be no budget before Christmas, "but we are not proceeding on the lines of needing a budget."

A budget would be required if there was to be a general revision of the government's taxing and spending forecasts with tax rate changes.

WOMEN'S LIBBERS STOP WALL STREET

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women's liberationists, saying there has not been enough done since they called a national strike a year ago, marched up Fifth Avenue today in a protest against male supremacy.

No strike was called this year, although a day of protests, meetings and demonstrations were planned in New York with smaller gatherings scheduled around the country. See also Page 37.

The strike last August, celebrating the 50th anniversary of the passage of women's suffrage, brought out 10,000 to 20,000 women in New York. Organizers of today's march predicted 50,000 would show up.

Eight of the marchers went into the New York Stock Exchange with a banner reading "De-sexagate Wall Street." The distraction halted the market briefly. No arrests were made.

Russia Lowers Stick

BUCHAREST (AP) — Clear indications have developed that the Soviet Union has abandoned plans for major military manoeuvres this month close to Romania's borders, Western sources reported Wednesday.

The manoeuvers, or at least their threat, would have served as a warning to independent-minded Romania, which remains friendly to China despite the Peking-Moscow feud.

Romania's policy is that the Balkans should be free of military exercises. A Romanian law passed after the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 forbids the transit of foreign troops through Romania.

The question of transit might have come up because Romania lies between Bulgaria and the Soviet Union. The Communist party newspaper Scinteia gave a prominent place on the top of its front page to a brief report on a visit paid by Soviet Deputy Premier Mihail Lesechko to the mountain retreat of President Nicolae Caeusescu at Predeal in the Transylvanian Alps.

The visit was described as "warm and comradely" by the official Romanian news agency Agerpres.

Mariner Corrects Fuel Leak

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Mariner 9 spacecraft en route to an orbital rendezvous with Mars, has corrected by itself a fuel leak that would have shortened its year-long scientific mission by three months, say scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Mariner 9 was launched May 30 from Cape Kennedy, programmed to reach Mars orbit by Nov. 13.

In June, instruments showed excessive nitrogen use. A component involved in the over-use, however, has "broken in" with age and "the excessive gas consumption has stabilized itself," a spokesman said. Enough nitrogen remains for a full year, he said.

Mariner 9 will map the red planet with television cameras and perform other scientific tests for a year from orbital altitudes as low as 750 miles. It is expected to remain in orbit for about 50 years before crashing onto the planet's surface.

EX-TORY LEADS MOVE

Separatists Eye Ottawa Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen well-known Quebecers, including members of the separatist Parti Quebecois, met secretly recently to discuss the possibility of a Quebec party working on the federal level.

The meeting was called by Fernand Alie, former chairman of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, and was jointly chaired by Guy Bertrand of Quebec City, former Parti Quebecois candidate in the provincial riding of Dorchester, near Quebec City.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, both Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Alie acknowledged the meeting and said another will be held at the Alie Institute in downtown Montreal, site of the first meeting. The second meeting was set for Sept. 2.

Other prominent Quebec persons attending the first meeting included Camille Laurin, PQ house leader in the national assembly; Roch Lasalle, the independent federal MP for Joliette who broke with the Progressive Conservatives earlier this year; Claude Ryan, publisher of the Montreal daily Le Devoir; Andre L'Heureux of the Confederation of National Trade Unions; Francois-Albert Angers, Montreal head of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, and Rosaire Morin, head of the Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party.

YOUTH REPORT

Free Choice Advocated

Legal Pot Urged

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Freedom of choice for young people forms the core of the report today to the federal government of its committee on youth.

The 218-page report released Thursday recommends creation of regional and national agencies to approve and fund social development projects conceived by a national network of community assemblies.

The goal would be to make "freedom of choice a powerful societal reality" and in the process, give young people a full role in the making of decisions affecting them.

En route to this conclusion, the three-man committee makes numerous recommendations likely to inspire controversy, including a proposal that the cultivation, sale and use of marijuana be legalized.

"Drug laws as they stand are ineffective," the report advises.

"Logically, it is difficult to understand how a society, unsuccessful at suppressing the use of drugs such as tobacco, alcohol and chemicals by its members, can hope to erase the use of soft drugs now so popular with, and available to, such a large part of its population."

STUDIES NOT FIRM

The report adds that medical studies on the effects of marijuana are far from conclusive and that the "most reliable studies show it is not physically addictive."

The committee beat the Le Dain commission to the punch by several weeks in giving a judgment about marijuana and hashish.

The Le Dain commission, headed by Dean Gerald Le Dain of Osgoode Hall law school, Toronto, is expected to hand down its final report this fall after more than two years' study of the drug scene in Canada.

In an interim report, the Le Dain commission called on the courts to "minimize" the impact of criminal laws against canabis for those charged with possession.

At the same time, the interim report of the Le Dain commission proposed lightened penalties for trafficking and possession for trafficking of drugs.

Its most controversial recommendation immediately rejected by the federal cabinet was that illegal possession of any drug be subject to no more than a fine of $100.

COVERED BIG AREA

The youth committee, headed by Toronto sociologist David Hunter, began its inquiry under contract a year ago, covering the whole area of youth activities and attitudes.

On drugs, its reports says:

"Drug laws as they stand are ineffective. By all accounts they have resulted neither in diminished availability nor decreased consumption."

ALBERTA PRISONS FACE GUARD STRIKE

EDMONTON (CP) — Beds and food for the RCMP were being moved into the five provincial jails in Alberta today as authorities prepared for a strike of 500 correctional officers who could walk out at any time.

A deadline of midnight Wednesday night passed without a strike by the men, who constitute almost all the guards and other officers at the jails. They were still on the job today.

RCMP detachments near the provincial jails said they have been placed on standby alert to replace the officers if the threatened walkout occurs.

Bigger Role Asked for Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — More federal say in education, bigger loans to university students and a more distinct separation between military and civilian education in military colleges is recommended in a study on youth commissioned by the federal government.

The state secretary department's three-man committee on youth said in its report, released Thursday, that the constitutional decision to make education a provincial responsibility "was largely a religious one."

"But the situation today differs so much from that of 1867 that the current arrangements may well have to be revised."

Currently, the federal government contributes more than $1 billion a year to education through student loans or grants to provincial institutions for provincially initiated educational programs.

Because of the size of the contribution, the federal government should make sure postsecondary education is "equally available to all Canadians."

WANTS APPRAISAL

The report calls for a "detailed appraisal" of the entire system of federal support for education to ensure that the provinces are spending such money on education and that they are spending it in such a way as to broaden educational opportunities for all Canadians.

As well, it recommends that all people involved in education, from administrators to students, share governing power in schools and universities.

"We would remark that moral suasion should be exercised to encourage the provinces to allow total participation in educational institutions."

The report also recommends that the federal government take another look at its student aid program and come up with a different plan. Student loans, however, should immediately be changed "to remove, or reassess" the need for students to make money in the summer, rely on their parents for support or conform to complex administrative requirements.

The report deals with one loan scheme under which students could borrow as much money as they needed to pay their way through school, then repay it in the form of a tax when they began making money.

NEED ALTERNATIVE

But, it goes on, the government should look for an alternative that goes beyond this plan as well.

The report also recommends that the defence department consider turning its three military colleges—Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., Royal Roads at Esquimalt, B.C. and College Militaire Royal at St. Jean, Que. —over to civilians.

Canadian military college education is considerably more expensive than the civilian form and military people should be "more closely integrated into society," the report says.

As a result, military training should be separated from other forms of education by either turning the colleges over to civilian control or combining the functions of the three in one institution and finding some other way "to subsidize or purchase cadets' education in civilian institutions."

Work to Start Soon On Kootenay Project

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority announced Wednesday that work will begin shortly on the first stages of construction of the Kootenay Canal power project in Southeastern B.C.

The project, which will cost about $100 million including transmission lines, will include a three-mile canal to feed Kootenay Lake water into four generators with a capacity of 500,000 kilowatts.

No date was announced for construction of the power house although tenders have been called for the generators. Work is expected to begin next spring. Approval for diversion of Kootenay River water was given only last week by the Provincial Comptroller of Water Rights.

Hydro Chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said Wednesday that agreement in principle has been reached on how the water will be utilized but full details have not been worked out.

It is expected that Cominco and West Kootenay Power will receive a share of the power generated at the new plant as payment for the diversion.

Hydro Wednesday said it has awarded a $165,600 contract to Shelter Bay Construction Ltd. of Kamloops, to clear 300 acres of land for the canal site, making every effort to "preserve the quality of the environment."

The new power plant would make use of water released from the Duncan Dam on the Columbia River System and from the Libby Dam on the Kootenai River in Montana, expected to be completed next year.

FIRE CHIEF WANTS TO STAY

Four Months Means $63 More

Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland will go before an open meeting of council Monday night to fight for a four-month extension of his job.

He was to retire Tuesday and council has appointed deputy fire chief, Glen Robbins, to succeed him.

Contacted today, Sutherland said he wants the extension past his scheduled retirement because changes this year to the Superannuation Act would increase his pension by $63 a month.

If he retires before the end of the year, his pension is based on the best nine years of pay and 1971 is not included.

But if he works to the end of the year, his pension will be based on his best eight years of pay — including 1971.

* * *

"The way it is set up now, the most advantageous time to retire is Dec. 31," said Sutherland.

He asked council's personnel committee for the extension, was turned down, and then sought an open council meeting.

"I am asking for the same consideration as the commission accorded the police chief," Sutherland said.

(It was announced June 7 that the term of police chief W. A. Pearson had been extended to the end of the year. He was due to retire Sept. 22).

* * *

Mayor Hugh Curtis said a comparison with the police chief's extension is "irrelevant" because the police commission received request from the chief for an extension. A successor to Pearson has not been named.

Curtis said personnel committee made its earlier decision regarding Sutherland's retirement and Robbins' appointment "in the absence of any request from him for an extension."

The decisions, he said, now are subject "only to a reversal of council opinion, a reversal I would oppose."

Sutherland said he regrets he did not know earlier the effects of pension changes but he only found out, accidentally, just over four weeks ago.

Liquor Ad Ban To Be Defied By Magazines

By PETER McNELLY

The publishers of Maclean's and Saturday Night magazines said today they will continue to publish liquor advertisements in their editions reaching British Columbia despite a provincial ban effective Sept. 1.

September issues of Maclean's are already being sold in B.C. They contain liquor ads, as will the September edition of Saturday Night.

"As far as we're concerned, our understanding is that the government regulation does not apply to national magazines," Lloyd Hodkinson, Maclean's publisher, said in a telephone interview from Toronto.

William Nobleman, publisher of Saturday Night, said he thinks the ban is unconstitutional.

"We have run all our liquor advertising just as we normally would have — with one exception, and that was a case where the company asked their ad be withdrawn," Nobleman said.

The ban came as a change in the Government Liquor Act during the 1971 legislative session. It applies to all forms of liquor advertising.

Publishing companies Maclean-Hunter Ltd. and Time Canada Ltd. have applied to B.C. Supreme Court seeking a declaratory judgment on the constitutionality of the amendment.

Nobleman said his legal advice is that B.C. does not have the power to ban liquor ads or prevent distribution of publications which carry them.

"IMPOSSIBLE"

"They (the B.C. government) are making the publication of national magazines in this country impossible," said Nobleman.

"If there's going to be a national press in this country, I don't know how much of this kind of crap we can put up with and survive."

Nobleman said he will only believe Bennett is going to stop "pushing liquor" when he announces closure of government liquor stores.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday the government will pass no regulations clarifying the legislation on liquor. Peterson also said no regulations explaining the government's 1971 Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act will be passed.

These acts speak for themselves, Peterson said.

Hodkinson and Nobleman said the Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act will pose no problems, because it has been superseded by a similar federal law banning tobacco advertising throughout Canada.

Lack of government clarification about liquor advertising has confused B.C.'s major magazine wholesalers, who say they cannot predict what government action will be taken against them if they continue to distribute publications with liquor ads.

A spokesman for Vancouver Magazine Ltd. said today they will adopt a wait-and-see attitude pending outcome of the applications or declaratory judgment.

Aside from Maclean-Hunter and Time Canada, applications have been made by four tobacco companies seeking clarification of the Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act.

NO WORRY

Nobleman said the liquor ad ban "isn't worth worrying about" as far as Saturday Night is concerned, because only 3 per cent of its sales are in British Columbia.

Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. and Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd. say they have been advised by lawyers that billboards and other outside advertising signs can remain pending outcome of the Supreme Court applications.

J.C. Melville, general manager of Victoria Press Ltd. said Wednesday the company will not publish advertising which contravenes any statute.

He said there was no question about the liquor ban but added the tobacco prohibition seems vague.

FUTURE STUDENT at the University of Victoria, Judy Stewart, 17, of Penticton, crowned Miss PNE this week, will study political science and English. She won PNE title over 38 other contestants. A spokesman for the four judges said Miss Stewart was chosen for her "warmth, outgoing but ladylike personality, and her presence."

Sick Leave Dispute On Ferries Settled

A dispute over sick leave regulations on B.C. Ferries has been settled following an 83 per cent vote among unlicensed employees.

Norm Thornber, business agent for the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said the ferry authority agreed to rescind new regulations on sick leave and to retract letters warning 200 employees they could be fired if they were absent from work in the next six months.

Thornber said the union approves of a clause added to existing regulations covering absenteeism. "The clause was designed to eliminate malingerers and the ferry authority was quite justified in insisting it be inserted," he said.

Teacher Surplus Idea Detrimental to Plans

The mistaken notion that B.C. is facing a teacher surplus "might affect plans for someone wanting to become a teacher," Johann Phillipson, deputy minister of education, said today.

A provincial government report issued recently warns of a shortage of teachers in B.C. in the 70s, not a surplus as there is now.

CLARIFICATION

The report was an informational item sent to district superintendents of schools by the government's department of education. It contradicts a Canada Manpower report released earlier this month which predicted a surplus of teachers in Canada in the next decade.

Phillipson said the report is intended to clarify the B.C. situation regarding teacher jobs.

PHILLIPSON
. . . expects shortage

Potential teachers "might think they could go through their training and then end up without a job," he said.

Phillipson said the years 1964 through 1966 had been low-birth years — when fewer babies were born than usual. The result was that when the lower number of children reached school age, six years later the numbers of school children dropped correspondingly.

However, in 1967, births maintained their usual increase, Phillipson said, so that starting in 1973, there will be greater numbers of children entering schools.

"And they will need teachers and teaching facilities," he said.

Another factor is the traditionally-high influx of school-age children from outside the province, Phillipson said.

Next fall, about 530,000 pupils are expected in the province's schools, an increase of 12,500 from last year. Phillipson said the usual increase is about 20,000 and this year's increase "is all part of the reduction of numbers affected by the birth rate."

The number of children above grade three is higher than in previous years, he said, and when the children born in 1967 enter the system, schools will start filling again.

(The Greater Victoria School Board has 2,800 teacher applications on file but has only hired 128 for the forthcoming year.)

A Canada Manpower spokesman said today the Manpower report on teacher jobs cited "general oversupply" as the reason for predicting a surplus of teachers in the 1970s.

POPULAR COURSE

"There are a lot of students taking this course," he said. "It seems to be quite popular."

With a large number of teachers being trained, there might not be enough jobs to go around, he said, and indicated that population figures could stay low due to the public's lack of desire to have children.

POLICE OFFICER TO TAKE DRUG COURSE

Sgt. Bill Chisholm is expected to take a year's leave of absence from the Saanich police department to become involved in the province's drug-alcohol education program, Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

Curtis, also chairman of the police commission, said Chisholm has "done an outstanding job" in youth work and drug education in Saanich.

He will recommend the commission approve Chisholm's leave of absence to join the provincial program.

Police Seek Robbery Car

City police are searching for a car they believe was used in an attempted robbery at the Tally-Ho Travelodge, 3020 Douglas, Monday morning.

The vehicle is described as a 1967 metallic grey Chevrolet Malibu.

ONTARIO DRIVER KILLED

The driver of a small car was killed and his woman passenger seriously injured this morning in a rear-end collision on the Pat Bay highway at Sidney.

RCMP in Sidney withheld names of the victims but said they were in their early twenties and from Ontario. The woman is at Rest Haven Hospital with head injuries and cuts.

Officers said their car was northbound on the highway when it rammed the rear of another northbound car which was turning left on to Weiler Avenue. The crash occurred about 9:30 a.m.

The name of the driver of the front car was not immediately available but police said he was from Alaska and currently working in Sidney. He was uninjured.

More Pollution Control Help Urgently Needed—Ministers

Municipal affairs ministers from nine provinces called Wednesday for "vastly increased federal resources" to be made available for pollution control programs.

In a communique winding up three days of meetings here, the ministers all provinces except Newfoundland attended — agreed that the need for more federal anti-pollution funds was urgent.

The ministers said existing federal programs for pollution control, including sewage system aid, "fall far short of a comprehensive attack on the problems of environmental management."

The communique contained little to bolster the hopes of municipal governments that they will be given a voice in inter-governmental consultations on urban problems.

DELAYED

"The question of whether municipalities could be included in consultation was put off until after a special federal-provincial conference on urban problems which the ministers are seeking.

The communique said federal urban affairs minister Robert Andras agreed that such a meeting should be held soon. Andras attended part of Monday's session with the ministers, but was not present at the closing.

NO OBJECTION

The conference agreed that a committee studying the possibility of including municipalities in the consultation process should continue its work.

But it was indicated that some provinces won't agree to including municipalities in the process until they are satisfied with Ottawa's plans for its new department of urban affairs.

There was concern expressed with the constitutional problems related to municipal inclusion. Manitoba's minister of municipal affairs, Howard Pawley, made clear his province has no objection to a three-level conference on urban affairs on constitutional grounds because it wouldn't be a decision-making meeting.

Dalton Bales, Ontario's minister of municipal affairs, said there was agreement from all provinces and from the federal minister that the provinces must have primacy in municipal affairs.

B.C. Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, conference chairman, was asked about a report — described as a "leak" from the conference and believed to come from a federal source — that he was one of the major stumbling blocks to recognizing the municipal voice.

LEAK, DRIP

"You should attach as much importance to the leak as to the drip that made it," Campbell said. He didn't identify the source of the leak.

A five-member committee, including Campbell, was named to meet with Andras to "discuss the implications of the order-in-council which established the new ministry of state for urban affairs."

Campbell said the ministers want to see how the new department will "relate" to provincial governments and municipalities.

He indicated there is concern about federal interference in provincial jurisdiction through the new department, but the concern wouldn't prevent Ottawa from making more funds available for the solution of urban problems.

The conference also "exchanged information" about common problems, including disposal of abandoned cars, early closing of commercial establishments, municipal incorporation of Indian communities, inter-provincial co-operation in municipal research and pollution control, the communique said.

Child's Hidden Handicaps Go Unnoticed for Years

● Why is it that some children fail to make progress in school when there appears to be no visible reason why they should not be doing well? This is the first of six articles by Dr. Leslie J. Nason, of the University of Southern California, on the problem of under achievement and what parents can do about it.

By LESLIE J. NASON

Underachievers are an abomination. They puzzle their teachers. They disappoint their parents and they, themselves, are frustrated.

An under achiever is a student who is not learning up to his potential. He may not be failing; he may be making Cs when he should be making As and Bs.

Feeling Helpless

Parents feel helpless. Their efforts to motivate their under achieving sons and daughters seem to do more harm than good.

Too much so-called "motivation" can have a negative effect unless the student knows how to improve.

Parents worry for fear that they are urging their children to work beyond their ability. Their fisrt problem is to recognize true under achievement when it occurs.

The under achiever who fails sticks out like a sore thumb.

FAMILY SECTION

The under achiever who makes Cs seldom gets much attention. The faculty learning procedures that he developed in the early grades go unnoticed year after year. He may even graduate from high school with his "hidden" handicaps.

Failure to diagnose the learning difficulties of under achievers and help them become achievers is the greatest waste in our present day school systems.

It is important that children be successful in their first weeks of school. Parents can do much to bring this about. But to do so they must first recognize the things that are difficult for their child. As problems are faced and solved one thing at a time the child develops confidence as well as skills.

Parents are important in this proctss. True, teachers are the professionals and should be responsible. Even though they recognize a child's handicap, they may not be able to do much about it. Each teacher is faced daily with a large group of children. Directing their activities and maintainfng order consumes their attention.

Simple Handicaps

Children may get to be members of small groups for a few minutes at a time in the early grades, but learning the skills necessary for school success sometimes requires more individual attention and more time than a teacher has available.

Some handicaps are simple. For example, a child who, in preschool and primary grades failed to develop ease in speech, may carry the handicap for years. He is no trouble to his teachers. They refer to him as a quiet child, not recognizing that expressing ideas is essential to learning. They set up no procedure to help him gain skill in expressing himself.

The Lonely Look for Companionship In Newspaper Ads, Dating Services

Personal ads, dating service help people

By HELEN MELNYK

Loneliness is something like a common cold.

No cure has been discovered for either.

However, there's one big difference. Most people who suffer from colds recover. But for many people, loneliness is a constant misery, that eats away all of the joy and meaning of life, leaving nothing to look forward to beyond a wall of isolation.

The Personals columns in any daily newspaper read like chronicles of loneliness. Most items advertise for a date or mate. Some aren't very particular, asking only that applicants be "affectionate" and "good-natured". Other specify preferences as to age, background, religion and interests. Recently there was a "health-minded" widow who was searching for a prospective husband who was a non-drinker, a non-smoker, interested in subsisting on a raw diet, between 52 to 58 years of age, and preferably a widower also.

LADY, WITH PESONALITY, good looking, wishes to meet unattached financially secure gentleman 60-70 for social outings, travelling, companionship. Matrimony if suited. No triflers please.

The woman who placed the above personals ad in a paper is an attractive, active widow in her 60s. She was anxious that her children and acquaintances not know about the ad.

"I don't really know why I did it," she said. "I thought, it's summer, maybe I can meet someone interesting and have a nice time. This is the first time I ever asked for anything.

"It's very important to have someone to talk to that you can trust, but it's so hard to meet people. I haven't got the personality to go to a nightclub or bar looking for a man.

"All my life I've been busy working. Now I have so much time to give and there's no one. My life is not gone yet. I'm not old enough to just sit."

'Can't Seem to Find Each Other'

The woman used to be a concert musician in Europe, who came to Canada 15 years ago. Her children are grown up and gone, and she had to retire from her job a few years ago. She tries to keep herself busy, working about the house and garden, and being active in community affairs, but says that neither satisfy the craving for companionship.

"When I'm active, nobody thinks that I might need something," she said. "There are many lonely people around, but we can't seem to find each other."

A dating service has recently been established in Victoria to bring together the lonely.

The price — $60 for six months for a man and $15 for a woman for the same time. Dates are guaranteed on request.

"We serve as the eyes, ears and feet by doing all the investigating for people looking for dates," one of the service's operators, Randall Brown, said.

He said that although his clients are from every educational, economic and age bracket, most are between 30 to 50 years of age. They include "shy and introverted" single people, out-of-towners, and the married or divorced who have lost their social dating skills after years of disuse.

Brown cited the example of one 50-year-old man who, after mourning the loss of his wife for 11 years, was just starting to break out of his shell.

"He doesn't know how to go about getting dates like he did when he was young. So he turned to us for a head-start, a push on the road," Brown said.

Some Tastes Self-Defeating

Another client is a 40-year-old woman with a good job and strong religious inclinations; she's a non-drinker, non-smoker, non-gambler and non-dancer.

Brown said that people with preferences such as this woman have a difficult time meeting potential dates.

"She likes going to museums and wax collections. But you're not going to meet anyone in front of Custers Last Stand or the Chamber of Horrors," Brown explained.

"Out-of-town businessmen and salesmen phone in and ask to be set up with a date for the night . . . er . . . evening," he said.

"Female clients outnumber the men two to one," Brown said. "That's because men have a much easier time finding a date. They can go to different places in town, looking for a woman. A middle-aged woman who tries to get a man is frowned upon by her neighbors. Frequently she's also tied down by children."

When clients first approach the service, they're given personal application forms to fill out, stating their age, marital status, job, income, education, religion, interests and appearance. They are also asked to include a photograph of themselves and to list the physical and other qualities they are looking for in a date.

"Honesty is an important factor," Brown said. "If people give us false information, it's hard for us to match them with a suitable date."

Brown said the service tries to match people by their similarity of interests, backgrounds and age.

"Usually a couple will hit it off well — the only thing they come up against are personality differences."

In the future, a computer will be used to increase "efficiency," Brown said.

Freedom Of Choice Is Urged

Canada Pushes Its Case

WASHINGTON (CP) —A group of high-level Canadian government officials flew into Washington today for a second meeting with United States representatives about new American import duties.

A U.S. treasury spokesman described the session as a "follow-up meeting by a working group" after last Thursday's conference involving cabinet ministers from the two governments.

Besides import duties, the spokesman said the two sides were expected to discuss the "over-all picture of the monetary situation" in the world following Washington's decision to free the U.S. dollar from its gold peg, in effect seeking devaluation of the dollar.

Canada is asking for a total exemption of Canadian goods from the new duty, which can add up to 10 per cent to the cost of imports into the U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally promised only to consider the request.

Ottawa has estimated that one-quarter of Canada's nearly 13 billion in exports to the U.S. could be affected.

WON'T MAKE STATEMENT

Both Canadian and U.S. spokesmen here said there were no plans to issue a statement following the meeting.

Arriving aboard a Canadian government plane for the session were Deputy Finance Minister S. S. Reisman, Deputy Trade Minister J. H. Warren and A. E. Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs who was Canadian ambassador here for 3½ years until January, 1970.

In Geneva the council of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade agreed early today to set up a working group to examine the supplementary 10-per-cent import tax announced by President Nixon Aug. 15.

The agreement followed 16 hours of deadlocked debate.

The group, appointed by the 55-nation council, also will examine the legality of the import levy under GATT's fair-trading rules, and will study the U.S. balance-of-payments situation and exchange views on other measures of a non-monetary nature announced by Nixon.

A GATT spokesman said this formula, insisted on by the U.S. delegation, left open the question whether the group would examine effects on international trade displayed by the job development tax credit plan and tax incentives for U.S. exporters which the administration plans presenting to Congress.

The group, formed by the council despite strong protests by developing countries that their interests were being overlooked, will start work Sept. 6 and report back to the council by Sept. 20. The group, chaired by the Finnish representative to GATT, Klaus Sahlgren, will consist of between 22 and 24 members.

Canada, which is seeking exemption from the import tax, will be a member of the group.

FIERCE-LOOKING SHARK was caught in Georgia Strait and Victor David, 65, of Vancouver, who made the catch using horsemeat as bait, says there are plenty more, up to 26 feet long, off the east side of Mayne Island. The shark died after capture. David plans to make another expedition to catch two live ones for the Vancouver Public Aquarium. (CP Wirephoto)

SHARKS IN GEORGIA STRAIT

VANCOUVER (CP)—There are sharks in Georgia Strait, says Victor David, who caught two last week and plans to catch another to present to the Vancouver Public Aquarium.

"Nobody ever sees them or knows they're there, because they're bottom feeders and never come up to the surface."

Mr. David, 65, is a retired sign maker who worked as a cook aboard a commercial shark-catching boat at the age of 12. Last week marked his first time back at that job in 53 years, but he says he still remembers all the places.

"There's a trench about three miles off the east side of Mayne Island which is about 600 feet deep and the sharks there run to about 26 feet long."

He says aquarium facilities can only handle sharks to about eight feet in length, so he and his crew fished a bank, along the side of a trench about 350 feet below the surface "where the little sharks are."

To catch the sharks, Mr. David used half-inch manilla rope attached to a winch with a gangen, or leader, of 3/16-inch chain for the last few feet. On the chain were a dozen hooks baited with horsemeat.

* * *

The men caught two sharks, "one about 10 feet, the other about 8½ feet, but the big one got away just as we were getting it into the boat."

The second shark was transferred to a tank on the boat, but died several hours later with burst blood vessels.

"It's the same as with scuba divers," Mr. Davis said. "You can't bring them up too fast from such a high pressure down there."

He plans to make another expedition in about three weeks with a larger boat and better equipment and he says he will bring back a shark alive "for sure."

Legal Pot Asked

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Freedom of choice for young people forms the core of the report today to the federal government of its committee on youth.

The 218-page report released Thursday recommends creation of regional and national agencies to approve and fund social development projects conceived by a national network of community assemblies.

The goal would be to make "freedom of choice a powerful societal reality" and in the process, give young people a full role in the making of decisions affecting them.

En route to this conclusion, the three-man committee makes numerous recommendations, likely to inspire controversy, including a proposal that the cultivation, sale and use of marijuana be legalized.

"Drug laws as they stand are ineffective," the report advises.

"Logically, it is difficult to understand how a society, unsuccessful at suppressing the use of drugs such as tobacco, alcohol and chemicals by its members, can hope to erase the use of soft drugs now so popular with, and available to, such a large part of its population."

STUDIES NOT FIRM

The report adds that medical studies on the effects of marijuana are far from conclusive and that the "most reliable studies show it is not physically addictive."

The committee feat the Le Dain commission to the punch by several weeks in giving a judgment about marijuana and hashish.

The Le Dain commission, headed by Dean Gerald Le Dain of Osgoode Hall law school, Toronto, is expected to hand down its final report this fall after more than two years' study of the drug scene in Canada.

In an interim report, the Le Dain commission called on the courts to "minimize" the impact of criminal laws against canabis for those charged with possession.

COVERED BIG AREA

The youth committee, headed by Toronto sociologist David Hunter, began its inquiry under contract a year ago, covering the whole area of youth activities and attitudes.

On drugs, its report says: "Drug laws as they stand are ineffective. By all accounts they have resulted neither in diminished availability nor decreased consumption."

ALBERTA PRISONS FACE GUARD STRIKE

EDMONTON (CP) — Beds and food for the RCMP were being moved into the five provincial jails in Alberta today as authorities prepared for a strike of 500 correctional officers who could walk out at any time.

A deadline of midnight Wednesday night passed without a strike by the men, who constitute almost all the guards and other officers at the jails. They were still on the job today.

RCMP detachments near the provincial jails said they have been placed on standby alert to replace the officers if the threatened walkout occurs.

Bigger Role Asked for Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—More federal say in education, bigger loans to university students and a more distinct separation between military and civilian education in military colleges is recommended in a study on youth commissioned by the federal government.

The state secretary department's three-man committee on youth said in its report, released today, that the constitutional decision to make education a provincial responsibility "was largely a religious one."

"But the situation today differs so much from that of 1867 that the current arrangements may well have to be revised."

Currently, the federal government contributes more than $1 billion a year to education through student loans or grants to provincial institutions, for provincially initiated educational programs.

WANTS APPRAISAL

The report calls for a "detailed appraisal" of the entire system of federal support for education to ensure that the provinces are spending such money on education and that they are spending it in such a way as to broaden educational opportunities for all Canadians.

As well, it recommends that all people involved in education, from administrators to students, share governing power in schools and universities.

The report also recommends that the federal government take another look at its student aid program and come up with a different plan. Student loans, however, should immediately be changed "to remove or reassess" the need for students to make money in the summer, rely on their parents for support or conform to complex administrative requirements.

The report deals with one loan scheme under which students could borrow as much money as they needed to pay their way through school, then repay it in the form of a tax when they began making money.

NEED ALTERNATIVE

But, it goes on, the government should look for an alternative that goes beyond this plan as well.

The report also recommends that the defence department consider turning its three military colleges Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., Royal Roads at Esquimalt, B.C. and College Militaire Royal at St. Jean, Que. over to civilians.

Wage, Price Freeze Here Not Planned . . . Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — A prices and wages freeze is said not to be an immediate prospect for Canada, but the prices and incomes commission has been reported to be drafting standby plans.

These were intended originally to be put on the shelf for use if another rapid inflation struck Canada. Now they may be held in reserve for mid-November.

The 90-day U.S. wage and price freeze is to expire technically on Nov. 12, but the Nixon administration is to produce some machinery to moderate price and wage increases after that date. Some authorities here believe it is important that Canadian costs be kept down to avoid Canada becoming overpriced in an already highly competitive situation.

The departments of industry, trade and commerce, and of regional economic expansion have had an on-going program of studying Canadian industry and regional needs for industrial expansion.

These plans now are being restudied in the light of what a more competitive build-up of American industry might do to Canada. One of the objects of President Nixon's new economic policy is to spark renewed industrial growth and competitiveness in foreign markets.

There are no plans now for a fall budget in the Commons. A finance department spokesman said it is not, of course, possible at this stage to say there will be no budget before Christmas, "but we are not proceeding on the lines of needing a budget."

A budget would be required if there was to be a general revision of the government's taxing and spending forecasts, with tax rate changes.

WOMEN'S LIBBERS STOP WALL STREET

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women's liberationists, saying there has not been enough done since they called a national strike a year ago, marched up Fifth Avenue today in a protest against male supremacy.

No strike was called this year, although a day of protests, meetings and demonstrations were planned in New York with smaller gatherings scheduled around the country. See also Page 28.

Eight of the marchers went into the New York Stock Exchange with a banner reading "De-sexagrate Wall Street." The distraction halted the market briefly. No arrests were made.

Stop Pipeline, Nixon Urged

WASHINGTON (CP) President Nixon was asked by a group of United States congressmen today to intervene personally and stop construction of the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline until a full economic and ecological study has been made of a possible alternative line through Canada to the U.S. Middle West.

They argued that a cross-Canada line would be of more benefit to the whole of the United States.

Seventeen members of the House of Representatives, led by pipeline foe Les Aspin, as well as a fellow Wisconsin Democrat, Senator William Proxmire, signed the letter.

Although Aspin and other opponents have attacked the Alaska project mainly on grounds of conservation in the past, the current opposition came largely on economic grounds. They contended that a Canadian pipeline would help reduce the current wide disparities in oil prices between the West Coast and the higher-cost areas of the U.S. Middle West and East Coast.

An interior department decision on the $3 billion pipeline proposal is expected shortly. Secretary Morton has already indicated he will approve the project, although the terms of the permit are in question.

Work to Start Soon On Kootenay Project

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority announced Wednesday that work will begin shortly on the first stages of construction of the Kootenay Canal power project in southeastern B.C.

The project, which will cost about $100 million including transmission lines, will include a three-mile canal to feed Kootenay Lake water into four generators with a capacity of 500,000 kilowatts.

No date was announced for construction of the power house although tenders have been called for the generators. Work is expected to begin next spring. Approval for diversion of Kootenay River water was given only last week by the provincial comptroller of water rights.

Hydro Chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said Wednesday that agreement in principle has been reached on how the water will be utilized but full details have not been worked out.

It is expected that Cominco and West Kootenay Power will receive a share of the power generated at the new plant as payment for the diversion.

Hydro Wednesday said it has awarded a $105,600 contract to Shelter Bay Construction Ltd. of Kamloops, to clear 300 acres of land for the canal site, making every effort to "preserve the quality of the environment."

The new power plant would make use of water released from the Duncan Dam on the Columbia River System and from the Libby Dam on the Kootenay River in Montana, expected to be completed next year.

Mariner Corrects Fuel Leak

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Mariner 9 spacecraft en route to an orbital rendezvous with Mars, has corrected by itself a fuel leak that would have shortened its year-long scientific mission by three months, say scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Mariner 9 was launched May 30 from Cape Kennedy, programmed to reach Mars orbit by Nov. 13.

In June, instruments showed excessive nitrogen use. A component involved in the over-use however, has "broken in" with age and "the excessive gas consumption has stabilized itself," a spokesman said. Enough nitrogen remains for a full year, he said.

Mariner 9 will map the red planet with television cameras and perform other scientific tests for a year from orbital altitudes as low as 750 miles. It is expected to remain in orbit for about 50 years before crashing onto the planet's surface.

WHY THEY FAIL

Each year thousands of children fail to make progress in school when there appears to be no visible reason why they should not be doing well. Today the Times presents the first of six articles on the problem of underachievement and what parents can do about it. See Page 37.

Separatists Eye Ottawa Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen well-known Quebecers, including members of the separatist Parti Quebecois, met secretly recently to discuss the possibility of a Quebec party working on the federal level.

The meeting was called by Fernand Alie, former chairman of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, and was jointly chaired by Guy Bertrand of Quebec City, former Parti Quebecois candidate in the provincial riding of Dorchester, near Quebec City.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, both Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Alie acknowledged the meeting and said another will be held at the Alie Institute in downtown Montreal, site of the first meeting. The second meeting was set for Sept. 2.

Other prominent Quebec persons attending the first meeting included Camille Laurin, PQ house leader in the national assembly; Roch Lasalle, the independent federal MP for Joliette who broke with the Progressive Conservatives earlier this year; Claude Ryan, publisher of the Montreal daily Le Devoir; Andre L'Heureux of the Confederation of National Trade Unions; Francois-Albert Angers, Montreal head of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, and Rosaire Morin, head of the Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party.
